The lovely home was particularly attractive in its decorations. Flowers carried out the color schemes in the various rooms. In the living room yellow roses and yellow and brown dahlias were used. Bowls of red roses and white chrysanthemums were placed in the dining room. Rose gladioli and zinnias were effective against the gray background in the hall and in the den and breakfast room, red dahlias and bitter sweet were attractively arranged. On the punch table, bitter sweet and ivy were interlaced.

In the receiving line were the hostesses, Mrs. Eason wearing white satin with gardenias in her hair; Miss Taylor, a green crepe gown and a talisman rose corsage and Miss Manning's gown was of soldier blue with a red rose corsage. The honoree wore a yellow and gold gown and her corsage was of talisman roses. Mrs. Dunn, a bride of the summer chose a white dress with yellow roses and Mrs. N. R. Manning, a recent bride wore a yellow and black taffeta gown with red roses.

Mrs. W. H. Crawford, who was also honored, it being her 66th birthday, served punch during the evening. She was assisted by Mrs. N. R. Manning. After four progressions of bride Mrs. G. H. Harrison, Jr., was presented high score, a sewing kit. Mrs. Francis Barnes was given sachet powder for second high and Mrs. Henry Harrison received a box of soap for consolation. The honoree was given silver in her selected pattern.

A salad course with beaten biscuits and ham sandwiches and tea was served by the hostesses. After this Miss Harrison was presented a shower of presents from those attending. She received many lovely gifts in linen, crystal, china and silver.
