hooves us to remember that we are bordering on paganism ourselves, that Russia wasn't really as bad as many would have had us believe, and that now it is time for us to join in the battle against a common foe. Mr. Churchill, in one of the 'greatest and most stirring speeches of the years, pledged Russia every aid possible, declaring that every people who joined Hitler was England's enemy.

The fight is on and a new and greater opportunity is ours. Will we falter and fail or will we as a nation clinging to Christian-like ideals and valuing that which is right in the sight of man, share its part of the burden in a task to liberate suffering peoples everywhere and make sure our own freedom?

We're In The Army Now—All Of Us

"Our fathers looked to God for their direction. We've looked about every place else." And see what a mess it's got us into.

The above is taken from the pamphlet, "You Can Defend America," which offers some timely advice in the present emergency, as follows:

Musket and powder-horn once hung over the door of every American home. Our fathers were not afraid to use them. The Minute Men at Lexington and Concord seized them and ran to defend their country. Not a man in America would hesitate to do it again if invaders threatened his homeland.

But America has already been invaded. Like parachute troops in the night, fear, hate and greed have slipped into our homes, our industries, our communities. Like termites they are eating away our national character.

The fight is on. The fight against our softness, graft, laziness, extravagance, buckpassing, materialism—alices of the Fifth Column. The battle line runs through every home, every office, every factory, every farm. It is a daily battle. It takes courage.

You and 130 million other Americans can enlist today in this fight. You don't have to wait to be put into uniform. You're in the army now.

First lick the enemy inside yourself. Then get the next fellow to join you in the battle for a new America. Fight to make your home and community a pattern. Fight to bring teamwork in industry. Fight to unite the nation. Then America will have what ancient China lacked. What modern France lacked. She will have TOTAL defense.

William Penn said, "Men must be governed by God, or they will be ruled by tyrants."

What are you governed by? Your wife? Your husband? Your desires? Your pocketbook? Fear of losing your job? Personal ambition?

Only God can change human nature. When you decide to be governed by God, then the change comes.

The first step is to face the facts. The facts about yourself. Honest? Unselfish? Neighborly? Clean? Free? At home? In industry? In politics?

Our fathers looked to God for their direction. We've looked about every place else.

Profiting — By Example

Christian Science Monitor.
Associated Shipbuilders of Seattle have just notified the Navy Department that they are returning 50 per cent of their estimated profits on a $1,175,000 contract because later awards of contracts totaling $17,000,000 have increased the volume of work and reduced overhead charges to a point where costs on the original contract have dropped progressively. Giving back excess profits about which neither the Navy nor the taxpayer might otherwise have learned is a praiseworthy example of corporate patriotism.

Are other defense contractors whose plants are being expanded at Government expense equally alert to the opportunity for making defense funds go farther? The effectiveness of appeals for labor to put national defense work above wage increases depends somewhat on the extent to which the same spirit of patriotism is evidenced by those who voice the appeal. Every practical sign of industry's willingness to put national defense before excessive profits—such as that just given by the Seattle shipbuilders—is certain to strengthen the morale of workers, and make them more willing to hold up their end of the job confronting a united America.

Be as careful of the books you read, as of the company you keep; for your habits and character will be as much influenced by the former as by the latter. —Paxton Hood.

Seeing that we have to attain to the ministry of righteousness in all things, we must not overlook small things in goodness or in badness, for "trifles make perfection," and "the little foxes . . . spoil the vines." —Mary Baker Eddy.

There was once a Scotchman married to a school teach who talked in her sleep. The Scotchman received a night school education. —U.S.S. Reina Mercedes.

Purpose—

By REV. JOHN L. GOFF
Pastor Christian Church

"Seek God's Realm and His righteousness, and all that (clothes, food, property, etc.) will be yours over and above for where your treasure lies, your heart will lie there too."

These words fell from the lips of One Who had known the joys of heaven and purports as a Teacher and Leader to teach men by both precept and example the right direction for joys here and hereafter.

We have been thinking of young people and their entering into the realm of production and business and the professions. (This also applies to persons already engaged as well.) Today, we want to raise a question or two. For what have you been serving the years of apprenticeship either in a college or some industry? You may reply, "I have been preparing for a lawyer, a doctor, a preacher, or a technician or an administrator of one kind or another." Now that you have made suitable preparation, will you enter your chosen field to make money or to render service? What is your main business?

