A Cemetery a Necessity.

When we look about the well filled church yards of this town, we realize the fact that not much space remains in which to bury our dead, and when we stand above the open grave of a departed friend or relative and see that grave fill with water, because of the low situation and ill drainage, we realize that our town needs some better place as a burying ground for our departed ones. It seems to us that aside from the humiliation of having to consign for some two years has been appointed our dead to a watery grave, the agent at Plymouth, health of the town is not being prohealth of the town is not being promoted by the act.

Let our people consider the question of a cemetery, and at once take action to purchase a suitable plot of ground. The time is near when now?

Let the various churches act with the town in accomplishing this mucn needed object.
