Miss Katherine Harrison Weds C. B. Clark, Jr. Here

The Memorial Baptist Church was the scene of a beautiful white wedding on Friday evening, November 25th, at eight o'clock, when Miss Katherine Taylor Harrison and Claude Baxter Clark, Jr., were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Smith, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. John Hardy, rector of the Church of the Advent.

Around the choir loft ivy and smilax were draped over a white foundation, and palms and ferns intermingled with baskets of chrysanthemums were banked before the altar. White candles in tall standards were used before this background to make a beautiful setting for the ceremony. Pews reserved for the family were marked with bunches of small chrysanthemums and ribbons.

The organist, Miss Rebecca Harrison, sister of the bride, played selections from Nevin, Debussy, Liszt and Shumann, and the vested choir sang "At Dawning" by Cadman, and "Because" by D'Hardelot. Mrs. J. H. Smith, soloist, sang, "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was used as the bridal processional and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional. MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose" was played during the ceremony.

The ushers were William F. Clark, brother of the bridegroom, J. Paul Simpson, cousin of the groom; Edwin Peel, and George H. Harrison, Jr., cousin of the bride.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Blanche Harrison, as maid of honor, and Miss Sarah Freeman Cone as her bridesmaid.

They wore identical gowns of antique moire taffeta made bouffant style with ostrich tip headdresses. They carried all white garland bouquets of carnations bound with satin, ostrich tips and tulle.

The bride entered with her father, Mr. C. Augustus Harrison, by whom she was given in marriage. Her wedding gown was of white duchess satin, made on princess lines with long sleeves and high neck. The skirt of her gown extended into a court train. Her veil of illusion edged with alencon lace was held in place by a tiara of small calla lilies. The bride's bouquet was all white made of valley lilies centered with five white orchids. Her only ornament was an antique cameo which belonged to her maternal grandmother.

The bridegroom's present to the bride was an emerald brooch that belonged to his great grandmother Winterbotham, of England, the Winterbotham family being prominent in the affairs of London several generations ago.

Attending the groom, as his best man, was his brother, Mr. Albert Leslie Clark, of Columbia, S. C.

Mrs. Harrison, mother of the bride, wore a violet crepe gown, and Mrs. Clark, mother of the groom, wore purple velvet, and their flowers were shoulder corsages of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Blanche Anderson, maternal grandmother of the bride, was gowned in black silk lace, and Mrs. W. R. Fowden, maternal grandmother of the groom, wore black crepe. They had shoulder corsages of gardenias.

After the wedding service, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison entertained at a reception for members of the bridal party, the choir and out-of-town guests.

Lovely vases of white chrysanthemums and snapdragons were used throughout the lower floor. White roses, narcissi, snapdragons and carnations in a silver bowl, flanked by burning tapers in silver candelabra, formed the centerpiece for the dining table. Ivy and smilax banked on the mantle and around a silver punch bowl completed the decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Harrison received the guests and introduced them to the receiving line, composed of the bridal party with the parents and grandparents of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Green invited them to the punch table, where Mrs. Anna Harrison was assisted in serving by Mrs. P. H. Brown and Mrs. P. B. Cone. Then Mrs. Elbert Peel directed them to the gift room where Mrs. Charles Mobley and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Coburn asked the guests to register, and Mrs. Joel Muse invited them to the dining room where Misses Ollie Marie Roberson and Josephine Harrison and Mesdames J. L. Harris, Jr., of Raleigh, and C. H. Godwin, Jr., and J. P. Simpson served ice cream, cake, mints and nuts, which carried out the color scheme of green and white.

Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Spivey bade the guests goodnight.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Clark left for a northern wedding trip.

Mrs. Clark's ancestors were among the original settlers of Martin, Tyrrell and Edgecombe counties. She is a graduate of Sullins College and also completed a course in medical technology at the Medical College of Virginia, since which time she has been technician at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Richmond and the local offices of Drs. Saunders and Brown.

