DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON,

SUNDAY'S DISCOURSE BY THE NOTED DIVINE.

The Choice of a Wife-From a Rustic Bible Scene is Drawn a Practical and Inspiring Lesson For All Classes of People-The Calling For Special Work.

TEXT: "Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian."-Exodus iii., 1.

In the southeastern part of Arabia a man is sitting by a well. It is the arid country and water is scarce, so that a well is of great value, and flocks and herds are driven vast distances to have their thirst slacked. Jethro, a Midianite shelk and priest, was so fortunate as to have seven daughters, and they are presented in the daughters, and they are practical girls, and yonder they come, driving the sheep and cattle and camels of their father to the watering. They lower the buckets and then pull them up, the water plashing on the stones and chilling their feet, and the troughs are filled. Who is that man out there, sitting unconcerned and looking on? Why does he not come and help the women in this hard work of drawing water? But no sooner have the dry lips and pant-ing nostrils of the flocks begun to cool a ittle in the brimming trough of the well than some rough Bedouin shepherds break in upon the scene, and with clubs and shouts drive back the animals that were drinking and affright these girls until they fly in retreat, and the flocks or these illmannered shepherds are driven to the troughs, taking the places of the other flocks.

Now that man sitting by the well begins to color up, and his eye flashes with indignation, and all the gallantry of his nature is aroused. It is Moses who naturally had a quick temper, anyhow, as he demon-strated on one occasion when he saw an Egyptian oppressing an Israelite and gave the Egyptian a sudden clip and burled him in the sand, and as he showed afterward when he broke all the Ten Commandments at once by shattering the two granite slabs or which the law was written. But the injustice of this treatment of the seven girls sets him on fire with wrath, and he takes this shepherd by the throat, and pushes back another shepherd till he falls over the trough, and aims a stunning blow between the eyes of another, as he cries, "Begone, you villains!" and he hoots and roars at the sheep and cattle and camels of these invaders and drives them back; and hav-ing cleared the place of the desperadoes, he told the seven girls of this Midianite sheik to gather their flocks together and bring them again to the watering. The fact that it took the seven daughters to drive the flocks to the well implies that they were immense flocks, and that her father was a man of wealth. What was the use of Zipporah's bemeaning herself with work when she might have reclined on the hillside near her father's tent, and plucked buttercups, and dreamed out ro-mances, and sighed idly to the winds, and wept over imaginary sougs to the brocks. No, she knew that work was honorable, and that every girl ought to have some-thing to do, and so she starts with the bleating and lowing and bellowing and neighing droves to the well for the watering. Around every home there are flocks and droves of cares and anxieties, and every daughter of the family, though there be seven, ought to be doing her part to take care of the flocks. In many households, not only is Zipporah, but all her sisters, without practical and useful employments. Many of them are waiting for fortunate and prosperous matrimonial alliance, but some lounger like themselves will come along, and after counting the large num-ber of father Jethro's sheep and camels will make proposal that will be accepted; and neither of them having done anything more practical than to chew chocolate caramels, the two nothings will start on the road of life together, every step more and more a failure. That daughter of the Midianitish sheik will never find her Moses. There is a question that every father and mother ought to ask the daughter at break-fast or tea table, and that all the daughters of the wealthy shelk ought to ask a "What would you do if the family fortune should fail, if sickness should prostrate the breadwinner, if the flocks of Jethro should be destroyed by a sudden ex-sursion of wolves and bears and hyenar from the mountain? What would you do for a living? Could you support yourself? Can you take care of an invalid mother or brother or sister as well as yourself?" Yea, bring it down to what any day might come to a prosperous family. "Can you cook a to a prosperous family. "Can you cook a dinner if the servants should make a strike for higher wages and leave that morning? There needs to be peaceful, yet radical revolution among most of the prosperous homes of America, by which the elegant do-nothings may be transformed into practical do-somethings. Let useless women go to work and gather the flocks. Come, Zipporah, let me introduce you to Moses. See in this call of Mosses that God has a great memory. Four hundred years before He had promised the deliverance of the op-pressed Israelites of Egypt. The clock of time has struck the hour, and now Moses is called to the work of rescue. Four hundred years is a very long time, but you see God can remember a promise four hundred years as well as you can remember four