A Word to Our Patrons.

We know that we are giving you one of the best local weekly papers published in this or any other section, and we know that you appreciate our efforts. But expenses must be met, and when we tell you that, owing to the increased price of paper our margin on your paper, before we print it, amounts to less than twenty-five cents for the entire year, we feel sure that you need no further insistence upon our part to assure your paying up promptly.

Washington County and the people in it were never in as good financial condition as now. No one is too poor to take and pay for his county paper, and he owes it to himself and his family to do this.

What would you and outsiders think of Washington County if it had no paper in it? And yet this must happen unless you do your full part by it.

We are trying to keep the paper going to you at the same old price while you are getting fancy prices for what you have to sell, but we cannot hold out unless every dollar due us is kept paid up.

We are sure that this statement of fact is all that is necessary upon our part, and that you will do the rest.

Plymouth and Washington County Loses a Valued Citizen and Family.

Mr. W. M. Bond, Jr., with his young wife and little son left Monday for Denver, Col., where they will remain for at least some months.

Mr. Bond, who is the eldest son of Judge W. M. Bond of Edenton, came to Plymouth upon obtaining his law license about eight years ago, at the age of twenty-one years, and cast his lot with our people, since which time he has gained a most enviable reputation among the legal fraternity of this entire section, and built up a law practice that has excited the wonder and admiration of older and more experienced lawyers.

No man ever gained more or closer friends within so short a time, and it is with most sincere regret of our people that, owing to threatened pulmonary trouble Mr. Bond leaves us in an effort to regain his usual good health in the dry, bracing atmosphere of the Middle-West.

Mr. and Mrs. Bond were accompanied on their long trip by Mrs. Bond's father, Dr. J. H. McMullan, and sister, Miss Mildred, the first to watch after his physical well being, and the latter to cheer and comfort her sister while among strangers.

Mr. Bond hopes to return to us within a few months, and we trust that he may be able to do so and that his health may be speedily and permanently restored. In the meantime the heartiest best wishes of our en-

Twelfth Anniversary Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Stephenson celebrated the twelfth anniversary of their wedding by delightfully entertaining a vast number of their friends at their home on Washington Street Wednesday evening from 9 till 12 o'clock.

The electric light plant being out of commission, oil lamps and candles were arranged in a most effective manner, and the light problem was solved.

As the guests arrived they were met at the door by Mrs. Thos. L. Smith and Mr. Linwood Hassell, and were passed on to the receiving line, which was composed of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Conway Newman, Miss Irene Muse of Norfolk, Mr. L. O. Miller of Richmond, and Mr. P. B. Tomlinson.

The gift room, which was in charge of Mrs. J. T. Outlaw, was decorated in green and white, and if the dainty, filmy linen which was scattered around in harmonious profusion is fitting evidence of the esteem in which the host and hostess are held, their popularity is most enviable.

Delicious fruit punch, contained in a capacious receptacle at the rear end of the hall and guarded by Misses Mary Smith and Gladys Hornthal, was served in a most bewitching style. The popularity of this beverage was made apparent by the frequent visits it received from most every one present.

The drawing room was pleasingly decorated in a color scheme of white and green, and the soft, sweet tones of the piano, under the skillful touch of Mrs. R. W. Johnston, emanated from the interior and carried the spirit of the occasion to every nook and corner of the building.

The dining-room, presided over by Mrs. E. R. Jackson, Misses Blanche Gilbert, Blanche Spruill and Mamie VanNortwick, carried out the color scheme of the drawing-room, and the luscious delicacies which were served added harmony to the occasion.

A magnificent cake, done up in a most superb manner, and containing pieces of metal which were supposed to decide the destiny of those finding them, was cut into innumerable slices by the joyous crowd. Mrs. Conway Newman unearthing a ring, Mrs. Nathan Tucker's slice disclosing a bachelor's button, and that of Mrs. E. R. Jackson revealing a tiny thimble. This number of the program provided an unusual method of pleasure for those attending.

At eleven o'clock Dr. B. H. Gilmer, in a flight of oratory informed the gathering that Hon. Van B. Martin would furnish a timely toast for the occasion. Mr. Martin ended his remarks by quoting:

"There is a word of grief, the sounding taken; There is a word bejeweled with bright tears; It's the saddest word that fond lips have ever spoken— It's a little word that breaks the chain of years, It's utterance must ever bring emotion, It's crystal memories can never die— It's known on every land and on every ocean; It's called 'GOOD BYE.'"

Messers Louis and Lloyd Horton held the attention of the gathering by a number of vocal renditions of "rag-time."

Those partaking of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson were, Misses Mary Smith, Gladys Hornthal, Blanche Spruill, Carrie Smith, Irene Muse of Norfolk, Blanche Gilbert and Mamie VanNortwick. Messers Cicero Norman, O. R. Leggett, Clyde Hassell, Linwood Hassell, Louis Hassell, P. B. Tomlinson, Van B. Martin, Louis Horton and L. O. Miller of Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stell, Mr. and Mrs.
