HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

By Irene James, Home Service Director, Virginia Electric and Power Company

From the Sunkist kitchen in California comes some information regarding that much talked about Vitamin C—the vitamin that just does not want to stay put for more than one day in the human body. After you read the following you will realize how and why through the years "Lemonade" made in the shade has been a natural summer beverage food. Lemons really are a food need for summer as the weather offers no fun for anyone with that "tired feeling". This year perhaps more than ever there are tasks which must be done through scorching days and which call for men, women and children who can "take it." Whether it be war work, Victory gardening, or any other strenuous activity, there's little place in the busy program for those who are run down or easily fatigued.

According to scientific tests, hot weather and fatigue go hand-in-hand, due to a loss of vitamin C through perspiration. This vitamin builds up resistance to fatigue, as well as to various ills and helps to maintain good bone structure. Since vitamin C cannot be stored in the body, it must be replenished in large amounts daily.

How can you easily fool "Old Sol" and keep going strong in spite of the heat? Lemons contain an abundant supply of vitamin C and what could be easier to take than a tall, frosty glass of lemonade? That's truly refreshment and health at the same time. This beverage, or any lemon combination beverage, makes it easy to drink large quantities of liquid to supply the moisture lost by the body through increased perspiration. It is also a satisfying way to supply additional and needed vitamin C. Many industrial workers turn to lemonade every summer for their lunch box thermos. An increasing number of industrial plants are serving lemonade as a mid-morning or mid-afternoon pick-up for these specific health reasons.

For those who like variety in quick lemon beverages, apple juice combined with an equal amount of lemon juice, is a new flavor appeal; two tablespoons of lemon juice added to one cup grape juice, gives new zest; and lemon juice added to taste to orange juice is delicious.

Added nourishment may be obtained through a lemon shake, an ideal summer-time beverage. For each glass, use the juice and grated peel of one-half lemon. Add two tablespoons sugar syrup, one-half cup water, one-fourth cup crushed ice, and one egg white, well beaten. Mix thoroughly in a shaker. Pour into glass. This is an all-around beverage, good for breakfast, luncheon, dinner, mid-morning or afternoon.

But there are many other ways in which lemons can provide added health and flavor—ways which may be conveniently incorporated in the daily menus. Health-giving main course meats and fish, sauces, numerous vegetables, as well as desserts offer much to this challenge.

Take your pick of one of the following meat or fish dishes today, but be sure to include all in your menus soon. The lemon added in the preparation means health through vitamin C and also dietetic balance.

Baked Liver and Lemon
Place a bed of sweet onion slices in the bottom of a baking dish. Cut deep gashes in one-half pound slice of liver and in these gashes insert slices of onion and lemon. Put in baking dish on top of onions. Season to taste. Place in oven (350 degrees F.) for about 35 minutes or until done. Note: Mushrooms may be added if desired.

Broiled Fish Steaks
Sprinkle fish steaks or small whole fish generously with lemon juice. Flour one side only. Place this floured side down on preheated broiler pan (rack removed) containing enough fat to cover bottom of pan. Turn immediately. Sprinkle with paprika. Broil until browned without further turning (about 12 minutes). Serve with Lemon Tartar Sauce.

Fish Casserole Note: For a fish casserole (fresh or canned fish) add a few drops of lemon juice to the butter and crumb topping.

Allows Old Corn Stalks To Decompose For Fertilizer

Ben F. Little, of Clifton in Ashe County throws most of his old corn stalks that are not eaten by cattle into a rack to decompose so that later he will have more fertilizer for his land.

The Waste Material Industry in the United States has about 11,000 units and they employ about 1,000,000 men full time.

Learning How to Farm

Learning the rudiments of how to spray an apple orchard, to kill off Japanese beetles and other insect destroyers, is Rena Chan, one of eight Chinese-American girls being trained as farmerettes in Long Island, New York. Jean Kelly, of the American Women's Volunteer Service, drives the car converted to a farm machine.

Soon to Be Warship

A four-masted square-rigger, the Chilean naval training ship Lautaro, slips slowly beneath the Golden Gate Bridge on her arrival in San Francisco. During her visit to the west coast port diesel engines will be installed in the frigate and she will become a warship in the Chilean navy.

16,000 Write To Folks From Abroad

Washington, D. C.—More than 16,000 messages addressed to American relatives and friends, through the Red Cross Inquiry Service, have been received from abroad during the past two weeks.

Red Cross officials said this was the greatest number of messages ever handled by the Red Cross in a two-week period.

Written in Dutch, Danish, French, Italian, German, Hungarian, Rumanian, Yugo-slavian, Polish and many other languages, the messages are transmitted through the International Red Cross Committee at Geneva.

Translation of the messages is done by Red Cross volunteers in Washington, many of whom are from foreign embassies and legations in the Capital.

Local Happenings In The Enterprise Forty Years Ago

JUNE 20, 1902.

The brick work on Peel's store is about completed.

A big dance at the Roanoke warehouse last night.

The county convention will be held Monday at the court house to instruct for Solicitor and Judge.

Mr. C. K. White and son, Alexander, of Hamilton, were in town last Saturday and Sunday. Mr. White called at The Enterprise office and spent half an hour very pleasantly to us. Mr. White has a very fine crop of tobacco and we expect him to take the prize at this market.

Mr. John D. Cherry, who lives on the "Mary Cherry" farm about four miles from town, found a homing pigeon on the House on Sunday, June 8th, after the storm. He managed to catch the bird and found that it had an ugly wound in the right side. He doctored the pigeon and now it is about well. On the right leg of the bird is a silver band with the letter R and 562 on it, and on the left leg is a plain brass band.

The tobacco warehousemen are making preparations for the coming season. Messrs. Leggett and Stanton are busy advertising the Roanoke Warehouse. They have a buggy with their name painted on it, and are sending it all over the county; painting signs everywhere, and are hustling generally. Mr. S. H. Newberry, who proved himself a hustler while with Martin and Biggs, is employed by the Roanoke to drum the county, and our farmers who do not know Mr. Newberry will soon make his acquaintance. Such hustling as these gentlemen are doing merits success.

S. R. Biggs, Jr., is home from Richmond.

Mr. Joe Cowan is in town visiting his parents.

Miss Nanie Mizell, of Plymouth, is visiting in town.

Mr. C. W. Forbes, of Everetts, was in town yesterday.

Mr. Mc. G. Wynn, of Robersonville, was in town yesterday.

Mr. Martin Carstarphen, of Tarboro, is visiting his parents in town.

Dr. Knight was quite sick a couple of days this week, but is out again.

Mr. J. H. Arnold, of Everetts, was a caller at our office last Saturday.

Visits in Norfolk
Dr. J. T. Llewellyn visited in Norfolk this week.

Native Personnel Is Cause Of Success

The practice of drawing upon the old-line, native stock of the green foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains for men and women to operate its vast Tennessee works, is credited by an aluminum company with being responsible for a quality of solid, American personnel which Alcoa insists it is willing to "stack up against that of any industrial organization." It was disclosed the other day, on the occasion of the awarding of the All-Navy "E" to the plant for a production job well done, that a recent survey had revealed only one employee in the entire works who was not an American citizen. The exception was a Dane who, if he's not an American citizen yet, at least is a "solid" one, for he's been working there steadily for 15 years.

Was Here Wednesday
Miss Virginia Blount, of Roanoke Rapids, visited the offices of the Virginia Electric and Power Company here Wednesday.
