

SYNOPSIS.

Fran arrives at Hamilton Gregory's aome in Littleburg, but finds him absent ronducting the choir at a camp meeting. She repairs thither in search of him, laughs during the service and is asked to leave. Abbott Ashton, superintendent of schools, escorts Fran from the tent. He tells her Gregory is a wealthy man, deeply interested in charity work, and a pillar of the church. Ashton becomes greatly interested in Fran and while taking leave of her, holds her hand and is seen by Sapphira Clinton, sister of Robert Clinton, chairman of the school board. Fran tells Gregory she wants a home with him. Grace Noir, Gregory's private secretary, takes a violent dislike to Fran and advises her to go away at once. Fran hints at a twenty-year-old secret, and Gregory in agitation asks Grace to leave the room. Fran relates the story of how Gregory married a young girl at Springfeld while attending college and leave the room. Fran relates the story of how Gregory married a young girl at Springfield while attending college and then described her. Fran is the child of that marriage. Gregory had married his present wife three years before the death of Fran's mother. Fran takes a liking to Mrs. Gregory. Gregory explains that Fran is the daughter of a very dear friend who is dead. Fran agrees to the story, Mrs. Gergory Insists on her making her home with them and takes her to her arms. The breach between Fran and Grace widens. It is decided that Fran must go to school. Grace shows persistent interest in Gregory's story of his dead friend and hints that Fran may be an imposter. She threatens to marry Bob Clinton and leave Gregory's service, much to the latter's dismay. Fran declares that the secretary must go.

CHAPTER IX.

Skirmlshing.

Fran made no delay in planning her campaign against Grace Noir. Now that her position in Hamilton Gregory's household was assured, she resolved to seek support from Abbott Ashton. That is why, one afternoon, Abbott met her in the lower hall of the public school, after the other pupils had gone, and supposed he was meeting her by accident.

"Good evening, Nonparell," he said. pleased that her name should have come to him at once. His attentive look found her different from the night of their meeting; she had lost her elfish smile and with it the romance of the unknown and unexpected. Was it because, at half-past four, one's charm is at lowest ebb? The janitor was sweeping down the hall stairs. The very air was filled with dusty realism -Fran was no longer pretty; he had

"Then you haven't forgotten me," nurmured Fran

"No," he answered, proud of the fact. "You have made your home with Mr. Gregory. You are in Miss Bull's class-room. I knew Mr. Gregory would befriend you-he's one of the best men living. You should be very happy there."

"No." said Fran, shaking her head decidedly, "not happy."

He was rather glad the janitor was sweeping them out of the house. "You must find it pretty hard," he remarked. with covert reproach, "to keep from being happy."

"It isn't at all hard for me," Fran assured him, as she paused on the front steps. "Really, it's easy to be unhappy where Miss Grace Noir is."

It happened that just then the name Grace Noir was a sort of talisman opening to the young man's vision the interior of wonderful treasure-caves; it was like crying "Sesame!" to the very rocks, for though he was not in love with Gregory's secretary, he ahead.

"Will You Please Excuse Me?" She Asked With Admirable Restraint.

He had no time to seek fair and romantic ladies. Five years ago, Grace Noir had come from Chicago as if to spare him the trouble of a search. Fate seemed to thrust her between his eyes and the pages of his textbooks. Abbott never felt so unworthy as when in her presence; an unerring instinct seemed to have provided her with an absolute standard of right and wrong, and she was so invariably right table. that no human affection was worthy of her unless refined seven times. Within himself, Abbott discovered dross.

"Try to be a good girl, Fran," he coenseled. "Be good, and your asso dear lady! I wouldn't hurt you for penetrated his thick skin, the popular ciation with Miss Noir will prove the happient experience of your life."

me feel like tearing up things. I don't Sunday-school, and prayer meeting, side.

He came down the steps gravely. 'She is my friend."

"I'm a good deal like you," Fran declared, following. "I can like most anything and anybody; but I can't go that far. Well, I don't like Miss Noir and she doesn't like me-isn't that under his roof. Of course, Mrs. Gregfair?"

