Miss Margaret Richardson and Herbert Whitley Wed In Troy

Miss Margaret Stone Richardson, of Troy, and Herbert Stuart Whitley, of Williamston, were married in the Trinity Methodist Church, Troy, last Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Dr. O. P. Fitzgerald, former Williamston minister and pastor of the bride, officiated.

The chancel was grouped with palms and asparagus ferns interspersed with white chrysanthemums and flanked with seven-branched candelabra.

The wedding music was presented by Margie Maunie, organist, and John Richardson Horton, baritone, of Albemarle. Traditional marches were used.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Franklin Reid Richardson. The bridegroom had as his best man William R. Pruden, of Troy.

Mrs. William R. Pruden was matron of honor, and Miss Helen Sue Richardson, of Troy and Franklington, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Joyce Smithman and Miss Ruth Holt, of Troy; Miss Betty Jane Foll, of Spartanburg, S. C.; and Miss Camilla Richardson, Rocky Mount, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Warren Beck, Raleigh; and Mrs. S. H. McCall, Jr., Durham. Groomsmen included Louis Asbury, Jr., Charlotte; John Piland, Warrenton; Francis Lael, Glen Alpine; Clayton Crofton and Thaddeus Harrison, Williamston.

The bride wore a formal wedding gown of white satin with a long train—labeled with a yoke of lace. The long train of her full skirt was covered with a veil of illusion and lace. Her bridal bouquet was centered with white orchids with purple throats.

After the wedding, members of the families, the wedding party and out-of-town guests assembled at the home of the bride for the cake-cutting and a small informal reception.

Miss Mary Richardson, aunt of the bride, received at the door. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Whitley, the bride and bridegroom and bridal party received in the living room. Mrs. Edgar Haywood directed guests to the punch bowl while Miss Elizabeth Richardson and Miss Bobbie Lou Foll presided. From there the guests were directed to the dining room. Serving were Miss Miriam Foll, Miss Anna Foll Richardson, Miss Mary Alice Ewing and Miss Nell Smithman.

After the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to Florida, and after December 1, they will be at home on Marshall Avenue, Williamston.

For traveling the bride wore a two-piece costume suit of wine velvet consisting of a tailored dress ornamented with a large yellow and rose-gold clip, and a swag of brown felt, and her accessories were of brown suede. Her shoulder bouquet was of orchids.

Mrs. Whitley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Reid Richardson, of Troy. She attended Virginia Intermont College, Bristol, Va., and the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. Her father is superintendent of the Troy public schools.

Mr. Whitley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Stuart Whitley, of Williamston. He graduated from State College in architectural engineering where he was a member of Theta Tau honorary fraternity and is associated with the Williamston Supply Company here.

Misses Elva Grace Barnhill and Alma Godwin visited friends in Selma, Ala., over the week-end.

Happenings In The Farm Life School

By DELLA LEE LILLEY

On the week-end of November 14, twelve of our high school students, chaperoned by Mrs. Russell Martin, toured the capital of our nation. The trip was made on a Ricks bus in company with the Jamesville seniors and their chaperone, Mr. Vaden Hairr.

We left Farm Life between six and seven o'clock Friday morning, still sleepy, but very excited over the trip. With but a few stops, we reached Richmond by lunch time. There we visited the capitol and the famous old St. John's church in which Patrick Henry made his "Give me liberty or give me death" speech.

By nightfall we received the thrill of our lives—a glimpse of the lighted capitol dome across the lovely Potomac. We could hardly wait to bathe, dress for supper, and to begin our tour of the city. We had never seen anything so breath-taking.

After an appetizing supper from the cafeteria located at the government tourist camp, where he stayed.

We visited the Congressional Library. The number of books, the old documents, and all the other printed matter astounded us. Never had we seen so much beauty, and we turned literary for a moment as we thought with the poet, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

Leaving the library we entered Union Station, where we viewed the large waiting room occupied by both the white and the colored. In the post office we had a chance to spend a part of our money at a souvenir stand operated by the blind.

Early the next morning we were ready for a view of the city by daylight. We visited the capitol, the museums, Lincoln Memorial, the Franciscan Monastery, the zoo, the cathedral, and every other building that could possibly interest a high school student. Each new thing seemed more interesting than the last.

A lovely Sunday morning dawned all too quickly, for we disliked giving up the sight of so much splendor. We drove out to Arlington, where we saw the Robert E. Lee home and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. This latter visit made a lasting impression upon us, as we thought of the present world upheaval.

Mount Vernon was our last stop, and here we spent more than an hour touring the lovely home and the grounds of our first president and his wife.

Tired but happy, we left for home in the afternoon; and each of us brought away a memory locked in our hearts that we shall never forget. We had seen our nation's capital.

The students making the trip were Carlyle Manning, Mary Manning, Martha Roberson, Della Lee Lilley, Elizabeth Manning, Georgia Dean Roberson, Hazel Hardison, Elsie Ben-
