MARY'S LAMB LESS POPULAR THAN RABBIT

And Many Alleged "Ermine" Coats Seen Nowadays Are Really Made From Poor Bunny's Fur RABBIT HATS TOO Again the Demand for Velour and Felt Hats Makes Life Hard on This Shy, Wild Creature

By AILEEN LAMONT (Copyright, 1925, by The Advertiser) New York, Dec. 1. — Mary's lamb with snow white fleece is far less popular at present than Mary's white rabbit. Rabbit raising has become popular among many women with large estates and is yielding remarkable profits in some cases since the skins are in heavy demand. Many alleged ermine coats, so popular for formal evening wear, are really rabbit coats. The demand for velour and felt hats also is heavy and accounts for about half the rabbit fur production.

Scarf Arrangements Modern women may be willing to "let the chips fall where they may" but they do not allow their scarfs to fall so carelessly. There are a dozen new ways of arranging these toilet adjuncts, but the latest is to tie the scarf tightly about the throat with the knot in the back, allowing the wide ends to fall down the back to the waist line. Crepe de chine scarfs in large flashy geometrical designs are very popular.

Simple Designs Simplicity of design characterizes most of the new shoes now being worn but this simplicity does not extend to the materials. Many shoes now have unusual inserts to brighten them. One is of black satin with side inserts of flashing black and gold brocade. Another, of patent leather has inserts of sealskin, on the sides and toes.

Expensive Flowers The artificial flowers worn on the shoulders of the winter coats are growing both in popularity and price. The newest examples are formed of beautifully cut stones. One flower spray just imported represents a lily of the valley carried out in crystal with the leaves formed of green velvet.

Walt On Mitchell American milliners are waiting to see how the case of Colonel Mitchell comes out before sponsoring the new aviator helmet hats originated in Paris. These caps are of velvet, fitting close to the head and with tabs covering the ears, the theory being that women's ears have been in retirement so long that they need protection when exposed by the boyish bob.

Give a Wrap The man who does not give a rap, probably will not give a wrap this Christmas. But if he does give a wrap, he probably will select one of the new gold or silver brocade shawls for evening wear. These coverings are of the most brilliant colorings, including combinations of gold and silver with black, white, powder blue, lacquer red and fuchsia.

Chamois Lined Chamois leather has not lost its appeal as a handcovering with the coming of winter. One of the newest winter glove models is made of soft mocha leather and lined with chamois. This, it is claimed, gives warmth without the bulkiness of a fur or woolen lining.

Red Topped Boots Daughters instead of sons are wearing red topped boots this winter. The high Russian kid boots which have become a feature of the London styles, have crept into popularity here. They are made in a variety of startling colors, such as bottle green, royal blue, black and white. Some are trimmed at the top, which should just reach the skirt hem with fur bands.

Synthetic Sapphires Sapphires have achieved a new popularity this winter. As a result, imitations of this stone are being extensively used for costume jewelry and for trimming of evening frocks. In some cases synthetic sapphires are being set in platinum conjunction with real diamonds.

Kingdom For Fur Coat If Richard III had dropped into the horse show last week and yelled "My Kingdom for a horse," it would have occasioned no surprise. All the men would have thought he had sold his horse to buy one of the fur coats so lavishly displayed in the boxes. If it happened to be an ermine coat, they would have known it was a good horse. Mink and sable are the only real rivals of ermine for evening wraps but, on the velvet coverings, while fox and marabout are extensively used for trimmings.

Geographical Capes Capes today have almost as many variations as those in the geography. They range from the coverings which fall only to the waist and are attached to the gowns with which they are worn, to models of velvet and fur which come well below the skirt line.

STRENGTH

Away back in history, sturdy Norsemen found cod-liver oil sufficient to help develop marvelous strength and endurance.

Scott's Emulsion is cod-liver oil like the Vikings thrived on prepared in the form of a rich, tasty cream. It builds strength and endurance.

Scarf Collar

The tweed or jersey suit for spring has a scarf collar that neutralizes the severe power as suggestive of masculine attire. It is the same material as the shirt, rather narrow, and aims to contribute to the well being of the ensemble rather than to focus attention on itself.

are attached just behind the right ear and sweep down over the right shoulder and bust almost to the waist line.

High Pockets High pockets have taken the place of high waist lines on many of the afternoon frocks of the outstanding French designers. These receptacles are placed well above the belts which are posed at the hip lines.

