

Cotton Houses Are Seen For South In The Near Future

Cotton Building Fabric Gives Promise As New Outlet For Product

Washington, D. C.—Houses built from cotton are a dream which may come true on a large scale in the not far-distant future, the National Cotton Council revealed recently in reviewing experimental work conducted with cotton building fabrics.

Department of Agriculture experiments in cotton house building in the South have shown that cotton coverings may be used successfully on both interior and exterior walls as well as for roofing. Experiments are also being made with cotton insulation material.

"Cotton construction lends itself to prefabrication and mass-production, it is aesthetically pleasing, and it produces houses of neat and colorful appearance," a department of agriculture spokesman reports. "The houses are also highly fire-resistant, and last, but far from least from the Southern point of view, cotton houses could provide an outlet for a considerable quantity of the present burdensome surplus. We can hope to see the day when the South can be housed in buildings made of material grown on its own farms."

Ain't Got But Half A Shirt Today, Maw

Memphis, Tenn.—Do you wake up in the morning with only half a shirt to put on?

Figuratively millions of Americans do, the National Cotton Council says, pointing to the vast shortage in cotton garments and household articles in the United States.

Estimates indicate that existing personal or family inventories are as follows: dress shirts, 2.6; underwear, 2.5; pajamas, 2; sheets, per family, 4; pillow cases, per family, 4; towels, per family, 8; overalls, 1.5; work pants, 1.5, and work shirts, 1.25. To bring American personal and family inventories up to a point that would permit two changes a week would require approximately 1,500,000 bales of cotton above the quantity already consumed domestically, the Council said.

Johnston County Farmers Plan To Mop Their Cotton

Farmers of Johnston County are planning to mop their cotton to control boll weevils, and are showing more interest in diversified farming than ever before, says M. A. Morgan, extension farm agent.

Local Dodge Dealer Back From Meeting With Recent News

Bringing with him the information that the country's motor vehicle sales were greater for January, 1940, than in any January in automobile history—likely still incomplete February records likely to show that more new cars and trucks were sold in the second month of the year than in any previous February—bar none—Mr. William Everett, of the local Dodge firm, Dixie Motors, Inc., has just returned from Raleigh where he participated in a meeting called by the Dodge Division of Chrysler Corporation and attended by Dodge dealers of many other cities as well as by factory sales executives.

"I was greatly impressed," said Mr. Everett, on his return, "by reports read at the meeting, of large numbers of orders for new Dodge cars that were being booked by dealers in all sections of the country. Dealers with whom I compared experiences were generally agreed that the number of people who will exchange the cars they now operate for 1940 models will be much greater proportionately than in former seasons."

"The reasons for this decidedly favorable indication are found in the general economic upswing as well as in the fact that the impressive beauty of our 1940 Luxury Liner does much to increase the new-car buying urge."

"Dealers at the meeting were surprised at being introduced to two unusually interesting new Dodge models—one a gorgeously appointed four-door sedan called the "Dodge Hollywood Model," the other a smart convertible coupe with a top that is raised or lowered by the power of the engine."

"Pleasing as the prospect of operating a new 1940 car is for the intending new-car buyer, there is similar satisfaction awaiting the used-car customer. Because when new-car buying proceeds at a lively rate, the used-car customer is assured of wider choice and relatively greater newness in the selection of his used transportation."