"Examine yourself," he advised, doesn't like; then get rid of what you

"Huh!" Fran exclaimed, "I'm going to get rid of her, all right."

He saw the old elfish smile now when he least wanted to see it, for it threatened the secretary, mocked the grave superintendent, and asserted the girl's right to like whom she pleased.

already preparing herself for the next move. So intent was she in estimating the forces of both sides, that she gave no heed to the watchful faces at cottage windows, she did not recognize the infrequent passers-by, nor observe the occasional buggies that eaked along the rutted road. With Grace stood, of course, Hamilton Gregory; and, judging from Bob Clinton's regular visits, and his particular attentions to Grace, Fran classed him also as a victim of the enemy. It now seemed that Abbott Ashton followed the flag Noir; and behind these three leaders, massed the congregation of the town of Littleburg. Fran could count for her support an old bachelor with a weak heart, and an old lady with an ear-trumpet. The odds were terribly against her.

Walnut Street church, and presumably

The first light skirmish between Fran and Grace took place on Sunday. All the Gregory household were at late breakfast. Sunday-school bells were ringing their first call, and there was not a cloud in the heavens as big "He Didn't Have to Stand a-Holding said Miss Sapphira, "since the death old! Robert, you make me blush." as a man's hand, to furnish excuse for non-attendance.

The secretary fired the first shot. Apropos of nothing that had gone be- prove that the girl was not the daughfore, but as if it were an integral part ter of Gregory's dead friend. Grace of the conversation, she offered-"And, Mrs. Gregory, it is so nice that you sibly visit the scenes of Gregory's can go to church now, since, if Fran youth-but it would pay. She looked doesn't want to go, herself-"

"Which she doesn't, herself," Fran interjected.

significantly. "Mrs. Gregory, Fran nately for his peace of mind, he could can stay with your mother-since she not read the purpose hidden behind doesn't care for church-and you can those beautiful eyes. attend services as you did when I first came to Littleburg."

to go-I den't like to think of her stay- if to invite antagonism, ing away from the services-and my duty is with mother."

sion of her mouth seemed to cry alcud. Sapphira Clinton's." Duty, indeed! What did Mrs. Gregory know about duty, neglecting the God who had made her, to stay with an old den where Fran sat huddled upon a lady who ought to be wheeled to rustic bench. "I was just saying," church! Mrs. Gregory was willing for Simon told her ingratiatingly, "that if her husband to fight his Christian all this to-do over religion isn't put a warfare alone. But alone? No! not stop to, I'll take my meals at the Clinwhile Grace could go with him.

Gregory coldly addressed Fran: Then, will you go to church?" It ing her chin from her palms, and asked was as if he complained, "Since my wife won't-

"I might laugh," said Fran. "I don't understand religion."

Grace felt her purest ideals insulted. She rose, a little pale, but without rudeness. "Will you please excuse me?" she asked with admirable restratut.

"Miss Grace!" Hamilton Gregory exclaimed, disturbed. That she should be driven from his table by an insult to their religion was intolerable. "Miss Grace-forgive her."

Mrs. Gregory was pale, for she, too, had felt the blow. "Fran!" she exclaimed reproachfully.

Old Mrs. Jefferson stared from the girl seated at the table to the erect Boarding-House, the home of jollity, fancied the day of fate was not far secretary, and her eyes kindled with was not warranted by its real atmosadmiration. Had Fran commanded the "dragon" to "stand?"

Simon Jefferson held his head close to his plate, as if hoping the storm Clinton depended for the most part might pass over his head.

