A WORD TO THE CHURCHES ON LOVE

(By a Baptist)

I write not to the church but to all churches who are not showing any brotherly love for their members. Jesus tells us in the 15th chapter and 12th verse of John: "For this is my commandment, as I have loved you, so shall you love one another." Now how has He loved us? So much as to lay down his own life for us. And how much love does a church show that will make a member welcome as long as he is able to pay in to the church, but as soon as he becomes afflicted or too old to labor for a living the church cares so little for him as to allow him to go to a county home for the public to take care of him? There can't be any love in it. And when the world sees such little care shown by the churches, how can we expect to win the world for Christ? I believe every denomination should have a plan for their invalid members and let them go to the county home as well as the G. O. P. laws. But it takes love to do it, and the kind of love that Jesus wants us to have. To love is better than sacrifice. Therefore, we should not sacrifice too much in building some hundred thousand dollar churches, moving colleges and going too far in other matters and leave the poor invalid church member to go on the public for his care. I know of a church that has a thousand members and if each member would give just a half cent a week it would support one invalid member. I know three invalid members in the Baptist church of Pasquotank, the Baptist church of Messier, Va. and the Primitive church. It is time to wake up and test our love for Jesus. Can't each church of every denomination prepare an invalid home? If they can't they can get a home in a private family and have them cared for by the family. All churches and societies ought to do as well as the Catholics. But we all know them in the city they have an infirmary and each church ought to have a home in a private family and have them cared for by the family. All churches and societies ought to do as well as the Catholics. But we all know them in the city they have an infirmary and each church ought to have a home in a private family and have them cared for by the family. All churches and societies ought to do as well as the Catholics. But we all know them in the city they have an infirmary and each church ought to have a home in a private family and have them cared for by the family.

NATIONWIDE FIGHT AGAINST DISEASE

American Red Cross Will Have Health Centers in All Parts of United States.

The American Red Cross has launched upon a nation wide campaign of fighting disease and physical defect among the American people. A new and unique health institution has come into being as the result of several months' study by the Red Cross Health Service Department at National Headquarters.

Officials in charge of the department predict that before long this new health activity will be in actual operation all over the country, and that the sign—"American Red Cross Health Center"—will become as familiar to the people everywhere as are now the signs of the telegraph companies.

Busy Long Before War.

The interest of the American Red Cross in the fight against disease is not, however, of recent origin. Long before the war the organization began this health service through its medical units in disaster relief work and its department of Town and County Nursing. During the war and following the outbreak thousands of American Red Cross officials have been fighting disease in the war-stricken countries. At the same time tens of thousands of local Red Cross officials have been engaged at home fighting disease, notably during the influenza epidemics.

The American Red Cross has determined that all this valuable experience in health service abroad and at home shall not go to waste. So long as there are a half a million people dying yearly in this country from preventable causes, and so long as more than one-third of the American children and young people are victims of physical defects, the Red Cross recognizes the urgent need for continued Red Cross health service at home.

How Organization Works.

The Red Cross Health Center is governed by business principles, applies business methods, and, in its more simple form, can be established and conducted by lay people.

It proceeds upon the demonstrated fact that health is a commodity that can be bought and sold like brooms and soap. Therefore, it establishes itself in a store room in the principal business section of the community. It displays its goods in the form of attractive health exhibits in its show windows. It advertises constantly and extensively. And it uses every business and social device to attract customers.

The Red Cross Health Center is of service to the sick in that it gives out reliable and complete information about existing clinics, hospitals, sanatoria and other institutions for the sick and the defective; about available nurses, both trained and practical; about when to consult a physician and why to slum the quack and his nostrums.

Teaching Disease Prevention.

The Red Cross Health Center is, however, of even greater service to the well. It teaches people how to prevent sickness and disease. This is done in many interesting and attractive ways: first of all, by the distribution of popular health literature and through health lectures illustrated with lantern slides or with health motion picture films. Then special exhibits are given, one after the other, on various health subjects. Practical demonstrations are made; also health playlets by children to interest and instruct themselves and their elders. Classes are organized in personal hygiene, home care of the sick, first aid and in food selection and preparation. Health clubs, both for younger and older people, are formed; also Little Mothers' Leagues. Nutrition and growth clinics are conducted for children.

Already more than a hundred of these Red Cross Health Centers are in actual operation throughout the country. Many of them also conduct medical clinics, but the one chief, outstanding feature of the American Red Cross Health Center is its health education service which teaches well people how to keep well.

FRENCH PRAISE FOR OUR RED CROSS WORK

Lauding the work accomplished by American philanthropy for war-stricken France, Andre Tardieu, former high commissioner from that nation to the United States, in a recent article widely commented on throughout the French press, says:

"The American Red Cross has accomplished a work which calls for the heartfelt gratitude of every true Frenchman. In 1918 this great relief organization spent in behalf of France nearly 87,000,000 francs, and in 1919 its expenditures on charitable projects in our country attained the tremendous total of 171,000,000. It has recently turned over to the French relief organizations huge stocks of supplies whose value must be counted in the hundreds of thousands of francs.

"Fifteen million American boys and girls, banded together in the Junior Red Cross of America, are back of a movement to establish the closest ties between themselves and France's younger generation through the charitable works they have financed and are now carrying out among our little war sufferers.

"The bonds of friendship between France and America is cemented with mutual admiration, respect and gratitude."
