There are about 120 other registrants who were in the I-H classification but they have been changed back to their former classifications. In other words if a registrant was in Class I-B before the age exemption was granted, he now goes back to that same classification.

The draft board is holding another meeting this evening to reclassify a number of registrants claiming changes in their dependency status.

Suffers Serious Injury To Eye In Accident Here

Bill Woodard, young local furniture man, seriously injured his right eye last Monday night as he started into his home on Grace Street. An overhanging bush struck him in the face and a thorn pierced the eyeball. He was removed to a Greenville hospital for treatment. While the injury is serious, doctors say there is hope of saving his sight.

Red Cross Sewing Room Issues Call

Anticipating a second quota soon, the production center of the Martin County Red Cross Chapter is making ready to handle the work, the chairman, Mrs. A. R. Dunning, stated this morning that the project is receiving an increased support and that the center can be expected to carry on an extensive program.

Pending the assignment of the second production quota, the production center is calling for a liberal supply of colored wool yarn remnants for use in making afghans. At the present time the sewing room has only two machines, and Mrs. Dunning, very much encouraged over the outlook for the work, is asking for the use of other machines.

The sewing room occupies a prominent place in the war effort, and when the new production quotas are announced it is believed that large numbers will volunteer their services in carrying on the work.

Student Teachers In Local Schools

Five seniors majoring in home economics at East Carolina Teachers College reported to the Williamston High School last Monday morning when they are now busily engaged with teaching and observation duties in the fields of home economics and science. Succeeding a similar student group which completed a period of training in the local high school during the fall months, the new group of prospective teachers will be engaged with classroom and other school activities until the middle of March, when they will return to the Greenville institution to complete the requirements for graduation in June.

At home with Mrs. John W. Manning, the names of the young ladies are:

Lucille Privette, Spring Hope; Yvonne Downing, Fayetteville; Harriet Lawrence, Loggotts; Helen Jenkins, Milwaukee; and Elizabeth Thomasson, South Hill, Va.

Special Checks For The Paralysis Fund

The President will celebrate his diamond jubilee birthday on January 30th. As usual birthday balls will be held all over the country and proceeds will go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. School children and other groups will contribute their nickels and dimes, but this year there's another way to add to the Paralysis fund.

Special checks, bearing the picture of the President, and stating that they are for the diamond jubilee birthday celebration, will be put on the wall desks at the banks and will be available at any time for contributions. The checks are dated January 30, carrying a place for the name of the donor's bank, and are made out to the Paralysis Foundation. These checks will be a constant reminder of the great work done by the foundation and of the part that one plays in this work.

Tire Thefts In County Follow Government Rationing Order

(Robersonville Herald)

Raymond Peel reported the first auto tires to be stolen in this section since the U. S. Government issued an order restricting the sale of tires. Mr. Peel, who lives on the Lum Wynn farm, stated that his car looked especially odd when he first saw it Tuesday morning. The front right wheel was removed and also the left back wheel. "It looked like it wanted to stay up and lay down both at the same time," Mr. Peel said when commenting on how his car looked after the wheels and tires were removed.

Those who have any notion of stealing auto tires might well take into consideration the penalty that will be meted out in the courts. In Richmond Monday a man charged with stealing a single used tire was given the maximum penalty for petty larceny of 12 months on the roads and a $100 fine.

Local officers have suggested that owners of motor vehicles in the county record the serial number of their tires. Warning that tire rationing which went into effect Monday, December 5th, throughout the nation may cause the loss or theft of some of the tires in the county, the officers suggested that owners keep written record of the numbers of the tires in a secure place.

Radical Change In War Predicted By 'Doc' Howard Cone

by American fliers there.

On the Eastern front, Russia is throwing in hundreds of thousands of fresh troops to increase the tempo of its counterattack. They are taking no holiday, and it is now apparent that Hitler's battered forces will be unable to make a stand closer than 300 miles to Moscow.

In Libya, the British are still pursuing the fleeing Nazi forces, but there are rumors of Axis attempts to help save the situation there.

United States and British airmen were over France this morning distributing propaganda leaflets to the French in the occupied territories.

