USE LESPEDEZA AS SUBSTITUTE FOR OTHER LEGUMES; Seed Is Scarce

The two hurricanes which swept over northeastern North Carolina last fall almost wiped out the commercial soybean crop. Cowpeas, also scarce, and it is perhaps advisable for eastern growers to think of substituting lespedeza for these two popular summer-growing legumes.

"Lespedeza seed is scarce also, but less so than soybeans and cowpeas," says Enos C. Blair, extension agronomist at State College, who has been making a survey of the situation. "The lespedeza may be planted on small grain from February 1 to March 15 and those who plant spring oats might also scatter some lespedeza seed on the oats immediately after they are covered. In other cases, the lespedeza should be covered with a weeder, a section harrow, or a brush drag. In sown in this way at the rate of 25 pounds to the acre, the crop will make as much hay as will soybeans or cowpeas except on extremely light, sandy soils."

Mr. Blair has found that there will be little surplus soybean seed to ship from the northeastern part of the state this spring. Growers and dealers both concur in this statement, and this is the section which supplies North Carolina with the bulk of its seed soybeans.

NO DECREASE IS SEEN IN AMOUNT POULTRY GROWN

Indications Are Demand for Baby Chicks Will Hold Up Well This Year

Because poultry growing seems to provide a fairly dependable source of income and prices for broilers have been better than was anticipated, indications are that the demand for baby chicks in North Carolina this season will continue as good as in 1933.

"However, poultrymen should carefully select their sources of baby chicks and if possible get those which have been produced from eggs laid by blood-tested hens," cautions Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the State College poultry department. "Another important point is to be prepared for the chicks before they are received at the farm. Chicks are highly perishable, and the brooder houses need to be ready in ample time. We have found that the starting of baby chicks for early pullets or for early broilers is the best time to start."

The shortage of cowpeas exists not only in this state but also in South Carolina and Georgia, and the prices for seed are much higher than at this same time last year.

In view of this scarcity and high price, farmers will do well to substitute a part of their normal acreage of soybeans and cowpeas with the more plentiful lespedeza, Blair believes.

more complicated than raising them later in the season when sunshine, range, and green feed are available."

Dearstyne says baby chicks started very early have a tendency towards leg weakness that later chicks do not have. This means that the early chicks should get all the sunshine possible. Where they do not have green feed, an extra amount of cod liver oil needs to be added to the mash. If the chicks are badly crowded and the drinking and eating places are inadequate, cannibalism will likely develop.

Baby chicks started early need the best of care and rigid sanitation. Carelessness and indifference in handling them will prove costly, says the poultryman.

Select and Treat Seed Potatoes With Care

All potatoes showing diseased spots or blemishes should be discarded before any treatment is given. If the potatoes have small, black, hard bodies on the surface or black areas and soft spots, all such tubers should be discarded and the remaining potatoes treated with mercuric chloride at the rate of 1 ounce to 8 gallons of water. Put this solution in wooden barrels and soak potatoes for 1 to 1-2 hours. Dry the potatoes immediately after soaking. Where potatoes are in a healthy condition they should be soaked in a formaldehyde solution (1 pint formaldehyde to 30 gallons of water) for one to one and one-half Always treat potatoes and wash and dry before cutting.

Of the 799 cotton growers in Lee County, 526 have signed reduction contracts to date and 215 other growers who have very small acreages have signed cards stating their willingness to cooperate.
