

Tells Motorists How To Use Gasoline Rationing Card

How will I use my gasoline ration card, once I have it?

In reply to this question which is being asked by motorists throughout North Carolina, Theodore S. Johnson, State rationing administrator, today set forth the ABC's of the gasoline rationing program.

Consumers are registering this week and they are receiving ration cards intended to meet their needs from May 15 until July 1. Beginning July 1, a permanent gasoline rationing system will be launched.

There are five types of ration cards, these being: "A", "B-1", "B-2", "B-3" and "X". Holders of the first four types will be able to buy limited quantities of gasoline, while those holding "X" cards will be able to make unlimited purchases. The quantities of gasoline to be available to holders of "A" and "B" cards will be announced before May 15.

All motorists must present their automobile registration cards when applying for a ration card, and applicants for "B" and "X" cards must fill out special application forms. The "A" card is intended for the average motorist who uses his car primarily for pleasure. The "B" cards are for persons who need more gasoline than they can get with an "A" card, while the "X" cards are for owners of motor vehicles whose operation is deemed essential to public welfare.

The holder of an "A" card will be able to buy seven "units" of gasoline, while the "B" cards will authorize purchase as follows: "B-1", 11 units; "B-2", 15 units, and "B-3", 19 units.

Applicants for "B" cards must answer detailed questions about why they need more gasoline than they could otherwise get. For instance, a man using his car to go to and from work must tell how far he travels each day. He must certify also that he is attempting to reduce his mileage by using public transportation and by doubling up with his neighbors. Taking into consideration the needs of the motorist, the registrar issues the proper card.

Once having gotten a ration card, the holder may use up his units as he likes without being limited to any stipulated quantity for a given time. But if he buys all the gasoline he is authorized to purchase before July 1, he will not be able to get another temporary ration card.

All the motorist has to do is to present his ration card at a filling station, and his card will be punched or the proper unit detached when he makes his purchase. And the gallonage value of an "A" unit may differ from that of a "B" unit.

Farm-Home Week And 4-H Club Short Course Cancelled

Shortages of transportation and labor have led to the cancellation of Farm and Home Week and 4-H Short Course, annual events on the State College summer calendar, it was announced by Dean I. O. Schaub, director of the Extension Service. He also mentioned the fact that housing accommodations at the college this summer will be another problem, due to the fact that N. C. State is on a "war-time basis" and will be used to train 1,000 or more technological students for emergency work.

"One of the main factors in reaching this decision," Dean Schaub said, "is the matter of transportation. With the very critical situation as regards rubber, and the rationing of gasoline which becomes effective May 15th, the question of transportation becomes a major factor. Already bus and rail facilities are running at capacity, and quite often public utilities have to cancel regular schedules in order to take care of troop movements.

"The matter of labor on the farms is likewise of great importance. Agriculture is called upon to produce more than ever before with a decided decrease in available labor. Consequently, it is felt that many farm people would feel it their patriotic duty to remain at home to take care of agricultural production rather than attend meetings of this kind."

Dean Schaub said, however, that the County 4-H Club encampments at Millstone, White Lake and Swan-seven speeches at commencement this year; she has a most pleasant personality, having numerous friends in her community.

It is certainly quite an accomplishment to have attained such high awards and honors, and her community is really proud of her. Frances is only 15 years old, and her high school average was 95.6.

The same general rules apply to boat owners. An "A" card will be issued the owner of a boat used for non-essential purposes, while an "X" card will be used for specific commercial purposes.

Wins Highest Honors In Jamesville School

It is rather singular that within a two-year period that brother and sister should receive highest honors from the same school.

That is what has happened in the Jamesville High School. Miss Frances Wallace, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wallace, on May 6th, was awarded medals for best all-round high school girl, scholarship for senior class, and valedictorian of her class of twenty. She was also awarded a perfect attendance certificate, and a one year's subscription to the "Readers Digest."

Mr. J. T. Uzzle, Frances' principal, made all the awards, as he delivered her diploma, which he purposely held back until the last one. He said, as he gave her the awards, that he had taught and observed many students in his eleven years' stay in the Jamesville school, and there had been some mighty fine scholars, but he thought—taking everything into consideration, that Frances was the best student ever to have graduated from the Jamesville school.

Frances has been an outstanding scholar throughout her school life; she has played basketball, excelling in it as well; she has an excellent speaking voice, giving her one of the

Have You Signed?

If you are doubtful about signing the war bond pledge study these facts:

The government cannot supply our armed forces with guns, tanks, ships and planes without dollars from some source.

Those dollars must come from the people who buy war bonds and stamps and from taxes. The more dollars voluntarily pledged for bonds, the less will be the nation's tax load.

When you buy a war bond, you are not making a donation to the government. You are saving money through the safest investment in the world—money that will be yours with added interest in years to come.

This money you invest in war bonds will be taken out of competition for consumers goods, thereby preventing the inflation and building up a cushion of savings for you when the war ends.

Building up a cushion of savings now is one of the best ways to stave off depression in the aftermath of war.

Your purchase of war bonds, too, will do more than merely secure your financial position. It will help preserve the democratic way of life that offers the best opportunity for individual and national happiness.
