Miss Lora Sleeper Has An Enjoyable Vacation

Home Agent Tells Of Trip To Europe

Our second day in Paris we spent as we wished. My roommate was leaving me at Paris for Italy and our first visit was at the spacious American Express office, near the opera house, to secure Italian currency. The currency of France and Italy was pretty and one hesitated to spend it without saving a souvenir and yet this would be most expensive. The office was nearly a mile from Hotel St. Anne but once we were in this section there were many shops with attractive merchandise. Dear Readers: A young woman who had come abroad on the Queen Mary with us was working in Paris at Landon's. We visited this small shop upstairs in back rooms and found the young woman. She was from Randolph-Macon college and this was her second summer in Paris. She told us she was learning French. The store carried gloves, handkerchiefs, perfume, petit point bags and French liquors. The shop had not been recommended by the American Express and this American girl was responsible for our knowing about it. Mr. Landon, the proprietor, told us Miss Frances was his "shake hand woman." We learned that she received no pay and was a privileged character in the shop. She came to work when she wished and left when she cared to. We purchased kislav gloves, perfume and handkerchiefs and wandered on to other shops. It was soon noon and we returned to the hotel for dinner. We had debated what we might do to pay Mr. Demeir for his Swiss chocolates, which we had a part in eating up. We had hunted all morning for the chocolate without results. After dinner my roommate continued shopping while I remained at the hotel. She returned late in the afternoon reporting she had found the chocolate after a walking tour of Paris. We wrapped the chocolate carefully and wrote on it from two "penitent mice." Mr. Demeir reported his children were very much pleased. After dinner that night we were saying "Where to?" There were several of us who attended the "Folies." Our guides had told us they would spend the time with their families. We were anxious to know as much about the gay city as possible in the time allotted for our stay. The admission charge was $1.50 and we decided the large part of it paid for the colorful costumes, lighting and scenery. These were all beautiful. We Americans were happy that the lights were dimmed in a few of the acts. We needed no artificial coloring that evening, our blushes of shame were enough. The lack of applause told us the French audience did not approve the sordid moral standards revealed. We wondered if Sally Rand would not have blushed too, at least her fan dance would have been an antique. The guides told us that France had made little progress socially since the war but much of her money had been spent to rehabilitate her war-torn families and also for reparations. Another day had passed and the next day we were to go to Versailles for the day. The weather had been pleasant thus far and with the interesting buildings in Paris we were sure we had something in store for us next day. The next day was Sunday but no one had mentioned church services to us. Sincerely, Lora E. Sleeper.

Brotherhood Dinner Well Attended Here

The Brotherhood Dinner of the Williamston Christian church was held in the Woman's Club on Wednesday evening with ninety-five in attendance. The excellent meal was prepared and served by Circle Number Two of the Woman's Council under the supervision of its leader, Mrs. J. O. Manning.

The radio broadcast of the address of the president of the international convention of the Disciples of Christ was heard with profit.

Impromptu remarks were made by Mrs. J. C. Manning, president of the Woman's Council; Norman K. Harrison, treasurer of the church, said that the church had closed its year with all accounts paid and the budget for the new year underwritten; Elbert S. Peel spoke for the men and the church board; James C. Manning spoke for the Bible school, speaking especially concerning the fine financial support of the school.

Rev. John L. Goff acted as master of ceremonies and indicated that the disciples were at work on 11 foreign fields and 41 nations of the world. He also said that the local church had supported the whole program of the Brotherhood for almost three minutes. It cost $2.00 per second to finance the whole brotherhood task.
