A Forward Step

The Martin County commissioners took a forward step recently when they approved a full-time health program for this county, and they are to be commended for their action. While the program will necessitate a fairly sizeable expenditure, it holds great opportunities for bettering the health lot of every one of the more than 24,000 people in the county.

Possibly the only objectionable feature to the program is that its services are more or less limited. The suffering of humanity will be lessened not overnight, of course, but in the long run the ledger will show a balance of healthier bodies, clearer minds, and renewed vigor in youth. The establishment of the program can be recognized as one of the most important acts of a board of commissioners in this county in many years, for the service has the promise of proving of more value and worth than any other one, or even two or three departments.

How humane it would be if arrangements could be effected making available the services of the doctor to everyone whose lot it is to suffer unattended by a trained hand. The care of every needy person cannot be expected for the program is not being advanced on so extensive a scale. Much can be accomplished by advancing preventive medicine, and in the control of diseases by the program, but private attention is just out of the question unless added provisions are made. Probably a plan could be worked out whereby not a single person would need to die without the best aid medical science has to offer.

The doctors of this county in years gone by have rendered an untold service to the poor and needy, but it is no more reasonable to expect them to continue that practice than it is to expect you or anyone else to go and work in a mill or factory without remuneration. The new health program partially solves the problem, but there is still much to be accomplished here. Surely, the action of the commissioners in providing the service is a step in the right direction and, to make this step successful, everyone, including the general public, the several professions and servants, should show a willingness to cooperate that the way of relief may be opened to suffering humanity, even unto the humblest and poorest of our fellowmen.

No Brains Needed

Baltimore Evening Sun
In a speech at Indianapolis yesterday, Harry Hopkins made the assertion that social legislation in this country is "swiftly and steadily" moving toward the day when the mass of the people will get enough of the national income to provide a minimum standard of living. Moreover, he added:

"I do not mean a bare subsistence, in a country as rich as this. I mean a good living and modern houses with bathrooms and electric lights and perhaps an automobile. I mean education enough to want these things."

How much education is needed to want an automobile? As much, no doubt, as was possessed by the youth in "Tobacco Road" who got hold of a new Ford and wrecked it the first day. He signed his name by making his mark.

Visit any institution for the feeble-minded and find out how many of the inmates want an automobile. Those that do not may be set aside as constituting the lowest group, mentally, even in such a place.

What's the matter with the man? Does he think one has to be educated to want an automobile? Of course, had he said education enough to enable one to use an automobile sensibly, he would have run to the other extreme; for, if the capacity to drive sensibly is the test, many a Ph.D. would be disqualified. Doubtless one needs some sort of training even to desire a bathroom; but an automobile—why, every village idiot ardently desires, not merely an automobile, but a fire truck at that!

Just An Old Custom

They are making much ado over the wedding of Mrs. Warfield to the Duke of Windsor, and, while there are no strenuous objections to all the hullabaloo, it is to be remembered that getting married is just an old custom for the Baltimore belle.

There is one thing about the event, however, that really overshadows the recent coronation of King George VI. The match is not patterned after an empty old English custom, and probably it is surrounded by more honest-to-goodness sincerity than were the coronation ceremonies despite their extensiveness.

SCHLITZ in "STEINIES" A Treat in Old-Time Taste

TREAT yourself today to Schlitz in "Steinie" Brown Bottles. You will instantly recognize that Schlitz is different... finer... more delicious and satisfying. It brings back memories of mellow, old-time beer in old stone steins. Old-day brewmasters labored day and night to catch this subtle flavor peak. Schlitz brews it uniformly, winter or summer, into every drop by Precise Enzyme Control. At a cost of millions of dollars Schlitz, through research and development, has made the ancient art of brewing scientific and accurate.

Enjoy Schlitz today in the new "Steinie" Brown Bottles... familiar, Tall Brown Bottles... or Cap-Scaled Cans. Each brings you Schlitz, with health benefits of Sunshine Vitamin D.

Schlitz "Steinie" Brown Bottles are compact—lightweight—easy to carry—take less space in your refrigerator. Contents same as regular bottle.

You don't have to cultivate a taste for Schlitz... you will like it on first acquaintance... and ever after.