"Don't go away!" Fran cried, overcome at sight of Mrs. Gregory's dis- dulging in that noisy gaiety to which tress. "Sit down, Miss Noir. Let me be the one to leave the room, since it just because they are transitory-the isn't big enough for both of us." She elderly spinster had developed an abdarted up, and ran to the head of the

Mrs. Gregory buried her face in her

"Don't you bother about me," Fran home, but it helped her brother Bob. coaxed; "to think of giving you pain. Before the charms of Grace Noir had anything in the world, and the per- Littleburg merchant was as unmanson who would isn't worthy of being ageable as the worst. Before he grew "He good," she returned mockingly, touched by my foot," and Fran accustomed to fall juto a semi-coma- beast slinking away, sneezing all the Plain Dealer.

from the room.

to ask him if, after this outrageous behavior, he would suffer Fran to dwell ory did not count; Grace made no attempt to understand this woman who, and find out what it is in you that she while seemingly of a yielding nature, could show such hardness, such a fixed purpose in separating herself from her husband's spiritual adventures. It made Grace feel so sorry for the husband that she quietly resumed her place at the table.

Grace was now more than ever resolved that she would drive Fran away-it had become a religious duty. Fran escaped, recognizing defeat; How could it be accomplished? The but on her homeward way, she was way was already prepared; the secretary was convinced that Fran was an impostor. It was merely needful to would have to delve into the past, posat her employer with an air suggesting protection.

Her Hand."

"I wonder," Simon Jefferson growled. 'why somebody doesn't badger me to bridge." "I am sure," Mrs. Gregory said qui- go to church!" Indignant because etly, "that it would be much better Fran had fled the pleasing fields of for Fran to go to church. She ought his interested vision, he paused, as of it," growled the ungrateful Bob, who sneaking out of that door like a

He announced, "This talk has excited me. If we can't live and let live, Grace said nothing, but the expres- I'll go and take my meals at Miss

> No one dared to answer him, not even Grace. He marched into the gartons'!"

> Fran looked up at him without movas she tried, apparently, to tie her feet into a knot, "Isn't that where > he returned, with subtle reproof. Fran, still dejected, nodded careless ly. "We're both after the same man." Simon lit the pipe which his physician had warned him was bad for his heart. "Yes, Professor Ashton boards at the Clintons'."

> Abbott Ashton boards?" "Do you mean Professor Ashton?"

> "Must be awfully jolly at the Clintons'," Fran said wistfully.

CHAPTER X.

An Ambuscade,

Fran's conception of the Clinton phere. Since there were not many inhabitants of Littleburg detached from housekeeping, Miss Sapphira on "transients;" and, to hold such in subjection, preventing them from in-"transients" are naturally inclinednormal solemnity.

This solemnity was not only beneficial to "drummers" and "court men" acutely conscious of being away from she twisted her mouth. "She makes a mite happier, I'll go to church, and Grace Noir, and, therefore, before his a mere child. Mere children are not famous attempt to "get religion." the in Miss Bull's classes." like her. I hoped you'd be on my and the young people's society, and the bachelor merchant often swore-not Ladies' Aid, and the missionary so- from aroused wrath, but from his peciety, and the choir practice, and the culiar sense of humor. In those Antinight service and-and-" She darted Grace and heathen days, Bob, sitting I'll be bound she is-and carrying on on the long veranda of the green with Abbott on the very school-house Grace looked at Gregory, seeming frame building, one leg swinging over steps. Yes, I venture she is advanced. the other knee, would say, "Yes, it," or, "No, -- it," as the case might be. It was then that the reproving mustache; he would not swear, for protest of his sister's face would jelly whatever happened, he was resolved in the fat folds of her double chin, to lead the spiritual life. "See here, helping, somewhat, to cover profanity Sapphira. I'm going to tell you somewith a prudent veil.

a staid young teacher like Abbott Ash- to do itton, for instance-a young man who was almost like a son to her-when he her hand." secluded himself in the night-timewhat was the world coming to?

"There they stood," she told Bob. 'the two of them, all alone on the Sapphira-"the limb!" foot-bridge, and it was after nine to get home to see that roomers didn't is having lots of trouble with Franset the house afire, not a soul would have seen the two colloguing."

