The vows were spoken before a marble mantel, decorated with golden chrysanthemums, Boston ferns hemlock, while on either side of the fireplace cannon shell vases filled with chrysanthemums were placed. The shells were picked up on the battlefields of France during World War I by Mr. Vaughan. Miniature American flags were also used in the decorations.

The bride was attired in a beige suit with small felt hat and accessories of Alice blue and her flowers were a corsage of pink Briarcliff roses.
