HAD ALL SHE COULD STAND

Despite Possible Proposal, "Young Old Maid" Was Unable to Put Up With Bore.

Tole is a new and charming correspondent who describes herself as "a rather young old maid in whom the eager desire for matrimony is almost overbalanced by an unfortunate sense of the ridiculousness of all masculine beings." Her letter relating some recent experiences with male bores and antics is too long to reproduce. We print this brief excerpt:

"He talked of socialism from 8:30 to 9:30 of the war from 10 till 10:30, of Bernard Shaw and how he is different from Chesterton till 11:30—and then of psychic therapeutics.

"I am, you know," he interjected, "connected with the Emmanuel movement."

"You surprise me," I murmured. "Why should you be surprised that I am interested in so absorbing a subject?" he demanded. And I'm afraid I glanced at the clock as I answered:

"I didn't imagine you could be connected with any sort of a movement!"

"But isn't it too bad? I think he would have proposed if I'd let him talk for another hour or so?"

The Contest.

"There is a lively contest going on here in our progressive little city," grimly acknowledged the proprietor of the Tote Fair store at Petunia. "to see whether Sores & Rubneck or Wardington Mont will sell the most goods in our midst this year. The winning side will be awarded a grand prize consisting of a handsome catalogue printed on India paper, bound in Morocco and sent postage paid. The rivalry between the two sets of partisans is so strong that right smart of acrimony has been engendered, and many people in order to swell the grand total of their side have purchased rare bargains that they could not afford and haven't any use for. And they are now chiding us merchants as heeling head pride because we hesitate about closing up our shops and turning such orders as we may get over to one or the other of the warring bands."—Kansas City Star.

A Growing Custom!

The custom of placing Grape-Nuts on the table at all meals is growing in American homes.

Both children and grown-ups help themselves to this delicious food as often as they like. It contains the entire nutriment of wheat and barley, digests quickly, and is wonderfully energizing.

Every table should have its daily ration of

"There's a Reason"

The KITCHEN CABINET

This world which clouds thy world with doubt
Is but a carpet inside out.
It's when we view these shreds and ends,
We know not what the whole intends;
So, when on earth, things look but odd,
They're working out some scheme of God.

What now seem random strokes, will there
In order and design appear.
Then shall we praise what here we spurned,
For then the carpet shall be turned.

WAYS WITH PEANUTS.

Peanuts are so cheap, so common and so wholesome that one should learn more ways of serving them.

In different localities it is called by various names, zoobor, ground nut, ground pea and earth nut. It is classed with nuts, but it really belongs to the leguminous plants, to which peas and beans belong. Peanut oil used as a shortening is a good substitute for olive oil. The peanut forms a very nutritious article of food, exceeding three times its weight in beef.

Peanut Soup.—Grind five cents worth of peanuts after removing the brown shell, add two cupfuls of strained oatmeal water, or rice water, boiled well, add two cupfuls of milk, season with salt, pepper and butter and thicken with flour or a beaten egg.

Peanut Meatose.—Mix two cupfuls of peanut butter with two cupfuls of tomato juice; add a cupful of cornstarch and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Stir and mix well; pour into baking powder cans and steam five hours. Serve cut in slices.

Nut Pie Crust.—Take three tablespoonfuls of peanut butter to a cupful of flour and use as in making ordinary pastry, adding cold water to make a mixture to roll. Grind fresh roasted peanuts and mix with mayonnaise or any good salad dressing, spread on buttered bread for a sandwich filling.

A handful of fresh roasted peanuts crushed with a rollingpin and sprinkled over head lettuce with a little shredded onion and a French dressing, makes a most delicious salad.

A half cupful of crushed peanuts sprinkled over the top of a custard pie before going into the oven is a pleasant change.

A little salt codfish is good to prevent nausea, either ear sickness or seasickness is relieved by it.

There is no action so slight nor so mean, but it may be done to a great purpose, and ennobled thereby; nor is any purpose so great but that slight acts may help it.—Ruskin.

HUNTER'S GAME BAG.

Rabbits are in season all winter and plentiful in most districts and they are good, if they are well cooked and seasoned.

Use a cleaver to divide the portions, as one does chicken, saute in a little hot fat, then stew in a casserole with onion, a little lemon juice and a cupful of any kind of soup stock, or a little kitchen bouquet with water will do for stock; cook three hours or until the rabbit is tender; make a brown sauce and serve with the sauce, garnished with parsley or water cress.

Curried Pheasant.—Melt a half cupful of butter in a saucepan, add two chopped onions, and brown; then strain out the onion and lay in the pheasant, cut at the joints in neat pieces, fry for five minutes, sprinkle with a tablespoonful of curry powder and cook five minutes longer; then add the fried onions, a chopped apple, two cupfuls of stock, salt and pepper to taste and simmer one hour. Add the lemon juice just before serving. Place the meat in the center of a hot platter and surround it with well seasoned boiled rice.

