Finishing School Needed

There's the finishing school for milady, for the dancer and for countless others, but the millions who have to go out to live are too often equipped with only raw ideas to meet raw situations

It does seem possible that a finishing touch could be applied to the common man's way of life that his life may be brought into close harmony with the common principles underlying the general advancement of all mankind.

There are hundreds of thousands of tenant farmers living on and farming submarginal lands. They manage somehow to buy enough fertilizer to raise a few hundred pounds of cotton or a low yield of other crops. Why can't they be taught to buy a few legume seed for the enrichment of their soil and expand the possibilities for themselves and for the fertilizer they use? Why can't they be taught to spend a little time cultivating a small home garden to promote their health and not buy so much pellagra-promoting meat, side meat and molasses?

There are many living below their own possibilities who with a few finishing touches by the thoughtful educator and demonstrator could become self-sustaining. For some unknown reason we are slipping into that rut where are liabilities rather than assets. We work hard for the most part, but accomplish little. We make some money, but we don't seem to get our money's worth when we buy. We make some money, but we don't seem to get our money's worth when we buy. We can spend $200 a day, on an average, in a single liquor store and attend every change of program at the amusement centers and yet claim our inability to meet our honest-obligations. We have splendid educational advantages, and yet we don't seem to be able to get along. Something is needed to put across the education now being made available, and it would seem that a finishing school of every-day common sense could handle the job.

Controlled Democracy

Throw off the shackles and Democracy will maintain its present hold and spread to other lands, but as long as a few would dictate and ing particular pains to overlook such pronouncements as offered by the National Association of Manufacturers, one of which reads, according to the New York Teacher, a monthly publication, as follows: "The outstanding activity of our association during the year has been close cooperation with the National Committee for the Rejection of the Twentieth (child labor) amendment." Another one credited to the president of the National Association of Manufacturers in 1939 reads, ". . . too much democracy is the greatest 'pitfall' facing the American people."

Mr. Hoey was recognized as an able governor. The recent legislature has been highly praised, and duly so in some few instances, but it is a glaring fact that true Democracy did not have a look-in in the high places. It has been reliably declared that pressure was brought by high-ups in the government of North Carolina that the shackles on Democracy would be continued unbroken. Said to have worked through some superior court judges and even through certain officers of the Alcoholic Beverages Control Board, the high officials apparently paved the way for O. M. Mull to scale the walls of Democracy and land in the speaker's chair in the House of Representatives where committees were "packed" and where the pleading voice of a true Democracy could be muffled by legislative trickery and deceit. The record speaks for itself, and the disheartening part about it is all that the record was not made in the days of King John but in the days of 1941

Instead of allowing government officials and agencies of control text books, the people should purge the officials and agencies and give democracy a chance.

Proposals

According to a recognized press dispatch coming out of Detroit recently a movement has been started in the schools there to have table tennis replace algebra and photography to replace English in high school curricula. Not stopping there, a few students, possibly more modern in their ways, suggested that dancing be substituted for Latin, and dramatics for history

"And if our present teachers cannot teach those subjects, they should go to summer school and learn how," the pupils supporting the movement maintained

It was once a recognized duty of the tax-supported school to equip the youth of the land with implements of knowledge, and that the youth would then, by his own brain and brown, train himself for a chosen profession. Now, the taxsupported school is to teach dancing if the modern student has his way. Given time, the modern school will teach everything except those subjects grandpa puzzled over when he was a chap in search of learning back in an old log school house

Such proposals as advanced by the school youth may have a silly tinge, but they are not so radically different from the trend of the times in general. Let them dance, but they should be told that somebody will have to pay the fiddler.

Exceptions To Liberal Giving

Many have been the calls for relief, and it is fairly apparent that the American people have proved themselves liberal and generous with their monies. However, comparative facts show that our people have now awakened to the need of suffering humanity across the seas. While other communities are sponsoring sewing projects and advancing programs for the relief of suffering war victims, local people make the people believe they are living under a democracy its right to live will be questioned in the minds of men. A true democracy needs no spoken defense; its merits unhampered by the few will defend it in the eyes of the common masses

The world has only the democracy its common people have worked and slaved for across the century. From King Johns' day in the early thirteenth century the fight for democracy has been continued. Powerful influences have loosened the shackles only under pressure, and despite the long and trying struggles in the past the goal has not yet been reached.

The fullness of Democracy cannot be achieved as long as the heads of government and powerful agnecies attack and dictate the courses of instruction for the rising millions in the schools. No episode in recent North Carolina politics has carried such a thundering blow to the questionable policies followed by men in high government positions than the recent adoption of a history text acceptable to the politicians. Because of the seventy or more allegations carried in the Newsome-Lefler text, the State Board of Education would not consider it. Led by the former Governor Hoey and former Lieteuant Governor Horton, the State Board of Education apparently blocked the teaching of the unadulterated truth about something that many have been taught to call democracy. It is apparently quite clear why Mr. Hoey and his fellow members on the State Board of Education did not adopt the Newsome-Lefler text, but it is difficult to understand in the light of what Nell Battle Lewis says about it why Mr. Hoey and his asociates adopted the Warren text. It is also apparent that the leaders entrusted with the care of Democracy would deny the right of the youth to learn even a few of the crepancies in what we call democracy today. While we have a stink at the very foundation of Democracy in our own State, there is another going on in the nation. One Dr. Robey has been scrutinizing all the texts in the land, takhave offered $100 to the Greeks. Nothing else has been done.

It is generally believed that a sewing project would receive a strong support, one report stating that the bridge players, bless them, would forego a game every now and then to-help make a sweater for a little waif orphaned by German barbarians operating in the skies over England.

The spirit pervading America is borne out in a brief report appearing in the Christian Science Monitor a few days ago. It reads, in part:

A girl in Massachusetts has sent the United States Treasury her contribution to the fund for national defense-12 cents earned by picking berries. A dollar bill is the present from an Indian chief. Anonymously, from a World War Veteran, came a check for $1,570, his soldier bonus "returned because you need every man and every dollar." A Korean, ineligible for citizenship, thought America "a wonderful country" anyway, and sent $100.

The sum of $2 came from a man who apologized for sending so small a sum and explained that he had a very modest salary, and a wife and ten children. Of the total of $5,720 received by the Treasury a striking portion came from persons in humble circumstances, or even disabled.

"If I want to give up a few shows a week for America, I can, can't I?" asked one contributor, a woman in West Virginia. In a land where folk still control their own property, there is little cause for worry about what they will choose to do with it.

I have heard of a gentleman who went to church but three times in his life, and on each occasion he got sprinkled. The first time, he was given a name, and sprinkled with water; the second time, he was sprinkled with rice; and on his third trip, which he made in a horizontal position, he was sprinkled with ashes and dust.-Rev. J. W. Holland.
