State College Hints For Farm Homes

By RUTH CURRENT
Following are some of the important home front responsibilities of the housewife:

Each extra day of life you give your household goods is a day earned for the war effort. Each new habit of care you practice helps to shorten the war.

Why not begin with painting the screens, wire and frame, and screen doors, too. These should be taken down and stored in the attic or storage room. This is a good practice for all times.

When you buy soap take the wrapper off and let it dry; it will go much further. Save soap scraps to make a liquid soap—soap scraps plus water.

Don't put hot food in refrigerator. Don't waste space or refrigerator by keeping in the refrigerator foods that do not need to be kept cold such as pickles, jelly, vegetables, shortening and unopened cans.

Keep upholstered furniture clean and brushed. Slip covers will help lengthen the life of furniture.

Men's and Boys' Clothes Due to Advance in South

Washington, Nov. 3. — Prices of men's and boys' ready-made suits may go up in the South. The Office of Price Administration announced tonight that it would permit price increases November 7 up to 10 per cent on such garments in the South where March, 1942, ceilings did not reflect increases in price to retailers. The permitted price boost applies to suits, separate pants, vests and coats other than top-coats, but does not include tropical weight garments. The freeze in retail prices at the March level resulted in hardship for retailers in areas where climatic conditions normally reduce the volume of March sales. While Northern merchants were promoting spring suits last March, Southern stores were selling For this season, OPA said, March prices of Southern retailers of regular weight suits generally were based on fall, 1941, costs. In other areas merchants had based their March prices on costs of new merchandise which had increased about 18 per cent over the fall, 1941 figures. The order did not define in geographic terms the regions in which the new price formula could apply, but declared that sellers, in order to be eligible, must be located in a geographic area where, due to climatic conditions, the customary volume of March sales is "substantially lower than the average monthly volume of sales of these garments during October, November and December."

An OPA spokesman said this meant that the price action would apply in Southern states, Southern California or any other region where this sales pattern was established.
