

Stabilized Peanut Market Is Assured For Coming Season

of the picking season. Holland declared, and fully as many cooperative warehouses, where the government scale of cash prices will be paid will be in operation this year as last and possibly more, he said.

In the meantime, due to the scarcity of old crop peanuts, a large quantity of which both in the Virginia belt and the southern producing areas were diverted from the regular channels of trade into oil under the surplus removal program of last year open market prices for peanuts are at present well above the new-crop prices fixed under the government program. Whether those prices will hold when the new crop begins to come in or will drop to the program minimum, remains to be seen. But whatever is the market trend, peanut farmers are assured at least of a minimum price for peanuts this season equal to the prices they received last season.

For the diversion of peanuts to oil and by products, the program provides for payments to associations of producers representing the difference between the purchase price and the basic price for diversion, plus an allowance per ton for handling the peanuts diverted.

Peanuts acquired under the program may be resold by the cooperatives to the edible trade provided that prices rise above the purchase price plus allowances for warehousing, shrinkage and other costs, when such allowances vary with the type and grade of peanuts. They average approximately $6.75 per ton for peanuts stored four months.

In the operation of the program, it is expected that a substantial quantity 1939 crop surplus peanuts, including the lower grades, will be diverted immediately and not warehoused by the association.

The 1939 crop was forecast on

Fate Of Markets Hinges On Success Of Control Vote

Congress, an appropriation of more than 100 million dollars for the Commodity Credit Corporation was voted today. The American Farm Bureau, the State Bureau and your county farm bureaus appealed to Congress and the amount was appropriated at the last minute. Had it not been for that action, the Commodity Credit Corporation would have been crippled and could not today come to the aid of the tobacco growers in this section," Mr. Cooper explained.

Just how successfully the proposed plan will work out remains to be seen, but it is certain that there is now a brighter hope for the tobacco grower than there was before the Farm Bureau officials, farm leaders and government men held their conferences in Washington City this week.

To carry on its work, the organization is launching a drive for 1,000 Farm Bureau members in this county. The facts prove that the additional money a farmer will receive for about twenty-five pounds of tobacco as a result of the bureau activities will more than offset the cost of his membership in the organization.

Virginians Are Planning Good Will Tour In State

Preliminary plans for a good will tour into eastern North Carolina were formulated this week by a group of Virginians. Ellis L. Loveless, assistant business manager of the Norfolk Newspapers, Incorporated, announcing that between 25 and 30 Norfolk citizens would make the trip.

Traveling in several cars and buses, the touring party plans to leave Norfolk early on the morning of September 30 and make numerous stops in this section of the State, reaching here about 1:30 that afternoon. Norfolk's mayor will accompany the group.

Mr. Loveless stated that the group would extend a hearty invitation to all North Carolinians to visit Norfolk on October 7 when the University of North Carolina and V. P. I. football teams meet there for the first time in a number of years.

Church Conference In Session Here

By EDGAR J. HAYES

The district conference, comprised of the Religious Educational Conference and the W. H. and F. M. Society mass meeting of the Edenton district of the Albemarle Annual conference of the A. M. E. Zion church, is now in session. All sessions are being held at the Williams Chapel church on Rhodes Street, with Elder N. S. Harris, presiding.

The conference is graced with the presence of Rt. Rev. Paris A. Wallace, of the Fourth Episcopal district of the Zion connection. With him is Dr. Williams, of the Elizabeth City district together with other interesting visitors. The bishop is making an observation tour and is very pleased, it seems, at the results he sees here.

The sessions began Wednesday morning with Elder Harris presiding, at which time the opening sermon was preached by Rev. J. A. P. Mackey, of Windsor. A very fine sermon was heard at this time by an anxious group. Following the sermon, the Holy Communion was given of which many partook.

On Wednesday evening the annual sermon was delivered by Dr. George W. Gaines, of Hertford. Dr. Gaines is definitely one of the best preachers in every way in the church. All enjoyed the message he brought.

Among others who have preached during the conference are: Revs. S. P. Watts and W. V. Ormond. The address by the presiding elder was another highlight.

Today the women of the conference are holding their sessions. Fresh from the conventional meeting in Detroit they have much to recount and legislate. With a fine leadership this is one of our very active auxiliaries.

It is inspiring to have had this distinguished group with us.

Judgment In Counterfeit Case Continued By Court

Prayer for judgment was continued by Judge I. M. Meekins in Federal court at Fayetteville this week in the case charging F. W. Sparrow with passing worthless bills. Entering a plea of nolo contendere, the defendant maintained that he did not know the bills were worthless.

The plea was substantiated by evidence by the defendant's brother, who was sentenced to prison for ten years in the case charging him with manufacturing worthless bills. It was pointed out in the evidence that the defendant, charged with manufacturing the bogus money, had used it in paying off a debt to his brother.

Enjoys Long Walk From Washington

"It was a long walk, but I enjoyed it," Mr. Jesse T. Price, monument salesman and insurance man, said following a nine-hour trek home from Washington a few days ago. "Your socks get kinder hot, and even a light brief case weighs heavily when you get up around twenty miles," Mr. Price said.

Working with a representative of his company over in Beaufort County, Mr. Price was to catch the bus to Williamston and the other representative was to return to New Bern. Missing the 8 o'clock bus by minutes, Mr. Price decided he would walk out a short distance on the Williamston road and catch a ride. He explained that a casual gait was maintained, but after walking a mile or two the cars seemed to speed faster and faster, he decided to come on home under his own steam. Upon reaching Old Ford he filled up with water, and set a regular gait from that point, reaching home the following morning about 5 o'clock.

Starting out with six cigars in his pocket, Mr. Price said he kept one lit in his mouth as a warning light for motorists. Some of the motorists would see him and turn out, but others would hold to the side of the road and then blow their horns to frighten you, Mr. Price said, adding that that was nothing but pure meanness.

He was sore for a few days, but as for the walk, he did not mind it for in years past he had pedaled a bicycle and walked miles daily delivering mail on rural mail routes out of Williamston.

It was reported that the locals will present their best team of the season and Washington also will bring over a high calibre aggregation. The first game will start at 3 p. m. and all are urged to witness the Sunday afternoon special.