Squirrel Pie.—Arrange thin slices of bacon in the bottom of a deep baking dish, season with salt and pepper; add a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of mixed herbs and a cupful of white sauce. Cut two squirrels in serving-sized pieces and place them over the bacon; cover with a layer of sliced potatoes and place a cover of puff paste or any rich pastry will do. Bake an hour in a hot oven. Add another cupful of white sauce through the vent at the top; brush with egg and brown.

Venison Steak.—Lay the steak in a mixture of two tablespoonfuls of oil, one of vinegar and let it lie for an hour, turning it often. Drain and fry in a hot frying pan or broil before a hot fire. Serve with brown gravy and spiced grape jelly.

Some foods are of themselves so stimulating that they answer the purpose of a condiment and a food; such are onions, peppers and garlic. Herbs of various kinds also add their value as condiments and flavor.

Roast Opossum.—Soak the opossum over night in salted water, then score the skin every quarter of an inch. Place two chopped carrots, two onions, one green pepper, a bay leaf and a blade of rice, two cloves and a clove of garlic in a baking pan. Put in the opossum and roast slowly. Baste often and serve with guava jelly.

SUMMER CONDITIONS FOR WINTER LAYERS

FOWL WITH STRONG AND VIGOROUS CONSTITUTION.

(By W. D. NEALE, Colorado.)

For winter layers the eight-month-old pullets and the yearling hens are the best of the flock. The pullet that has been stunted is defective, or unhealthy, should be removed from the flock.

Also the hens that lack in vigor should be culled out. All hens more than a year old should be sent to market. The others will be compelled to board them if left in the laying pen. They will not pay for their keep in most instances.

The long-legged, narrow-breasted and flat-bodied pullets will not be good layers. A pullet that more than pays her way must be built close to the ground with good craw capacity and have a thick body, giving plenty of room to the vital organs.

The early-hatched pullet should begin to lay in October and by the first of the year she should be doing her best. The pullet that does not begin to lay before cold weather generally delays the matter until spring opens. However, the pullets that are properly housed and put on an egg-laying diet will begin before the month of October has passed.

The aim of poultrymen should be to produce as near as possible summer conditions for his winter layers. This demands a comfortable house, one that prevents all drafts of cold air and keeps out the rain and snow. It may be open to the south, but this opening should be closed during the stormy weather to keep the flock comfortable. The floor should have a good litter of straw from 8 to 10 inches deep. Here the flock can get plenty of exercise by scratching for

PREVENT DISEASE IN FLOCK

Better to Remove Cause of Many Ailments Than to Try for Cure—Segregate Ailing Birds.

It is better to remove the cause of the various ailments that afflict poultry than to try to bring about a cure, and if we go about it intelligently we shall not have to search far to find what is causing the losses among our birds.

In the first place, there are the germ diseases, of which roup and its kindred troubles, such as canker, catarrh and chicken pox are the most common. These are communicated by the agency of a germ, or they may develop from latent germs retained in the system from a previous attack. At any rate, a bird that is subject to these diseases should never be used as a breeder. She may communicate the weakness to her offspring.

When a member of the flock shows signs of any of these germ diseases she should be removed to another pen and the place ventilated and fumigated. Also all drinking fountains and feeders which she may have used should be scalded and disinfected. It is well also to clean the pen. Filth and large accumulations of droppings beneath the roosts have a tendency to multiply the roup germs. Fresh air, sunlight and cleanliness destroy them.

SPROUTED OATS FOR LAYERS

Should Be Fed When Shoots Are Not Over One-Half Inch in Length—Other Good Feeds.

Sprouted oats are good for laying hens and should be fed when the shoots are not over one-half inch in length.

Tender, juicy green stuff should be fed, such as beets, cabbage, green clover or other succulent food, but it is unwise to feed green food in a frozen condition to laying hens; skim milk, buttermilk, dried milk and dry ground bone are also good for the protein in them, although they do not have much fat.

Surprised Dinner Party.

In a recently published book Sir Henry Lucy has a charming story of the late Canon Alinger. The canon was very fond of children, and set out one night to attend a party given "by children for children."

"Don't announce me," he said to the servant.

Leaving his coat and hat downstairs, he quietly opened the drawing-room door, where the buzz of voices announced the presence of company. Dropping on his hands and knees he entered, making strange noises distinctly resembling the neighing of a horse. Aware of a dead silence, he looked up, and found the guests assembled for an eight-o'clock dinner regarding him with disgust not unmixed with alarm.

The children's party was next door.—Youth's Companion.

Her suitor flushed. Then he replied in a low voice:

"Yes, that is true. I was taking the pawnbroker some of my old clothes. You see, he and his wife are awfully hard up."

"Oh, John, forgive me!" exclaimed the young girl. "How truly noble you are!"
