Cataract Cannot Be Cured.
With local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease, Cataract is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Cataract Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Cataract Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing cataract. Send for testimonials, free.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

A use has been discovered for the hull of the cottonseed. It is to be used, in admixture with flax fibre, as material for the manufacture of paper.

Peat is being made into a kind of wood that will answer admirably for paving and railway sleepers. Peat wood can be made to resemble any kind, from willow to oak; it will not warp, is very durable, holds nails and screws with a firm grip, and becomes harder when laid on damp surfaces.

Bombay is cursed with badly arranged and unwholesome houses, possibly to a greater extent than any other city in the world. To get away from such tenements during the hot, dry season, camps are established in parks and open places about the city in which tents are erected. In these camps thousands of people live during five months out of the 12.

Electric energy from wind has been successfully obtained in both England and Germany, but it is in the latter country that it has been actually put into use. M. G. Couz of Hamburg used a windmill with a regulator, which keeps its speed constant, no matter what the speed of the wind was, and succeeded so well that there is a strong probability that it will be used in small villages in Germany and supply electric light and power at a low cost.

We know that it is dangerous to sit between two stools, but apparently S. Foxon of England has been thinking hard about the late worthy M. Euclid or of latter-day politicians, for he has provided a much-enduring "bus-riding" population with a triangular seat. This seat is a kind of three-sided drum, formed of flat boards or laths, and revolving on an axis. This method ensures one part of the seat always being usable, dry and clean in spite of rain, for the uppermost one protects the two lower ones. Of course the invention could well be applied to private and public garden seats. But users should sit fair and square; otherwise—!

Carriages lighted with electricity promise to be used in the near future. The lights will illuminate the interior of the vehicles, in addition to the ordinary carriage lights at either side of the coachman's box. The small batteries are placed under the coachman's seat. At the side of the box is a small switchboard by which the coachman can illuminate the interior of the carriage at will. In the centre of the top of the vehicle is a small electric bulb which casts a light of one candle power. The presence of the wires which connect the switchboard and the bulb is hidden by the black enamel. The purpose of the innovation is to furnish light when the occupants of a carriage are entering or leaving, and it promises to be a much appreciated improvement.

Signaling Mars Impossible.
The very largest city that this earth has ever known would be altogether too small to be visible to a being dwelling on the planet Mars, even if that being were endeavoring to see it with a telescope as powerful as the greatest and most perfect instrument in any observatory on this globe.

If the whole extent of Lake Superior was covered with petroleum, and if that petroleum was set on fire, then I think we may admit that an inhabitant of Mars who was furnished with a telescope as good as that which Mr. Percival Lowell uses at Flagstaff might be able to see that something had happened. But we must not suppose that the mighty conflagration would appear to the Martian as a very conspicuous object. It would rather be a very small feature, but still I think it would not be beyond the reach of a practised observer in that planet. On the other hand, if an area the size of Lake Superior on Mars was to be flooded with petroleum and that petroleum was to be kindled, we should expect to witness the event from here is not a large object, and the conflagration, but as a tiny little point of just discernible light. The size of Mars is not a large object, and the conflagration would not extend over the three-hundredth part of that disk.

It is sufficient to state these facts to show that the possibility of signaling to Mars is entirely beyond the power of human resources.—Sir Robert S. Ball, in The Independent.

Sewing Birds.
Most curious are the sewing or tailor birds of India—little yellow things not much larger than one's thumb. To escape falling a prey to snakes and monkeys the tailor bird picks up a dead leaf and flies up into a tree, and with a fibre for a thread and its bill for a needle, sews the leaf to a green one hanging from the tree; the sides are sewed up, an opening to the nest thus formed being left at the top. That a nest is swinging in the tree no snake or monkey or even man would suspect.—London Science Sitings.

The contortionist is not the only fellow who is addicted to patting himself on the back.

Marking Our Northern Boundary.

On that part of the boundary line delimiting Canada and the United States, between Rouse's Point and the River St. Lawrence, some of the fragile monuments of wood and mounds require attention, and in some cases replacement. To inspect them with a view of finding out their exact condition, the Canadian Government and that of New York have appointed surveyors to go over the ground, and report the facts as they find them. Many poles are said to have disappeared; an admonition that less perishable materials will require to be used as substitutes. Where the monuments have disappeared the problem will be to find the exact places which they occupied. Mounds are scarcely suitable for this work, for, besides being subject to denuding influences, they may be maliciously tampered with, and put out of easy recognition. Some durable material ought to be substituted for materials that are perishable or unstable, and we take it for granted that this course will be followed.

Kaiser Wilhelm allows no chance pass that will serve to make himself and his family popular with all classes in Germany. Of course the crown prince is dedicated to the army and likewise Eitel Fritz. To the navy was given Alcazar, and now he has given two other sons, not to the law, nor to the church nor to medicine, but to agriculture. It has been announced that Princes August William and Oscar will learn, in addition to the many other things they are taught, practical agriculture. Their father has given them a small farm at Pleon, and with a half dozen of their school-fellows they will dig and plant in the most scientific manner, selling their products at market prices to the Emperor. Not only will they dig and plant and weed, but they will have to milk two cows and look after the chickens.

Buckhannon (W. Va.) Woolen Mills states that it expects to build a modern plant to replace its $18,000 plant that was destroyed by fire recently. When a definite decision has been reached as to the new mill, particulars will be stated.

THREE CHICAGO DOCTORS

Failed to Do for Miss Mabelle L. LaMonte What Was Accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was in an awful state for nearly three years with a complication of female troubles which three physicians called by different names, but the pains were all the same. I dreaded the time of my monthly periods for it meant a couple of days in bed in awful agony. I finally made up my mind that the good doctors were missing; and hearing from different friends such good reports of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I tried that. I bless the day I did, for it was the dawning of a new life for me. I used five bottles before I was cured, but when they were taken I was a well woman once more. Your Compound is certainly wonderful. Several of my friends have used it since, and nothing but the best do I ever hear from its use."—Yours, MABELLE L. LAMONTE, 222 E. 31st St., Chicago, Ill.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.
