JAS. A. CHESSON DEAD.

The death of the late James A. Chesson has thrown a shadow over as many hearts as any death that has befallen this community in many years, and the entire county to whose service his public life, for all of his best years was given, shares the fulress of that grief that bowed every head of the great host of admiring friends that stood around his open grave.

To every life there is-there certainly must be -a special service assigned, and it is the common error of humanity to underestimate the value and importance of that service that comes nearest in touch with us and to extol that that lies farthest away beset with coronets of enchantment that imagination and illusion weave around the brow of the high public functionary; but death is a stern corrector of this error when it makes its choice between these classes, for the loss is sorest and most lasting that falls the nearest to us.

The death of this citizen falls as a heavy, and in some respects irremediable loss upon this county, and especially his immediate community. He had unadmiring excepting by the favored ones for whom it was infellow citizens, because he was to some an unadmiring man and this because his convictions were positive and his character was written in bold, brave lines on the outer page, but he enjoyed as wide a circle of true friendship and admiration as any and wealthier classes of all Europe, who have gentleman we have known. His worst cheerfully paid him large fees in return for the benparts were outward but his best were easily found within and hore the fruits of all his life and at the last they brought a or his Remedy, but he has firstly agreed with the large community-a host of honest, brave and gallant men and women in sorrow to his bier.

He descended from a large and promi- the first time to the American public. nent family long identified with this county, only one member of his immediate family -W. R. Chesson, Esqr., now surviving. We believe he was an active Confederate soldier, and with all the rest of that great band bore himself well, and before that bright insignis of public recognition of gratitude and devotion, a nation of manhood and chivalry stands uncovered to-day after 36 years have left its history to the past. He was at his death Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Washington county, in which capacity he had served since January 1899, with profound public approyal. He had been for many years a Justice of the Peace in which office he was of incalculable service.

He died Nov. 13th, at his home near Roper, and was laid to his rest on the 14th, in the old cemetery of St. Lukes, with the service of the English Church, of which he was a member. He leaves a widow and large family of children. His home life was an exemplary and happy one, and hospitality was the sceptred monarch of his household.

We don't know much of his religious life-the clash of religious opinion and the quarress of doctrinaries put that largely beyond our powers of definition, but the religion of Ben Adhem was in him and seen of all men:

"Abou Ben Adhem- may his tribe increase"

And saw upon his cottage wall The hand of an Angel writing in a book of ington county, N. C.

Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold, And to the vision in the room he said : What writest thou?

The names of those that love the Lord, And is mine one, said Adbem.

Nay, not so. I pray thee then

Write mine as one who loves his fellowmen.

The Angel wrote and vanished, The next night came to write the names

Of those the Lord had blessed, "And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest."

We have written but imperfectly, knowing little of his early life, but this as the sum of all, he was our friend and we mourn H. S. WARD. him sincerely.

A DEAD HEART.

In tranquil rest how still it lies, No flutter moves its calm; In happy sleep it passes by Its holy silent warm.

Hush! Let it rest and sleep in peace; The waves of trouble rolled Around its home in sea of woe, Ere Death its warning tolled.

It loved an I hoped; it trusted ere It broke with blinding pain, When love was proven false and cold, When trust was cruelly slain.

And now 'tis free to tread the way That leads to perfect love; And now 'tis glad in truest joy Within some Far Above.

"Peace! Come away," and let it sleep In crumbling to the dust ; It meets the hope of higher things, It knows the verdict just.
