for sweet potatoes this year,

and nobody can take more satisfaction in that fact than The Advance.

But if prices are high this Wear, the chances are that they'll be low next year or, if not next year, the year there.

Miss Carrie Bright spent the day of Jarde and Posted this the 24th day not next year, the year there-

It is seldom indeed that there are more than two good years for sweet potatoes in succession.

The Hickory Record tells the story of how Florida grapefruit growers met the situation of a dull market, a big crop and a surplus of 300,000 boxes of grapefruit by advertising in the newspapers of the big cities of the North. The result of a $20,000 advertising campaign was that such a demand for grape-fruit was created that the big surplus was completely sold at a most satisfactory price and what had threatened to be a dead loss was turned into a handsome

Having told the story better and in more detail than The Advance has done, the Record inquires as to why the same plan can not be used to advantage to increase the demand for the South's sweet potato

The answer is: It can when there is a Southern Sweet Potato Cooperative Exchange with 6,000 members.