Confusion still bogs down war and civilian defense efforts in this country. The automobile industry, seeking a quota for February after being allowed to double its output of new cars this month, has not agreed on an all-out armament production program. The House, contrary to the action of the Senate, voted to oust La Guardia as head of civilian defense and place it in the hands of the War Department. A compromise is expected within a short time. During Deacon John Jordan Manning, son of Edwin and Elizabeth Roberson Manning was born July 27, 1886, and died November 27, 1941. He was 75 years and four months old.

He was first married to Mollie Brown in January, 1888, and to this union four children were born: Alexander, Eli Hoyt, Mrs. John R. Peel of Williamston, and Mrs. Nick Griffin, of Washington. After the death of his first wife he was married to Lena Taylor Mobley in December, 1927. She survives him. He united with the church at Smithwick Creek April, 1905, and was baptized by Elder Henry Peele. Some time afterward he was chosen deacon, which position he filled faithfully to the day of his death.

Sure a great man has left us, and we pray that his mantle may fall upon another. He labored zealously and untiringly for the cause so near and dear to him. He was a good songster and to sit with those of like precious faith and sing the songs of Zion was his greatest pleasure. He was one of the most faithful. He and his dear wife visited some church every Sunday and Saturday unless hindered by some unavoidable circumstances and were present at all unions and a great many associations, funerals or wherever the worthy name of Christ was preached or anywhere he could serve his brethren or show forth the praise of his precious Redeemer.

He was a man of peace, and he labored to that end. Though his labors were not always crowned with success, yet he never faltered or became discouraged. He continued to the end of his life to contend for the faith once delivered unto him, and for the law of peace written in his heart by the finger of God. He was a true and faithful servant to the church. He did not aspire to any other calling, knowing this to be the noblest calling to be a humble servant of God.

He has gone from us and will not come back anymore. We will miss his pleasant face and the sound of his melodious voice, but he has served his generations faithfully and we do not envy his rest, nor begrudge the peace to his soul. The Psalmist says, "Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace." He has entered into the peace of God, a rest that knows no end, where there is no sorrow, pain nor death, but peace forevermore.

B. S. Cowin.

the meantime a partial change in the civilian defense set-up has been effected with the appointment of Jas. M. Landis, of Harvard, to the OCD.

Faced with a $56 billion defense program, tax leaders are now certain a three per cent federal sales tax will be placed in effect along with other far-reaching tax changes.

Farm Bureau Will Hold Convention

Because the defense program affects farming as it does almost everything else, this year's meeting of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, opening at Raleigh on January 14th, is to be given over to a study of the sudden and drastic changes in our agricultural life that have been brought about by the war.

Agricultural leaders from the 100 counties in the state will meet to hear first-hand reports from high officials in Washington on the progress of the defense program and to hear addresses by the Hon. Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of Navy under Woodrow Wilson, and only recently retired after many years of service as Ambassador to Mexico and many other speakers. This year's meeting is keyed to the National Situation and has as its topic "Agriculture and National Defense."

But in considering the national welfare and its contribution to ultimate world peace, the farm organization is giving attention to matters affecting each individual farm home. Take, for example, the questions of inflation, priorities, price fixing, and many other far-reaching problems.

Edward A. O'Neal, the Farm Bureau's Veteran President, is a vigorous opponent of all policies which he thinks encourage the inflationary trend, and his position has been supported by his organization. He takes the stand that farm prices are high enough when they stand on the average, at parity, as they do now, and that any policy which would send them higher is undesirable because inflationary. On the other hand, he opposes any measure which would control farm prices and let the wages of labor go unrestricted.

Other problems originated or intensified by the defense effort are to be taken up, but much of the time will be given to hearing Washington officials give an accounting of their activities. J. B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, will discuss the operation of "The Lend-Lease Program."

Fire Destroys Farmer's Corn Barn Near Everetts

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the barn and about fifty barrels of corn and much hay on the farm of Mr. Tom Allen early last Tuesday night. Other property near by was threatened, but neighbors kept it from spreading.

It could not be learned if any insurance was carried on the property, and the amount of the loss was not determined.
