Trays and Their Snacks Make Summer Bow with Porch, Lawn Furnishings

Trays and tray snacks are "in" and as the weather becomes warm-er and porch and lawn furnishings begin to appear they will be coming "out", filled with good things for hearty outdoor appetites.

Never has there been such an array of trays - large trays, small trays, trays fitted with glass containers for piquant relishes, luscious jams and spreads - trays that are patterned after the Lazy Susan of our

Miss Allgood grandmother's day, tin trays, wood trays, in fact all manner of trays. But what shall we serve on them? First, let us consider the hors d'oeuvres or appetizer tray. Those gay affairs on which tempting tidbits, hot or cold, are fastened by means of colored toothpicks.

In the planning of the hors d'oeuvres tray, as in planning the dinner menus, contrast in flavor, color and consistency are important factors. The variety may be large or small. If the hostess is alone in preparing and serving she will do well to specialize in two or three appetizers, making them especially savory. If she has plenty of time and assistance, too, she may like a more elaborate service.

The following suggestions are of a varied nature. Some are for toothpick appetizers, others for canapes and still others for supper snacks that will be nice to serve for porch suppers and the like.

Hors d'Oeuvres Suggestions On a platter or small tray arrange a border of large perfect strawberries and tips of fresh pineapple. Pile powdered sugar in the center. Serve very cold. The berries should be well washed but not hulled. The pineapple tips are prepared by cutting around each "eye" of the fresh pineapple with an apple corer.

Wash and hull large strawberries. Slit the tip of each and into it insert a wedge-shaped piece of pineapple which has been sweetened. Fasten on a toothpick and insert it into a holder. (Use frozen strawberries if fresh are not available.)

Cut spicy American Cheese in small cubes and fasten on toothpicks with small sweet gherkins. Skewer cooked cocktail sausages on toothpicks between slices or pieces of bread and butter pickle. Remove the viscera from large fat shrimp, marinate in French dressing. Drain, fasten on toothpicks and arrange around a bowl of seasoned and rather tart mayonnaise. Wrap almond-stuffed olives in small pieces of bacon, fastening the bacon in place with toothpicks. Broil until bacon is crisp. Remove from broiler, insert fresh toothpicks if original ones are burned and serve hot. Stuffed celery and celery curls are a good addition to the appetizing tray. For a very flavorful stuffing, work cream cheese with cream until of easy spreading consistency. Pack lightly into celery stalks, filling them only a little more than half full. Make a groove down the center and in it put caviar; sprinkle caviar with a small amount of lemon juice, cover with cheese and serve very cold. Peanut butter, thinned somewhat with cream or a tart cooked dressing makes a popular filling.

Leave for Myrtle Beach Messrs. C. B. Leggett, J. Paul Simpson and Garland Coltrane will leave tomorrow for Myrtle Beach where they will attend an insurance meeting.

Returns from Raleigh Mrs. W. J. Hodges is returning this evening from Raleigh where she has been visiting her son, Mr. W. P. Hodges, and family.
