Try Get Teachers Write About Work

Teachers' Association Offers Three Prizes of Fifty Dollars Each for Papers

Raleigh, August 8 — The State Teachers' Association, as an inducement to get the teachers of the State to write about their work, is offering three awards of fifty dollars each for the best article on some phase of the educational work of the State, Miss Elizabeth Kelly, president, announced recently. These themes should deal with some outstanding educational need, Miss Kelly explained, or some outstanding educational accomplishment in North Carolina.

The Executive Committee of the Association is suggesting to the teachers that they can find much material on which to base these themes in the courses of study offered by a special committee of the Association. The outlines of this course of study are now being printed and will be placed in the hands of the city and county superintendents, and the officers of the local units during the next few weeks. "This, however, is merely a suggestion," said Miss Kelly, "for the committee does not want to limit the field from which the themes for these articles may be chosen, so long as it relates to public education.

"The teachers of the State are doing an increasingly improved work in the school rooms," Miss Kelly asserted, "and it is with the hope of getting teachers who are really doing outstanding work, to write about this work for the benefit of other members of the profession that the prizes are offered. Should some teacher find in her work an outstanding need, something that will improve the educational system in the State, that may also be selected as the basis for these studies. The Association wants these studies to be based on a rather exhaustive investigation, so that the articles resulting will be of lasting value to the profession.

"An exhaustive study of the benefits of the consolidation, the standardization of the elementary schools, the establishment of the county wide plan, the returns on the investment in education, the improvement resulting from proper supervision, a practical application of the teaching of geography, history or the other subjects to the life of a community, better results obtained from new methods or any subject in this or related fields, include some of the suggestions of the committee."

VELIE

Velie Model 58, five-passenger Touring, $1275, f. o. b. factory

"Have you seen that Velie Motor?"

—that's the word that's going 'round among automobile men

For the Velie-built motor is the liveliest topic of conversation in automobile circles today. Not all these comments are favorable to Velie—competitors discount this motor, naturally.

They have to, in their own interest, discount the merits of an engine that is at least two years ahead in design, while there is no immediate prospect of anything in its price class to compete with it.

Bear in mind two things: This is the motor whose automatic lubrication system, force-feeding oil even to the piston-pins, is adapted from the airplane and has been featured previously only on a few of the most expensive cars.

And this is the engine that is delivering to thousands of Velie owners from 20 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

There must be some reason for the tremendous increase in Velie popularity.

If you want the real facts about motors and car value in the medium-priced field, talk with a Velie 58 owner. He knows.

Then come in and see for yourself.
