AWAY WITH THE DREAMS.

(On the death of an ex-confederate so!

Far-far from his sunny-sweet meadows, The blue hills and sea-singing streams, And drifted away with the dreams,

War thunders and glories and gleams; In space-having fought his last battle-He drifted away with the dreams.

No sound of the musketry's rattle-

He had followed where Jackson was lead ing-

He had blazed a red pathway for Lee, His sword in the cause he was pleading; He had battled with Semmes on the sea, But now o'er his form they were bending-

Old foes, in a new morning's beams, With tears for the life that was ending, As he drifted gway with the dreams.

They saw the red scars on his bosom. (The wounds that he gloried to wear.) And Love, like a lily-white blossom,

Was tenderly laid on them there. "A soldier!" Enough in the knowing! The light of the far battle streams. No wonder the quick tears were flowing As he drifted away with the dreams !

And they tenderly lifted and laid him (Those wounds-honors stars-on his breast.)

On a couch Love had blest and had made film:

In the beautiful roses of rest, Still "at home," in a land love-united,

Though far from his meadows and streams. love-lamps-the love-lamps were lighted. As he drifted away with the dreams,
