He Hustles Cards To Top Spot in Baseball

Jamesville Veteran Gives Cards Pep to Take N. Y. Yanks

D. V. Clayton, Who Saw the Last Three Games in New York Says Jimmy Was a "Happy Fellow" After the Final Victory

The World Series is history now, but baseball fans of the country really got their money's worth while it was being made. Those sportswriters who picked the St. Louis Cardinals to break New York Yankee domination evidently knew what they were talking about, for after dropping the opening game the Cards went on to win four straights.

Playing a big part in getting the Cardinals into the playoffs and then the final victory and title of world champions, Jimmy Brown, Jamesville's gift to this sport, was one of Manager Billy Southworth's aces, and both he and Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees praised Jimmy's ability as the key man in the speedy Card infield.

As lead-off man in the St. Louis batting order, Brown went to bat 20 official times during the five games and connected for base hits on six occasions to garner a .300 batting average. He scored two runs and batted in another, all three of which made a difference between defeat and victory in two of the contests.

Fielding records for the series show that Jimmy made 6 put-outs, 16 assists and three errors, for an average of .880. But according to those who witnessed the games, Jimmy was given two errors on balls that very few second basemen could ever have reached.

Despite the fact that the Card outfield was given most of the headlines during the series for their sensational catches, writers and fans alike were ready to admit that the one player responsible for the Cards being where they are today is none other than Martin County's star of the diamond, Jimmy's experience in major league play, no doubt was a big point in keeping his team steady and his speed and energy aided the younger St. Louis players in their home stretch drive and series play. Several of his teammates were rookies in the majors, and but for the steadying effect of Brown at second base probably would have cracked up under pressure—a fact the Yankees probably figured on when they started arguing after the second game. But lo and behold, Jimmy Brown and his boys seemed to settle down all the more with a firm determination to win over New York's high-powered machine—and they did a grand job.

Quoting Mr. D. V. Clayton, who saw the three games in New York: "If a fellow sat down and tried to figure out three of the most thrilling and exciting games of baseball he could not even come close to those more on Saturday.

last three I saw. You may have heard it over the radio, but believe me, no announcer could put into words what happened on those afternoons in Yankee Stadium. It's just impossible! The Cards never stopped, the judgment and play was without fault, and—well, I can't explain it, but it is something I will never forget. We saw and talked to Jimmy after the final game, and he was a happy young man. He got us autographs from the entire Cardinal team right on up through Manager Billy Southworth."

We were born and raised in these parts, just like most of our customers...

Down here live the folks we grew up with... our neighbors. We work alongside you, pay taxes with you and vote with you. So we have come to think of you as our very own customers—so long as we deserved your trade.

To do that, of course we had to make as good Ale and Beer as you can get anywhere in these United States.

We seem to have done that, because the very best breweries in the country have come into this community and fought for your trade. It was a good fair fight, and we are proud that in the face of it Atlantic Ale and Beer have for years held their lead over all other brands.

Now war has come along and the needs of war have brought all sorts of restrictions. Metal caps... restricted deliveries and whatnot. You can't get help—it's gone into the Armed forces... to fight for our way of life.

Many competitors have abandoned this market and are now devoting all their efforts to serving their own home communities.

That means that somehow we've got to step up production so as to not only fill the gap but meet the increased needs of our "home folks". And it's a vital need to many, a refreshing glass of cold beer is a pleasant way to essential relaxation, and helps combat the tension and strain of the war job.

Faced with unprecedented demand, the Atlantic Company has increased its production to the limit of the capacity of its four breweries without sacrificing quality one iota.

Sincerely, it's not a question of selling beer or making money. Under present conditions we can probably sell all we can brew... and more. It's a matter of pride with us now, to keep the faith by looking after our own "home folks".
