

Norfolk College Fraternity Is Headed by County Man

Norfolk.—At the annual meeting of the Chi chapter of the Phi Theta Pi Fraternity of Norfolk College, held at the Hygei Club, Virginia Beach, Friday night, October 19, Mr. Joseph W. Griffin, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Griffin, of Route 1, Williamston, was elected president to succeed Mr. Max Holliday, jr., of Norfolk. The term of office is for one year and Mr. Griffin will embark upon his new duties November 1.

Mr. Griffin is a graduate of the Williamston High School and later entered Norfolk College, where he studied auditing. He graduated in about two-thirds of the regular time required and received his diploma November 30, 1933. Since graduating he has completed several of the post-graduate courses offered by the school. Mr. Griffin is still doing double duty by attending the day school and keeping books for the Ocean View Golf and Country Club. His many friends are wishing him every success in his new undertakings.

STATE ISSUES NEW BULLETIN ON PASTURES

Methods for Starting and Maintaining Good Sod Are Set Forth

The value of pastures and methods for starting and maintaining a good sod have been set forth in a bulletin recently published by the State College extension service. The authors, E. C. Blair, extension agronomist, and A. C. Kinney, extension dairyman, have gone into detail in outlining the growing of various types of pastures in different parts of the state.

Pastures can be used to control erosion and at the same time provide nutritious feed for livestock. The authors point out the need of erosion control in this state, where the damage is said to amount to about $70,000,000 a year.

Pasture grasses contain proteins, minerals, vitamins, roughage, water and other things needed in livestock feed. When animals are not working, they can be turned into a good pasture and kept in good condition without other feeds. When animals are working, the amount of concentrated feed they need is much less if they have access to a pasture.

Pastures do best on heavy, rich soils but the grasses will also grow on less fertile soils and farmers who wish to save their most fertile soil for other crops may make use of their less fertile soil by putting in a pasture. Three types of pastures are common to this state: mixed grasses, carpet grasses, and Bermuda grass. The first two are good on soils of medium or good fertility. The latter will thrive on fertile soils and do well on less fertile land.

One of the important considerations is to provide a mixture of grasses, if possible, that will supply grazing throughout the year, except the months of extreme cold weather.

Copies of the bulletin, extension circular No. 202, may be obtained upon application to the agricultural editor at State College.

More Than 100 Licenses Issued for Peanut Pickers

More than 100 licenses have been issued to operators of peanut pickers in this county so far, Register of Deeds J. Sam Getzinger said yesterday. All operators will have applied for operating permits by the middle or latter part of next week, it is believed.

Peanut picker owners are planning to meet in the courthouse here tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, when a discussion centered around reports and picking prices will be held.

Hog Should Not Be Fed For Day Before Killing

The animal should not be fed for at least 24 hours before slaughter, but should have plenty of fresh water. This makes it easier to get a good bleed and the meat cures out better when the small blood-vessels are free from food particles and blood. Before the animal is killed keep it as quiet as possible as excitement produces a feverish condition which prevents proper bleeding and causes the meat to sour while in cure.

The clinic was to have been held on Thursday of next week, but the date was changed, the postponement having been announced too late for a correction of the advertisement appearing in this paper.

OCTOBER GOOD TIME TO PLANT FALL GARDENS

Kale, Mustard, Spinach, Collards, Turnips Are Old Stand-Bys

A number of vegetables can be planted in October and cultivated thru the winter so as to keep the family supplied with fresh green food at all times.

Kale, mustard, spinach, turnips, collards, and onions are some of the old stand-bys, says E. B. Morrow, extension horticulturist at State College.

Kale gives a change from collards and turnip greens, he said, and spinach can also be grown more extensively than it has been in the past. He recommended Curled Scotch Kale, Southern Curled Mustard, for their attractive appearance and edibility, although they are not quite so hardy as some of the other types.

The storage of vegetables for winter use is also important, Morrow said. Sweet potatoes and pumpkins keep best in a moderately dry place at a temperature of about 50 degrees. These conditions are best supplied in a sweet potato storage and curing house. The potatoes must be dug before frost and handled carefully to avoid bruises if they keep well.

Cabbages, celery, beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, and Irish potatoes keep best at cool temperatures and in a moderately moist atmosphere. Pitts, hills, and cellars afford good places to keep these crops, Morrow pointed out.

Onions and other bulbous crops keep best in cool temperatures and a relatively dry atmosphere. Onions keep best when stored in slatted crates in order to provide for better ventilation. The temperature should be kept just above freezing when possible, but not allowed to go below.

Control of Colds in Poultry Flock Outlined

Where only a few birds in a poultry flock have colds, prompt isolation will probably check the outbreak. The cause of the trouble, however, should be eliminated. This is usually caused by drafts or poorly ventilated laying houses or by the unsanitary conditions. Check the ventilation and close all cracks and holes that will cause a cross draft. An effective germicide should be kept in the drinking water at all times, and the entire flock should be given a dose of epsom salts at once at the rate of three-quarters of a pound of salts to two and one-half gallons of water. This treatment, together with strict sanitation will do much to control the trouble.
