TO PROPERLY NOURISH BODY FOODS MUST BE CAREFULLY SELECTED

By DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON (Penn. Commissioner of Health)

We have many among us who believe themselves intelligent, and yet are starving to death.

The human body represents the most complicated piece of machinery known to men. To maintain it we must supply it with albumin found in meats, beans and some of the other vegetables. It must have starch or sugar found in bread, potatoes and sweets. We must have fats also, found in meats, nuts and so on, and of course, prominently in butter and good milk.

The body demands certain salts such as are found in many of the vegetables if they are not robbed of them by being soaked in water before or during the process of soaking.

These constituent parts of the diet must be intelligently proportioned. We must urge our educators to teach children of understandable age the scheme of selecting a rational combination of foodstuffs.

At present we want real all-around family physicians whom the mothers can consult as to how to feed their flocks including the grown ups of the household as well as the small children.

Mr. J. C. Sawyer and Mr. Mathias Owens have returned from New York City where they have been buying goods for Owens Shoe Company.

"My decision," says Judge Hook, "is merely to rush the case to the Supreme Court. I have given the Government until three o'clock to perfect their appeal."

BOX SUPPER AT CAMDEN

The patrons and the friends of the school responded very liberally and the net proceeds amounted to something over $35.00.

Through the efforts of the Betterment Association this year and past years, the school house has been painted and beautified both inside and out, the school grounds made more agreeable to the eye. They now only owe $50.00 on the piano and expect to pay this amount within the next few months.

Miss Jennie Ferebee of Shawboro, N. C., is teaching the school this year and also taught it last year and it is to a great extent due to her efforts and energy that so much has been done towards bettering conditions. WINTER THE TEST ON EVERY FRONT

ALSO STAYING POWER OF NON-COMBATANTS AN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN WAR

(By W. J. T. MASON) New York, Nov. 22. Three offensives are at the height of their pressure as the European conflict enters upon its third winter.

For the first time the military situation suggests a continuation of activities throughout the zero months. The Anglo-French offensive along the Somme and the Ancre, the allied advance along the Greek frontier, the tenuous movements in Roumania all contain possibilities of a winter surprise.

The principle unknown problem lies in the effect of intense artillery fire upon frozen trenches. Since the beginning of the conflict no effort has been made to test the ability of either side to withstand trench bombardment under the semi-numbers of the winter.

Hitherto the trench fighting has slackened to a draw with the beginning of cold weather. With the beginning of this winter the allies are better situated on the western front with artillery positions on high ground and favorably placed for blasting the frozen lines of the Germans. On the Greek frontier the advantage is again with the allies because their lines of communication are shorter.

In Roumania, on the other hand, the Germans hold the advantage because the Roumanians must obtain their ammunition from Russia where the supply is limited.

The war this winter is not only the supreme test of the fighting power of the belligerents but also of the staying power of the non-combatant population.

For this reason Britain, Russia, France and Germany are with one accord establishing new systems of conserving the food supplies.