Many of the pockets are triangular and heavily embroidered, giving a touch of color to the more sober fabric of the dress itself.

Trains It is no simple matter to get a train to Florida, but many women wear them after they arrive. Most of these trains are of the lame materials or of metal lace. One new frock of white crepe has the front decorated with beads or brilliants while the back is formed of a panel of silver tissue which extends into a short train less than 15 inches wide.

Trimmer Traces "I really don't miss you," I look on a note, declared one Mrs. Stuart Vester this week. But she faces tremendously how she looks when she dismounts from it. For that reason she and others who will ride in the South this winter are taking trimmer traces with them. These are essentially built frocks which keep the riding costumes of the East Coast, now so popular, properly distended while not being worn. When parked with a coat and ensembler, and boots and foot traces, a small trunk it almost a necessity in an established venue in car dress.

New Effect

he wearing had to do something radical, and here is the latest version, a jeweled ornament in diamonds and pearls that follows the arc of shape of the ear instead of dangle from the lobe. While an existing, we cannot feel it will offer any serious competition to the established venue in ear dress.

WOMAN'S CLUB AT THREE WEDNESDAY "Remember the Woman's Club meeting promptly at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon," says Mrs. J. G. Evarina, "in the club room. Please make a special effort to be present. Business of importance must be attended to. The Literary Department will meet at four."

ALABAMA MOVIE SHOWS HOW TO BE HAPPY, TOO MARRIED

What of the woman whose husband has decided that he need no longer court her? This is the intriguing theme of the First National production, "Single Wives," which is showing at the Alhambra Theater today and tomorrow in which Corinne Griffith and Milton Sills are co-starring for the first time on the screen.

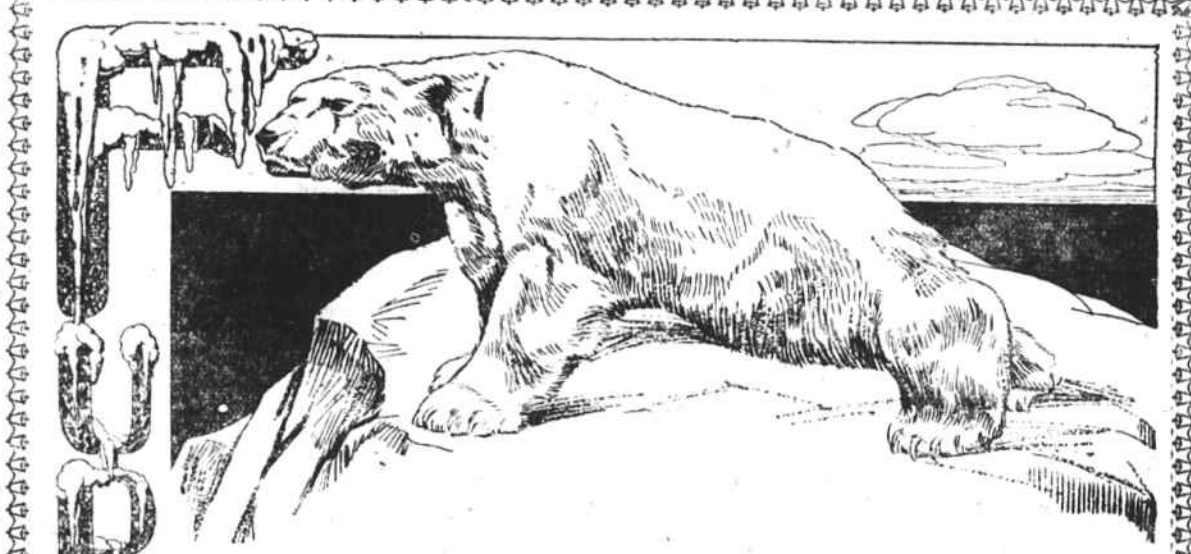

In addition to Corinne Griffith and Milton Sills, the cast boasts of very prominent screen names, including Kathryn Williams, Lou Tellegen, Henry B. Walthall, Freddie Hewes, Phillips Smalley, Joe Austin, John Patrick and others.

CHAUFFEURS ARE ON THEIR WAY TO GEORGIA Atlanta, Dec. 1. — Nearly 200 chauffeurs have come from here to Valdosta, Georgia, whence they will drive passenger automobiles and trucks to Florida west coast points, where they will be directed. Tobacco warehouses in South Georgia cities are filled with automobiles, tractors and other freight waiting transportation to Florida overland.
