THE ROANOKE BEACON, Plymouth, N. C.

MUST GIVE OBJECT LESSONS.

North Carolina is steadily making progress as a manufacturing State. For a long time the people of Thomasville sought to induce Northern capitalists to come there and manufacture furniture.

Arrangements have been completed for the establishment at Thomasville, N. C., of an industry important to the wood-working interests of that section.

Capitalists are rarely pioneers. They invest in those communities and enterprises in which the people themselves have invested their own money and brains and muscle and found profitable.

The town that wants outside capital must first demonstrate that the proposed enterprises will pay by risking their own money.

The Appetite of a Goat

ONLY ONE SAFE SYSTEM.

The short cotton crop, its low price, and the high price of provisions, should interest southern farmers intensely.

While perhaps for years they have been uncertain and undecided concerning certain questions of expediency in their system of farm operations, they are now brought face to face with conditions which surely they cannot fail to understand. Frequently the farmers in the South have made calculations that cotton at a good price would be the most profitable crop they could raise.

Under certain circumstances this system has seemed easy enough, but the hard earned experience of most farmers who have tried it has proved to them that however plausible and pleasing the system they have never been able to make results turn out quite as well as they calculated.

Take, for instance, the farmer who became fascinated by the price of cotton last year and cut down his corn and other food crops.

What farmer can raise cotton even at 10 cents the pound and pay 12 or 13 cents for meat and come out with any profit?

From observations made in a general way and of the system followed by certain particular farmers from year to year, we are fully convinced that there is only one safe system of farming in the South.

The fondest hopes of ancient or modern seekers after the Fountain of Perpetual Youth, can scarcely have aimed higher than the results achieved by the marvellous compound, known throughout the East as EL MOKBER.

Travellers returning to Europe have, from time to time, brought astonishing tales of the rejuvenating effects produced by this Wonder of the Orient.

Recently, however, a prominent native Arabian Physician, banished from his country for political offenses, and deprived of his vast possessions, has revealed himself to the world.

EL MOKBER is a Remedy for the specific purpose, which is to strengthen the vital force and prevent decay in the nervous system.

It is put up for the American trade in tablet form, and though extremely powerful, it is perfectly harmless and easily taken.

A Wonderful Offer to Women.

We have received word of a most remarkable offer which is to be made to women by The Delineator, of New York.

Taking the fact that next year begins a new century, The Delineator offers to distribute $17,500 among 1901 women. The plan is so cleverly arranged that a woman living in a small town or village, has just as good a chance to win one of these 1901 prizes as a woman living in a city—because the prizes are given for the number of subscriptions secured in a town in proportion to the population of that town.

Furthermore, to everyone who fails to win one of the 1901 prizes there will be paid an extra commission on subscriptions, provided they equal one out of every two hundred inhabitants of the town from which the contestant sends them.

This is altogether a very liberal offer, and one which the famous old Delineator is well able to make good. From our point of view, we do not see why such an offer needs to be made by the Publishers of The Delineator.
