He who gets all lit up on talking may shine for a while but soon will find himself out. Chasing something is always more exciting than catching it. Very often, even in a seven-passenger car, three's a crowd.

Putting your best foot forward is all right, but you only move along by dragging up the other one. There isn't any use in worrying over where we are headed. All of us have round-trip tickets.

Better be lying in a good supply of baths before the long cold spell. Still waters run deep, but they are full of snags. More people would be good if being good was interesting.

The chief objection to a new stenographer is words fail her. The harvest moon seems to govern not only the tides, but also the untied.

Some people don't marry for fear it won't last and others for fear it will last. Money certainly is a convenient thing to have around, whether you've committed murder or not.

Business of extending felicitations and congratulations to President Zoeller of the Eastern Carolina Photographers' Association. Don't crowd the hospitals, gentlemen, now that it is possible to go in and have your waste measure permanently reduced in on-ahort operation.

After taking one look at "Jack's synthetic profile" as depicted in the news pictures of the day, one can't escape a conviction that Jack would never risk that "bling in the ring." The pros in the ports and terminals discussion are beginning to unlimber their heavy artillery; but we must say they've let Senator Williams get a considerable jump on them.

It just natchelly ain't safe any more for a feller to die or be impeached either, for there's his better half ready to step right in his shoes time the obsequies are over. Sigh is life, but who'd a thought it a few short years ago? For two days in succession the Raleigh Times has come to us with a Leopold-Loeb story prominently played up on its front page. And this just as the Times has counseled the rest of us newspapers to lay off that stink and permit the youngsters to sink into the oblivion they deserve.

Most of us developed an awful grouch during the three wet days that the week began with. But down at Beaufort 12 inches of rainfall in 10 hours was reported and paved streets were washed up or otherwise damaged. Unless one reads the newspapers he never realizes how blessed are we who dwell in the metropolis of the Albemarle.

Washington Letter

BY HARRY B. HUNT NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Women's progress in politics will be demonstrated within the next few weeks of the presidential campaign. For the first time in history, the wives of candidates on a presidential ticket will take to the stump as real political helpmeets to their husbands.

The women who will blaze this new trail of political action will be Mrs. Belle La Follette and Mrs. Lulu Wheeler, wives of the Independent candidates for president and vice president respectively.

Mrs. La Follette's first speech of the campaign probably will be made at an Independent Progressive rally scheduled for some near-by point in Maryland. Mrs. Wheeler, who will accompany her husband on his tour into the middle west and west, will address gatherings, particularly of women, in the same towns where Senator Wheeler speaks.

ALTHOUGH this will be a new experience for the nation—having the wives of presidential and vice presidential candidates speaking for some near-by point—it will be no new experience for the two women. Campaigning for their husbands is an old story to them. True, this will be their first venture as orators in a national campaign.

HAD TEN PINTS OF WHISKEY IN BOSOM Durham, Sept. 19.—With ten pints of whiskey in his bosom, R. Luther Vickers, of this city, was arrested at a local warehouse Wednesday when his actions in attempting to hurry away and to hide when police came near, caused the officers to be suspicious and to corner him for an investigation. He was carried to the city jail where he is now being held for trial under a bond of $1,000. Officers later searched the home of Vickers and found political managers of all the parties, which puzzle us: "How can we stir the interest of the women voters?"

All of the parties, of course, have "Women's Bureaus," with women in charge, trying to stir up some semblance of enthusiasm among the women. But although the women were fighting tooth and toenail a few years ago for the ballot, now that they've got it they're seemingly trying to conserve it as a sort of souvenir instead of using it, the candidates complain.

This is particularly true of the very organizations that were in the thickest of the fight for equal suffrage. The National Women's Party and the National League of Women Voters, for instance, are both standing on the sidelines, declining to be enticed into any of the rival political camps.

Officials and influential members of these organizations say they must not side either with Republicans, Democrats or Independents lest their action be misconstrued. Since their organizations are non-partisan, they must be non-committal.

A CONCENTRATED campaign to crack this reserve on the part of women's organizations is under way by the women's bureaus of all three political outfits. So far as winning an open endorsement for any candidate, however, by any of the national woman suffrage organizations, the outlook is altogether bleak. There will be no effort, on the part of any of them, to "deliver" the women's vote. Probably they know they couldn't deliver, even if they promised. So they decline to raise any false hopes.

It is the individual women, not the organizations of women, that will decide where the women's vote will land. And, understanding feminine psychology better than the masculine campaigners, it is the vote of the individual woman Mrs. La Follette and Mrs. Wheeler will invite from the stump.

MAYOR WATCHED BY TRIBESMEN

The Watch, However, Came from the Jeweler, and Was Presented for Faithful Service.

A fraternal event of more than ordinary interest was the meeting held Thursday evening by Pasquotank Tribe No. 8, Improved Order of Red Men and the special features connected therewith.

Taking advantage of the absence from the last regular meeting of Mayor W. Ben Goodwin, one of the few charter members upon the present roster and actively engaged in the work of the tribe, who was in attendance upon the National meeting being held at Indianapolis, the membership voted to present Mr. Goodwin a present in token of appreciation for long and faithful service. The present selected was a handsome and valuable Hamilton watch.

The eulogistic and presentation address was made by Judge George J. Spence of the local Recorder's Court, and the recipient feelingly responded. Judge Spence reviewed the history of the tribe briefly and mentioned the loyal and whole-hearted work of Mr. Goodwin in bringing the tribe to its present status of nearly seven hundred members and money worth of approximately $25,000.

After the regular business of the meeting and exercises incident to the presentation, the tribe enjoyed a social session which wound up with a splendid oyster supper in

ASHEVILLE OFFERED FAMOUS PAINTINGS

Asheville, Sept. 19.—A famous collection of paintings has been offered to the city of Asheville for temporary use in any art exhibit that local art lovers may organize through the local chamber of commerce, it has been announced from the offices of that organization. The offer was made by the American Federation of Arts in New York City.

Officials of the chamber of commerce have suggested that the offer be accepted and plans have already been started for holding of such an exhibit in the near future. According to the letter from the American Federation of Arts, the collection that will probably be sent here will be the American artists group that is now on exhibit at the Tennessee State Fair in Nashville.
