

Duke And State Meet At Raleigh Tomorrow—2 P. M.

Hackney-Berlinski Duel is Expected To Be Highlight

MR. THINGAMERJIG

"Mr. Thingamerjig from Williamston, at midway in the northeast section and rooted for both teams. A Carolina supporter but not an alumnus, he rooted for Duke until Hackney made that first and lone touchdown. Then he found he was rooting for the wrong side. He was wearing colored glasses, but he stood up and gave Hackney an all-America salute after that punt return. "I swigger," he said, "that boy Watson sure made a good run."

The above article appeared in the News and Observer, and after inquiring around, we find that the eccentric rooter was none other than Willie Watts, man about town.

state this season. No, he will wait until after the Pitt Panthers travel down to Durham, for, according to reports, there are a couple pretty fair football players on that squad, although if you listen to Duke alumni, Jock Sutherland had a lot to do with the Panther record. Well, maybe, but maybe not. I saw the other day where the Panthers were going to make "Duke Abdicate", but were robbed of this opportunity by the Tar Heels. So—maybe, they won't get mad.

JUST A HINT—NOT A FACT

When Duke plays Pitt tomorrow a week, Coach Wallace Wade will do all within his power to regain the Duke prestige which went with the wind, when Pitt came down to open the Duke horahoe stadium. . . . While everyone is talking about the Panthers not getting an invitation for this year's Rose Bowl game because they are too good, don't forget they were invited out to Pasadena last year by Washington, because the Huskies figured they could beat them. . . . Carolina won't miss Crowell Little as much as expected, for Stirnweiss will be ready to hope into the driver's seat next year. . . . You know, a fellow can't play college football forever. . . . It's going the round that the Teeny Lafferty boy, of Davidson, may finish his gridiron career in the Army. . . . Top notch nomination of the year: The Rambler as leading prognosticator of the country, mainly on account of his picking Carolina over Duke for a decisive victory. . . . And it was!!

Carolina Reds In Lead Over 'Dukes'

Billie Mercer's and Conrad Getzinger's "Carolina Reds" took the lead in their intra-community football schedule last Tuesday afternoon when they downed the "Cowpasture Dukes" by an 18-0 score on their home grounds. The Reds are now leading with six victories to five for the Dukes. Only once have the two teams entered a deadlock which could not be broken in an extra period.

This afternoon the teams are playing in the pasture of the Dukes. Next Tuesday they meet again and on Thanksgiving Day they complete the current season.

Other Big Five Teams Prepare For Thanksgiving

While Duke and N. C. State are participating in the only Big Five battle this week at Raleigh, the other Big Five aggregations are preparing for their annual Thanksgiving Day classes.

Carolina, fresh from its victory over Duke, will be host to the University of Virginia's Cavaliers, at Kenan Stadium, and expects no little trouble, although the Virginians have played erratic at times.

Coach Wolf has decided to take full advantage of this game for next year. Virginia is expected to have one of the best teams in the south.

Wake Forest and Davidson are hard at work for their holiday clash to take place at Charlotte. Neither team has an outstanding record this year but are determined to stay out of the Big Five cellar, the bottom place to be decided at this contest.

such stars as Jess Tatum, end; Artful Art Rooney, back, and Louie Mark, center, of State, and Eric (The Red) Tipton, back; Captain Woody Lipscomb, guard; Herb Hudgins, end; Joe Brunansky, tackle and Dan Hill, center, of Duke.

The State-Duke game is an all-star attraction and a capacity crowd is looked for.

THE END OF A PERFECT "37" IS JUST AROUND

Well, the 1937 football season is on its last leg with the majority of the squads closing their season this week-end, others finishing up with a Thanksgiving Day special or on Saturday after the holiday, and a few to end gridiron contests on the 4th of December.

The alumni of the University of North Carolina feel that they have had one of the most successful seasons in years, due mainly to the decisive victory over Duke. The Tar Heels will end their season with the annual Turkey clash with Virginia's Cavaliers.

TOUGH SCHEDULES!!!

Taking a peep at the schedules of some of the major universities and colleges in the United States, the Rambler can readily see why the Rose Bowl market is not glutted with undefeated prospects.

To his way of thinking, the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian, had the toughest schedule of the season with out a single breather, and practically all the leading teams. The Frogs opened with Ohio State, and then went on to Arkansas, Tulsa, Texas A. & M., Fordham, Baylor, Centenary, Texas, and still have Rice and Southern Methodist to go before the sound of the gong. How can they expect a perfect record—against that opposition.

Then, take a look at the lineup Carnegie Tech had to go through. They started off with N. Y. U. and Purdue, then played Notre Dame, Temple, Pitt, Duquesne, Michigan State and have Holy Cross on Saturday. It's a known fact those Skibos couldn't expect any vacation and they were a long way from being fooled for they have won only two games to date.

Carl Snaveley's Big Red also had a killer, with Penn State, Colgate, Princeton, Syracuse, Yale, Columbia and Dartmouth, and still have Penn to play on Thanksgiving. In spite of this tough one, Cornell has done well for itself winning four and tying one to date.

Stanford, out on the coast, also was a glut for punishment when Tiny Thornhill's charges went up against Santa Clara, Oregon, U. C. L. A., Washington, Oregon State, Southern California, Washington State and have yet to tackle California, Columbia and two games at Honolulu. There is little wonder that they have lived a miserable life as far as national rating is concerned.

After getting off to a bad start in its first three games against Oklahoma, I. S. U. and Tulsa, the Rice Owls have been the surprise team of the country. They continued with Texas, Auburn, Arkansas, Texas A. & M., and will be on the warpath against Texas Christian, Baylor and Southern Methodist during the rest of the season.

When you stop to think that almost every school in the Southwest conference has less than 1000 men students and yet, all have outstanding teams, you begin to wonder whether they really raise cattle or football players down in the Panhandle section.

Enough of a good thing is all right, but too much is—well, it's just TOO MUCH.

THE RAMBLER'S ALL-STAR-AND-SO

Due to the fact that The Rambler got through with no broken bones on his All-State selections, he is going to pick a team, an ALL-STAR team, made up of opponents of the Big Five teams, who have played in the