Many successful persons now living and others who have left their "footprints on the sands of time" would say that the admonition of Jesus Christ is the all important one; that the most important thing is to live a life, rather than make a living. Animals in their primitive state can make a living, but only man with a God-like intelligence can direct the ways of his life and be motivated by a powerful purpose. The artisan may use his craft as an end or a means, and it is important at this point to bear the words of Jesus: "For where your treasure lies, your heart will lie there too." If one uses his trade or profession as an end, he will live selfishly, using the profits derived from his efforts to satisfy his physical nature. To him life holds only the pleasures that may be purchased with the proceeds from his labor. To him pleasurable pursuits are the main incentive for which one may live. This is the only media of escape from the monotonous routine. To him the surveying of his mounting assets affords a fiendish glee, and if these values are suddenly lost, only a dark and foreboding future looms ahead. Such a one says, "I'll take my chance here and let others trust to an unknown future. I'll eat and drink and be merry today. That person takes all that society in the past and present contributes and uses it for his own creature comforts and pleasures, never once making an effort to return to society an amount equal to what he has cost. For him, all society exists, for him and his capricious desires.

On the other hand, there is the man who accepts his trade or profession as a sacred trust. He recognized that society's values have been created, not to be dissipated but to be used and enhanced. He uses his abilities as the means to noble and creative living. To him life is a quest. It is a quest for the beautiful and the useful. The returns from his service are to be used for the glory of God and the creation of bettered conditions for his less fortunate fellows. To him the practice of his craft make him alone with the ultimate purpose of God in His world. He is governed by temperate living, wholesome and clean recreation and the practice of the presence of God, knowing full well that precision service can only be rendered by those who are strong in body, mind and soul.

The properly related life can only

Interesting Bits Of Business In the U.S.

It's estimated that, with somewhat more than 1 per cent of the country's total population in the Army, the service is using one and three-quarters per cent of our total food production. Westinghouse is adjusting wages and salaries upward 11 per cent this month, in accordance with its plan under which the compensation rate for each month is based on the average company earnings for the preceding three months. Suits for soldiers may put a crimp in suits for civilians — wool mill backlogs, since a recent order by Uncle Sam, are five times as great as a year ago.

Price-supporting measures for poultry, dairy products, pork products, and vegetables will be continued through June 30, 1943, according to a U. S. Department of Agriculture announcement.

Balancing Rather Than Conflicting

It is an apparent fact that many who have enjoyed their food stuffs delivered to them at a price below cost of production to the farmer are now trying to belittle the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's efforts in pushing farm commodity prices almost to but not to parity levels. The man who has received good pay for his acts and labors is now pointing out that Leon Henderson is on one side of the fence trying to hold down prices to the consumer while the AAA is on the other side of the fence trying to increase prices for the farmer.

It would seem that some people in this world would recognize the glaring fact that the two agencies might be trying to balance an economic system that has made the farmer and most working men the goats in this good country of ours. It is reasonable to believe that Mr. Henderson is well aware that many prices received by the farmer are below parity levels, that in such cases he will consider it expedient for those prices to be increased. After all the consumer can't expect the farmer to grow the nation's food at a price below cost of production plus a sacrifice. And it is little more than shortsightedness on the part of a few wise fellows in the swivel chairs who have never tasted the sweat as it trickled down the face in a hot field and who declare that something will have to be done about the policies of the AAA and Mr. Henderson and his price fixers. Mr. Henderson may step in when tomatoes start selling for $2.40 a pound as they are selling in England today, but it is not likely that Mr. Henderson will intervene in behalf of the consumer as long as the farmer is selling his produce below the cost of production. And no self-centered individual or group of individuals waxing fat either directly or indirectly off rich defense contracts can expect to go on living off the farmer as a dead beat or as a human leech.

Hitler Continues His March

Choosing Russia as his latest victim, Adolf Hitler and his barbarians are continuing their march to world domination, the situation as it exists today while offering some hope for England and America at the same time is offering a greater threat to the civilized world. If Russia checks or even slows down Hitler, she even though frowned upon by our goodie-good citizens as an heathen country, will have rendered democracy meaningful aid in a critical time. If Germany chokes the Russian Bear, grabs what he wants and apparently needs and arranges another "protective" peace, England, America and the rest of the civilized world are in line for a long war, a marked expansion of great sacrifice and untold suffering not only for those victims within the war arena today, but also for many millions at the present removed from the scene of conflict.

The implications following Germany's unannounced invasion of Russia are many and only time will reveal them in their true light. At the present the cold facts as they are broadly seen call for immediate action. England and the United States cannot afford to rest upon their oars now that Russia is engaging a world enemy. The war should be prosecuted even more vigorously than before by Hitler's foes in unison.

Russia may not be our ideal when it comes to government. We may not understand all the facts underlying the almost unbelievable changes in that great country during the past quarter of a century, but one thing is certain and that is when the final showdown presented itself, the Russia people offered their lives in defense of their country. And now it be-
