VENGEANCE

Prompted by the cowardly Japanese attack, George Lee Roberson, local youth, and Guy Horn, both of Chanute Field, Illinois, composed the following poem:

War has hit the "Land of the Free"; Japan has attacked our Pacific Sea; Planes flew over in the Dark of the Night, Killing our men—They couldn't offer a fight.

Hawaii was first on the Sabbath Day, What's to be next is hard to say; But Uncle Sam will protect all of us From those "slant-eyed Japs" that seek a fuss.

Our Army is waiting and ready to go, Waiting for an order to tell them so; We'll go to Europe or even Japan; We'll go anywhere to protect our Land.

We're in the air corps of the Red White and Blue— We're airplane mechanics—our work's important too.

We do our fighting with a box of tools To clear the sky of those "slant-eyed" fools.

Air, sea, land, or wherever we may be, We're all important, as anyone can see. We'll protect our Loved Ones and Beloved Land From all enemy invaders—especially Japan!