Mr. Clark, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clark, graduated from the Pharmacy School of the University of North Carolina, where he was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. Since graduation he has been associated with his father in the Clark Drug Company here. Maternally he is descended from a long line of eminent surgeons in England and his great, great uncle on the Fowden line was Lord Mayor of London.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Barbara Leonard and Albert L. Clark, of Columbia, S. C., Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Butler, Thomas Weeks and Frank Snowden, of Elizabeth City; Misses Hattie and Margaret Everett, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Everett and Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert Eyerett, of Palmyra; Dr. Speight Anderson, of Rocky Mount; Mrs. Blanche Anderson and Mr. Sam Anderson, of Tarboro; Miss Margaret Carter Jones, of Richmond; Mr. Paul Salsbury, of Scotland Neck; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rowe, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Harris, Jr., of Raleigh, and Mr. and Mrs. N. DeMau, of Rocky Mount; Miss Mary Fort Carroll, of Wilson, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Roy, of Asheboro.

Immediately following the rehearsal on Thanksgiving night Miss Sarah Cone entertained the bridal party and choir at an informal cake cutting.

The reception hall and living rooms were decorated with handsome vases of chrysanthemums and snapdragons, and on the sideboard in the dining room a low vase of pom-pom chrysanthemums was flanked by five branch candelabra.

The arrangement of the dining table was very lovely. A huge silver bowl of tiny chrysanthemums, roses and snapdragons was used for the center around which tall white tapers burned. The three-tiered wedding cake, on which stood a miniature bride and groom, was at one end of the table, and from it the immediate bridal party pulled the ribbons receiving appropriate favors. The bride cut the cake and received the wedding ring in her slice.

Canses of green and white carrying out the color scheme were in the wedding bell and slipper shapes. These, with sandwiches, pickles, nuts and olives, were on the other end of the table.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Simpson served fruit punch.

STATE DRUM CORPS DRESSES UP!

Raleigh—Snappy new uniforms have been secured for the drum and bugle corps at State College as the result of voluntary donations by cadets in the R.O.T.C. regiment. The colorful suits are modeled above by Lieut. S. C. Holmes, of Cambridge, N. Y., (left) and Sgt. Ed Young, of Oxford. Holmes is a senior in mechanical engineering, and Young, a graduate of the Masonic Orphanage, is a junior in electrical engineering. Major Kenneth G. Althaus, R.O.T.C. executive officer, aided the cadets in their campaign for new uniforms. The new dress includes a bright red coat with white pocket trimmings, white oversea caps with the red insignia of State College, white leggings, and light drab trousers. College classes of individual members are indicated by white sleeve stripes. Cadet Capt. G. V. Hanna, of Mooresville, is commander of the drum and bugle corps, which is currently composed of 45 students.

WHAT is this thing called swing? Some say it's hot; some say it isn't. And all the swing bands say that they are "making music." A swing band knows the difference between good and bad in the music they work in. All a band leader has to do is play it the way he feels it and guide his band in the same direction and it can't help being good music. The photo above, of Kay Kayser's orchestra in action gives you the idea. In the October issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine Dorothy Baker, noted writer, adds "Swing Band Leader" to the magazine's "Autobiography of America, 1938" series.

B. C. Mayo's Horses Win Large Purses

Chief Counsel, owned by B. C. Mayo, of Tarboro, led the two-year-old pacers in 1937 with a total of $11,339.75 and again this year topped the three-year-old pacers with $10,308.40. This does not include his winnings in any open event. His record, 1:57 3-4 is the fastest for a three-year-old pacer on record including the former world record of 1:58.

Blackstone, also owned by Mr. Mayo, two-year-old and full brother to Chief Counsel, won a total of $14,954.00 in 1938 to lead all pacers regardless of age in money during 1938. This sum appears to be the largest amount ever won by a two-year-old pacer in a season.