"And it don't seem to have done sons, being contraryyou any good," remarked her brother, who, having heard the tale twenty whistling at me, that night." times, began to look upon the event that very place. Perhaps he had been her in hand." elected president of the school-board ciate what does not belong to us.

"My home has been Abbott's home," of his last living relation, and her a could get rid of him by lifting your godly gossip." finger, and people are making lots of Gregory's face relaxed on finding innocent girls-they're a mighty hard-was immensely fond of Abbott.

She pointed at the school-house, which was almost directly across the street, its stone steps facing the long veranda. "They were the last to come

"But Abbott says the girl is far advanced." "Far advanced! You may well say!

You make me ashamed to hear you." Bob tugged at his straw-colored thing. I had quite a talk with Abbott Miss Sapphira liked a joke-or at about that bridge-business-after least she thought so-as well as any- you'd spread it all over town, sis-and body; but like a too-humorous author, if you'll believe me, she waylaid him she found that to be as funny as pos- on those school-steps. He didn't want sible was bad for business. The "trav- to talk to her. Why, he left her standeling men were bad enough, needing ing there. She made him mad, findto be reminded of their wives, whom ing fault with the very folks that have they'd left at home, and, she'd be taken her up. He's disgusted. That bound, had forgotten. But when one night at the camp-meeting, he had to man, whether a traveler or not-even take her out of the tent-he was asked

"He didn't have to stand, a-holding

"-And as soon as he'd shown her by himself? with another male? oh, the way to Brother Gregory's, he came dear, no!-with a Fran, for example- on back to the tent. I saw him in the aisle."

"And she whistled at me," cried Miss

"Now, listen, Sapphira, and quit o'clock. If I hadn't been in a hurry goading. Abbott says that Miss Bull "See that, now!"

"-Because Fran won't get her les-"I wish you could have seen her

"Hold on. So this very evening almost as a matter of course. "You'd Miss Bull is going to send her down better not have saw them"-at an to Abbott's office to be punished, or early age Bob had cut off his educa- dismissed. This very evening he wants tion, and it had stopped growing at me to be over there while he takes

"Abbott is going to punish that on the principle that we best appre girl?" cried Miss Sapphira; "going to take her in hand? What do you mean by 'taking 'her in hand'? She is too

"You ain't a-blushing, Sapphira," step, and it a mercy, for nobody could her brother assured her, good-naturedget along with her, and she wouldn't ly, "you're suffering from the hot let people leave her alone. You know weather. Yes, he's to punish her at how fond I am of Abbott, but your four o'clock, and I'm to be present, to position is very responsible. You stop all this confoun-I mean this un-

"You'd better wear your spectacles, talk; it's going to injure you. People Bob, so you'll look old and settled. don't want to send their tender young I'm not always sure of you, either."

"Sapphira, if I hadn't joined the "So I presumed," Grace remarked himself once more near her. Fortu- ened and knowing set, nowadays, church, I'd say-" He threw up his though, I must say-to a superinten- hand and clenched his fist as if he dent that stands on bridges of nights. had caught an oath and meant to hold holding hands, and her a young slip it tight. Then his honest face beamed. of a thing. His a-standing on that "See here, I've got an idea. Suppose you make it a point to be sitting out "He ain't stood there as often as here on the veranda at about half-past I've been worried to death a-hearing four, or five. You'll see Fran come whipped kitten. She'll look everlast-Miss Sapphira spoke with amazingly ingly wilted. I don't know whether significant double nods between each Abbott will stuff her full of fractions word-"And . . . I . . . saw and geography, or make her stand in . only . . . four . . . days a corner—but you'll see her wilted." (TO BE CONTINUED.)

TRAGEDY TURNED TO COMEDY time, and every now and again emit-

British Officer Tells How Snuff Saved Him From a Hungry Indian Tigress.

home on furlough.

Here is the strange true story in the soldier's own words: "I was out for a day in the jungle, and had had rather poor sport. Lying down for a bit of a rest upon some rank dry grass on the edge of a wood kid themselves into thinking that they in the afternoon, I was seized from save rent and board and clothes and behind without a moment's warning gain freedom and a lot of other by a huge tigress, which had got my things by so doing. But the collector scent and silently tracked me down.