undred minutes. No one realizes how great he is for good or for evil. There are branchings out and rebounds, and reverberations, and elab-orations of influence that can not be estimated. The fifty or one hundred years of our earthly stay is only a small part of our sphere. The flap of the wing of the de-stroving angel that smote the Egyptian oppressors, the wash of the Red Sea over oppressors, the wash of the Red Sen over the heads of the drowned Egyptians, were all fulfillments of promises four centuries old. And things occur in your life and in mine that we can not account for. They may be the echoes of what was promised in the sixteenth or seventeenth century. Oh, the prolongation of the divine memory! Notice, also that Moses was eighty years of age when he got this call to become the Israelitish deliverer. Forty years he had lived in palaces as a prince, another forty years he had lived in the wilderness of Arabia. Nevertheless, he undertook the work, and if we want to know whether he ucceeded, ask the abandoned brick-kilns of Egyptian taskmasters, and the splintered charlot wheels strewn on the beach of the Red Sea, and the timbrels which Mirlam clapped for the Israelites passed over and the Egyptians gone under. Still further, watch this spectacle of genuine courage. No wonder when Moses scattered the rude shepherds, he won Zipporah's heart. What mattered it to Moses whether the cattle of the seven daughters What mattered it to Moses of Jethro were driven from the troughs by the rude herdsmen? Sense of justice fired his courage; and the world wants more of the spirit that will dare almost anything to see others righted. All the time at wells of comfort, at wells of joy, at wells of re-ligion, and at wells of literature there are ngion, and at weils of interature there are outrages practiced, the wrong herds get-ting the first water. Those who have the previous right come in last, if they come in at all. Thank God, we have here and there a strong man to set things right! I am so giad that when God hes an especial more to do He has some one randw to acwork to do. He has some one ready to ac-complish it. Still another, see in this call of Moses that if God has any especial work for you to do He will help you. There were Egypt that if God has any especial work for you to do He will help you. There were Egypt and Arabia and the Palestine with their crowded population, but the man the Lord wanted was at the southern point of the triangle of Arabia, and He picks him right out, the shepherd who kept the flock of Jethro, his futher-in-law, the priest and sheis. So God will not find i bard to take you out from the sizteen hui dred millions of the human race if He wan is you for anyof the human race if He wants you for anything especial. O what a faseInating and aspiring char-acter this Moses! How tune all other stories compared with the biography of Pilgrimages to some shrine of St. Vitus to cure the disease known as St. Vitus' dance are no longer made. The modern dance are no longer made. The modern way of treating this affliction is within reach of every household, as is shown by the experience of Karl A. Wagner, the eleven-year-old son of George Wagner, of 515 9th St., Arkansas City, Kan. The father tells the story as follows: "Over a year ago," he says, "Karl was taken with St. Vitus' dance and continued to grow worse during five months he was under a physician's care. His tongue be-came paralyzed and we could not understand a word he said. He became very thin, lost the use of his right leg and seemed doomed to become a hopeless invalid. We had about given up hope when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were recommended to my wife by a lady whose daughter had been cured of a similar affliction by the pills.

"I bought a box of them at once and soon noticed a change for the better in Karl's condition. I was so well pleased that bought more them, o f and when he had a taken five boxes the disease disappeared. A Hopeless Invalid. "That was six months ago and there has been no return of the disease. The cure was effectual and permanent, and I feel satisfied that no other medicine could have pro-duced so marvelous a result. We feel rejoiced over the restoration of our son, and cannot help but feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the most re-markable medicine on the market."

No discovery of modern times has proved such a blessing to mankind as Dr. Will-iams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, invigorating the body, regulating the functions, they restore the strength and health in the exhausted patient when every effort of the physician proves unavailing. These pills are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

Control of Palsied Hands.

The control men get over their hands by constant practice was being discussed. One cited the case of an artist who is afflicted with palsy so badly that he cannot convey his food or drink to his mouth unaided. And yet this man with pallet and brush in hand can paint as well as ever he could. Before his brush touches the canvas his hand trembles violently, but the moment he feels the brush touch his picture his stroke becomes firm and strong and just what he desires it to be.

Haymaking in India.

