

Drivers Should Use Caution On Roads

With several thousand men at work on North Carolina highways this fall, the Highway Safety Division this week called the attention of all Tar Heel motorists to some of the dangers incident to highway construction and maintenance jobs.

The repairing of highways damaged by the recent floods, together with the normal construction and maintenance activity, will result in an unusual volume of work on State highways this fall, Hocutt said, and this will mean that motorists will need to be more alert than usual.

In the first place, all this highway work will necessitate thousands of men being at work daily on the same highways over which hundreds of thousands of motor vehicles will be operating. And unless motorists employ courtesy, caution and common sense and slow down when they see a flagman or a "Men Working" sign some of these highway workers may be killed or injured, the safety director stated.

But highway construction and maintenance work does not present hazards to the workmen alone, he pointed out, for there are certain dangers incident to this work which will confront the motorists. Drivers on the road at night should be alert for warning signs and flares marking the approach to road construction and repair projects, and particularly the approach to temporary wooden bridges where new bridges are under construction or old ones are being widened. A driver who is going too fast and is not watching the roadway closely could easily smash into a barricade at such a point and have a serious smash-up. "The state does all it can by putting out warning signs and setting out flares for the protection not only of its workmen but also of the traveling public," said Director Hocutt. "It is squarely up to the motorists of this State to heed these warning devices."

CONSERVATION MONTH
On The Farm and in The Home

October

In line with Ma Figg's thrifty plan, fresh fruits are on October's table. And when they've eaten what they can, they can what they can't as they are able. Thus they enjoy a toothsome spread in winter time upon their bread.

And Ma's preserves have magic powers: They're flavored with the hum of bees and trills of larks, songs sung by flowers while dancing with a summer breeze. All these are pleasant to remember when months arrive that end in "ember."

Here are timely suggestions from State College specialists for the month of October:
A. D. Stuart, seed specialist, says early planted small grains have a distinct advantage over later plantings in the matter of yield, a fact on which growers should capitalize. If the wheat, oats and barley sown are not resistant to smut, the seed should be treated. Then, too, all seed planted should have germination and purity tests.

Robert Schmidt, associate horticulturist of the Experiment Station, reminds growers to harvest their sweet potatoes before the heavy frosts which come first during the last days of October. Careful harvesting will prevent much bruising, which, in turn, will reduce storage losses. The potatoes should be graded in the field, packed in crates or baskets, and placed in storage with as little handling as possible. Farmers who are interested in better seed could improve their own stock by selecting seed potatoes in the field at digging time.

Lloyd Weeks, extension tobacco specialist, says tobacco growers can make substantial savings by taking apart their tobacco flues and treating them with waste motor oil. After receiving a coat of oil, the flues should be placed on tier poles in the barn. Such treatment will cause them to last three to four times as long.

John Arey, extension dairyman, passes along a couple of suggestions. First, he says dairy herds should be culled this month. Medium to low producing cows which paid only a small profit on pasture this summer will not pay when placed on high-priced winter feed.

Second, he urges farmers to attend county and State dairy cattle shows this fall. The show ring, he says, is the place where breed type standards are fixed. It is also a splendid place for breeders to compare their animals and to advertise their surplus stock.

E. C. Blair, extension agronomist, adds a good word for winter cover crops. "Farmers who have not seeded winter cover crops and annual legumes, such as Austrian winter peas and hairy vetch, should do so by all means this month," he says. "Also, if you haven't already cut your tobacco and cotton stalks, get the job done as soon as possible. Stalks standing through the winter afford an ideal hiding place for insect pests that will attack your crop next year."

Paul Kime, experiment station agronomist, advises growers to keep their cotton picked out so as to prevent weather damage in the field. Planting seed should be saved from cotton that has had but little rain on it.

October is a busy month for poultrymen because the old poultry year overlaps the new, says T. T. Brown, extension poultryman. Some of the things the poultry growers should do now are: Select next year's breeding pen or mark the birds to be selected later; keep the hens and pul-
