Christmas Shopping In November

DON'T THINK for a moment that we are trying to create a new precedent . . .

We are simply passing along good advice as we see it and experience it . . .

There is a shortage of desirable merchandise and the chances for replacements and filling in stock is impossible.

LAY-AWAY a Gift today and make this a Practical Christmas. Daily new merchandise reaches our store. Many items are weeks and months late . . .

However, the same manufacturers are serving both the Army, Navy and the retailer.

THE BOYS in Service get theirs first — We want it that way — So please bear with us too.

Robersonville Boys Write From Several Parts Of The Globe

(Robersonville Herald)

A letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Norman last week from their son, Carl Edward Norman, announcing that he had been promoted from a first lieutenant to the rank of a captain.

Capt. Norman for several months was employed by permission of the U. S. Army by Pan-American Airways in Africa, but was recently transferred back to the Army and is now engaged in transporting supplies throughout the continent. He is connected with the 41st Flying Squadron.

Norman had the pleasure of seeing Willie while he was in Africa and during one of his speeches in the rear of a jeep, Norman took a picture of him which he sent to his parents.

Garner House, who entered the service as a buck private recently notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester House, that he had been promoted to a corporal. Corporal House is in England and is serving as company clerk with a unit of the U. S. Army.

House stated in a recent letter to his parents that he likes England very much and that he was particularly impressed by the friendliness of the British. "The English are very fine to us American soldiers and I am having a wonderful experience in visiting many places of interest on the British Isles," young House said.

Rudolph Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Taylor, has joined the Naval Reserve Air Corps, but will not report for service until next March when he will enter Duke University for basic training for this particular branch of the service.

Young Taylor is now employed by the First and Merchants Bank of Richmond and will remain with the Virginia institution until he enters Duke next March.

Recognition Service For Royal Ambassadors

On Wednesday evening parents and friends gathered at the Baptist Church to pay honor and respect to the members of the Leonard Royal Ambassador Chapter, a missionary organization for boys, during their Focus Week. The church was decorated in their colors, blue and gold. Those having attained to some rank were summoned by the trumpet, came forward and after being questioned on required work done were recognized.

There were two Pages, Hilton Peele and Tommy Osteen; two Squires, Mack McLawhorn and Kenneth Lindsley, and one Knight, J. D. Baldree. Those having met the requirements for Page, Squire, Knight, Ambassador, the last rank necessary to complete their armbands, were: Hugh Horton, Charles Siceloff and Joe Wynne. It is not an easy undertaking to become an Ambassador, but a serious one. These boys were rightly given recognition because they have proven themselves worthy and faithful. The three were presented Bibles and challenged "To grow in wisdom, statue and in favor with God and man" from that hour forth.

Preceding the recognition service there was a banquet for the chapter members and their fathers prepared and given by the women of the W. M. U. Mr. Shelton Hall is counselor of the chapter.
