

Tarboro's Cubs Take Third Straight From Williamston, 11 To 1

Don Parker, Cub Hurler, Pitches No-Hit Contest

Don Parker, Tarboro hurler, went on the mound for the Cubs last night in Tarboro and when he left the hill in the ninth, he had walked into baseball's hall of fame with a no-hit ball game. The victims, Williamston. The score 11-1.

X. Brown started on the mound for the Martins and was touched for three hits and three walks during his one-third inning stay. "Big Leaguer" Beard took over at this time, with the score 5-0 against him and carried on throughout the contest.

Farm and Home Week To Be Held On July 29-Aug. 2

The 37th annual Farm and Home Week will be held on the State College campus July 29-August 2. Officials have planned to make this year's convention one of the most enjoyable ever held. Recreation, entertainment and education will go hand in hand in a well-balanced program. For complete details on this event, write to Dan Paul, Secretary, Farm and Home Week, State College, Raleigh.

RABID SUPPORTERS

One of the most uncalled for, unsportsmanlike and unnecessary exhibitions was staged at the local baseball park last Sunday afternoon, causing much comment from the visitors.

It may not have been intentional, we do not know, but two or three rabid supporters of the Martins singled out certain players to direct their remarks upon concerning the play, mainly base stealing and batting.

We take no sides, but merely ask that you know the conditions as they are and not as they appear, before you start howling. Those players on the diamond hear you, despite the fact that they seem not to, and it seems that the manager is the man to correct such mistakes, not the "second-guesser" in the stands.

Every Martin has made mistakes and will continue as long as they stay in Class D baseball, but a word of encouragement will carry them a lot further than the remarks of "wolves".

Further Changes Are Expected In The Martin Roster

According to a statement from Manager Red Swain a number of changes were made in the roster of the Williamston Martins over the week-end, and several more are expected momentarily.

"It looks as though hard luck continues to follow us," Ole Man Swain said this morning, announcing that Gene Albritton has a sore arm, and was placed on the suspended list for a week. Aaron Hartsoe remains on the active list but is troubled very much with a bad knee.

Udde Levin, pitcher; Frank Kozak, third baseman and outfielder, and Brice McCay, outfielder, were released last week-end, and Bert Stotler was reinstated. Stotler, hit on the head in Goldsboro several weeks ago by a batted ball, played the first time last night since he was injured.

Del Breeze, screwball pitcher who is rated an unlimited player, arrived here yesterday and it was rumored that he will be given a chance with the Martins.

"We still have the makings of a good ball club and when the pitching staff settles down, we will be on our way to the top of the Coastal Plain loop."

Requirements Of A Good Egg Storage Cellar

An ideal egg storage cellar has a dirt floor so that more moisture is present. Likewise, there should be a ventilating window on one side near the top. Slatted platforms should be built on the ground so as to keep the eggs several inches off the floor. Market eggs at least twice weekly during hot weather.

Wilson Tobs Down Williamston 11 to 9 Here Last Friday

Second Game Postponed As Father Time Runs Long Race

Manager Frank Rodgers' Wilson Tobs defeated Williamston in the first game of a scheduled double bill here last Friday night by the score of 11-9. With the first contest getting underway late, showers holding up play on two occasions and two hours and forty-four minutes of playing time recorded, the league president and managers of the two clubs went into conference and decided that it would be best to postpone the second game as even five innings could not be completed before twelve o'clock.

Wilson had two big innings, scoring five runs in the third off three doubles, a single and two walks, and five more in the sixth on four hits and three walks.

The Martins counted a run in the first inning on a single, fielder's choice, stolen base and Rock's hit. In the third the locals chalked up two more on a walk, Keller's double and Rock's hit. Beard homered on the gym in the fourth. Two hits and two walks scored a run in the seventh. In the eighth the Martins counted twice on three walks, a single and an outfield fly. Opening the ninth, Slakis tripled and scored on an infield out. Manager Swain, pinch-hitting for Levin, hit for a circuit, his clout going high above the scoreboard but the rally ended there.

Brown started on the mound for Williamston, and during his four and one-third innings was touched for six hits and six runs, fanning three and walking six. Udde Levin finished the game, giving up nine hits.

Keller led the Martins at bat, with three safeties.

Shipping Season For Lambs To Start Soon

It's almost time to start shipping spring lambs and L. I. Case, extension animal husbandman of N. C. State College, says that the next few weeks will be the period when the wise farmer increases his income by fattening and finishing his lambs well. He will do it with an adequate and balanced feed program.

"Of first importance in feeding lambs," Case says, "is milk and plenty of it. See that the ewes are fed for milk production. A bountiful supply of green winter cover crops, preferably crimson clover, supplemented by a mixture of corn and oats should take care of this."

"Creep feeding the lambs usually pays well. Partition off a bright corner of the barn or shed and leave a small opening or two that will exclude the ewes but admit the lambs. A good ration to use in the creep is: Seven parts of ground corn, two parts of wheat bran, and one part of either cottonseed meal or soybean meal. In addition to the grain, a small rack full of choice hay should be kept where the lambs can nibble it as they please."

Last year the State College Extension Service cooperated in conducting lamb pools which netted farmers $28,082.61 for 4,373 animals weighing 317,950 pounds. Case estimates that these lambs brought fully one cent per pound more through grading and cooperative selling than they would have brought under the usual method of selling.

"This means," the specialist declared, "a total of $3,179.50 increased returns to the producers. Further, it is logical that other lambs sold in the territory where cooperative marketing was done brought a higher price than they would have otherwise."

The lamb pools will be continued this year.

Jimmy Brown Has Operation On Nose

Friends of Jimmy Brown, shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals, will be delighted to hear that he is recovering from a serious nose injury received in Pittsburgh about a month ago by a batted ball that young Brown failed to catch as the sun was shining in his eyes.

His doctor, as well as his teammates, not knowing Jimmy's condition was as bad as it was, had decided to wait until the end of the season to re-set the five breaks in his nose. But he was rushed from New York last Sunday to St. Louis where he underwent the operation. His condition has been very serious but he is believed now to be out of danger.

Jimmy's wife, who is at his bedside, has kept his mother, Mrs. Dare Brown, of Jamesville, well informed as to his condition.

Bulls, Like Many Other Animals, Are Color-Blind

Another popular superstition has been knocked down by science. Bulls do not get any madder at red than they do at any other color, reports the Belter Vision Institute, adding that experiments have demonstrated that bulls, like many other animals, are color-blind. Instead of seeing colors in the same way as do human beings, the objects in their visual world appear as shades of grey. Any moving object attracts a bull's attention and it is just as effective to wave a blue cloth as a red cloth. But science notwithstanding, the matadors probably will stick to red. The crowds will like color, anyway.