At Allahabad eight cuttings of grass are taken during the season, which begins early in the monsoon, and lasts, say, from the middle of June to the middle of March. From manured land the total weight varies from fifteen to forty tons per acre, according to the quality of the soil and the number of years which have elapsed since the manure was applied. The jhabau, a native hook which resembles a scythe blade, is preferred to the grass mower drawn by bullocks, as the clean cut of former is less injurious to the grass stubble than the clipping action of the latter, which reduces the number of cuttings from eight to two. On poor, unmanured land only one crop can be cut for hay In October.

The haymaking season begins in the middle of September. It is impossible to make good hay before this time, for, even in periods when there is no rain, the ground is so wet that moisture is drawn up by the hay, which, quite independently of this circumstance, does not dry properly in the humid atmosphere. There are forty-eight good species of natural grasses, some of which are as valuable as any British grass, and frequent cutting develops a fine quality of produce. -Blackwell's Magazine,

These ships, representing the two navies, are fastened in their places on the map with pins, and are moved from day to day to correspond with the movements of the ships. The President, the Secretaries of War and the Navy, Lieutenant-General Schofield and members of the War Council and Strategy Board have before them the exact positions of the navies up to the latest information as they discuss the plans from day to day. The whole game of war, so far as the Atlantic is concerned, with the locations of the pawns, is before them.-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No amount of argument can convince the experienced, honest grocer that any other soap will give his customers such general satisfaction as Ivory Soap. He knows that they prefer Ivory Soap to new kinds, of unknown quality.

Ivory Soap will sell because the people want it, the other soaps may look like Ivory, but his customers want the real thing - they may buy a new soap once to try it, but they come back again and again for Ivory Soap, and they insist on having it.

Lawrence's Immortal Cry.

"Don't give up the ship," the dying works of Commodore Lawrence, the heroic commander of the Chesapeake, are among the very noblest ever uttered. They will live as long as ocean rolls or gallant ship floats. The gallant Perry flew that signal at his masthead in the memorable battle of Lake Erie, at the glorious close of which he had the inspiration to pen that dispatch which has canonized him in our history: "We have met the enemy and they are ours," It was written on his stiff hat in lieu of a table, on the half of an old letter, and the additional information in it gave the size and number of the enemy, namely, "two ships, two brigs, one schooner and one sloop." Perry was a hero in peace as well as in war. During a fearful winter storm, while lying in the harbor of Newport, he heard that a merchant vessel had been driven on a reef six miles distant. He at once manned his barge and said to the crew: "Come, my boys, we are going to the relief of shipwrecked seamen; pull away." That act was applauded by the country almost as much as the battle on Lake Erie. During the Mexican war General Scott requested the loan of some guns from the fleet, to be used on shore. Perry complied, but on one condition-that "wherever the guns go the officers and men must go'also."

Books on High Shelves.

To put a book in a bookcase on a shelf over six feet from the ground means that you will have to climb for it. With the common, close-shuttingup stepladder this may mean only slight expenditure of labor, but the trouble the getting of the book may require is not the most serious one. One should never put a book up high if it has a nice binding, because, as the heat rises, the leather of the book will dry up, rot, and perish. Gaslight, which throws off its sulphureted hydrogen, and the ordinary kerosene lamp are mortal enemies of all bound books which stand on a high shelf. Then, again, the finer particles of dust rise, lodge, and stick to the book. Nice gilding becomes obliterated. The mortal foe of a book is, then, a high shelf

The following letter to Mrs. Pinkham from Mrs. M. RANK, No. 2,354 East Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., is a remarkable statement of relief from utter discouragement. She says

" I never can find words with which to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"Some years ago I had womb trouble and doctored for a long time, not seeing any improvement. At times I would feel well enough, and other times was miserable. So it went on until last October, I felt something terrible creeping over me, I knew not what, but kept getting worse. I can hardly explain my feelings at that time. I was so depressed in spirits that I did not wish to live, although I had everything to live for. Had hysteria, was very nervous; could not sleep and was not safe to be left alone.

"Indeed, I thought I would lose my mind. No one knows what I endured. "1 continued this way until the last of February, when I saw in a paper a testimonial of a lady whose case was similar to mine, and who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I determined to try it, and felt better after the first dose. I continued taking it, and to-day am a well woman, and can say from my heart, 'Thank God for such a medicine.