"She seized me by the breast of the coat with her great teeth, and quickly shook me into a state of unconscious- bachelors awoke from a sound sleer ness. Of course, I thought it was all and called to the other: up with me.

"But no. Before long I made a startling recovery. Hardly realizing the hall. for a while where I was and what had happened, I heard a little distance away a peculiar noise, as if someone terrible tigress.

ting a frightful roar.

"Only when she had got clean out of sight did the strange truth dawn upon me. The tigress, in shaking me preparatory to finishing me off, had A comedy which came very near jerked my recently replenished snuffto tragedy is related by a gallant of box open from my jacket pocket, and ficer of the Bengal Lancers, now received the contents full in her face and eyes. Hence the sudden retreat and my salvation."

> Extravagance Rebuked. Two bachelors live together in a flat on East Nineteenth street. They comes to them the same as he does to married folk.

The other morning one of the

"What was that noise I heard?" "A shot," replied the other, from

"What dld you do?"

"I killed a bill collector." "You extravagant pup! When pow was sneezing violently. it was the der costs as much as it does now, it does seem to me as if you might "I rubbed my still somewhat dazed choke those fellows, even if it does eyes, and then discerned the great take a little muscle!"-Cleveland

DIZZY, HEADACHY, SICK, "CASCARETS"

Gently cleanse your liver and sluggish bowels while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizz. ness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath-always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep-a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Adv.

Big Sleep.

A middle-aged couple were preparing to leave for a week-end with a daughter in the city, and their last instructions to their grown-up son, who was a heavy sleeper, were to be sure and wind his alarm clock, so that he would be in time for his work the next morning.

Monday noon they got back to the house and were surprised to find the blinds closed exactly as they had been left the Friday previous on their departure. As they let themselves into the house they heard their son's voice coming sleepily from his bedroom:

"What's the matter? Did you miss your train?"

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER GRAY HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents. Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy. Adv.

Natural Phenomenon. "There's one queer thing about these constables out for speeding motorists."

"What is that?" "No matter how fast you go, you can't throw dust in their eyes.'

ELIXIR BABEK A GOOD TONIC and Drives Malaria out of the System. "Your 'Babek' acts like magic; I have given it to numerous people in my parish who were suffering with chills, maiaria and fever. I recommend it to those who are sufferers and in need of a good tonic."—Rev. S. Szymanowski, St. Stephen's Church, Perth Amboy, N. J. Elixir Babek 50 cents, all druggists or by Parcels Post prepaid from Kloczewski & Co., Washington, D. C.

Rural Journalism.

"The editor of the Plunkville Palladium seems to be popular in the community."

"Yes; he'll omit an advertisement any time to print local poetry."

Treatment of Sores. Apply Hanford's Balsam lightly and you should find that gradually the sore will diminish in size. The older the case the longer it will take, but it will edies fail. Adv. Literal Ones.

help the hard cases, after other rem-

"You don't really quarrel with your wife, I am sure. What you have are only sham disputes."

"Yes, but she persists in putting them all over the pillows."

For SUMMER HEADACHES Hicks' CAPUDINE is the best remedy— no matter what causes them—whether from the heat, sitting in draughts, fever-ish condition, etc. 10c., 25c and 50c per bottle at medicine stores. Adv.

At the Door. "What's that noise at the door? Opportunity knocking?"

"No, it's the wolf." Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflamma-tion, allaya pain, cures wind coile, Sic a bottle. At Kilkenny castle is one of the oldest inhabited houses in the world, many of the rooms being much as hey were 800 years ago.

For nail in the foot use Hanford's Jalsam. Adv.

Prices of mules are reported to be ising in Missouri. Cool a burn with Hanford's Balsam,

Copenhagen (Denmark)

Adv.

teachers get $330 a year.