Everybody's Son but Mine.

"There's one kind of spirit we don't want in America," said a novelist, "and that is the spirit which was too prevalent at the beginning of the war in England.

"An English statesman visited Nottingham, the lace-making town, the other day, to ask for labor volunteers, and the mayor said that Nottingham wanted to do her duty, but nothing, of course, must be allowed to harm the Nottingham lace industry.

"Then the statesman jumped up and sald that the mayor was a survival of the old 1914 spirit, now happily dead and buried in England—the spirit that made each English father wave a flag in August, 1914, and shout:

"Take everybody's son but mine!"

ER'S FARMERS OF SOUTH

MUST RESIST TEMPTATION OF COTTON'S PRICE AND FEED THE NATION.

SUPREME TEST OF NATION HAS COME SAYS PRESIDENT

Must Supply Abundant Food Not Only For Ourselves, But Also For Large Part of Nations With Whom America Has Made Common Cause.

Washington.-In an appeal to all citizens of the country, I resident Wilson stressed the opportunity for the farmers of the South to "show their patriotism," which he said can be done in no better way "than by resisting the great temptation of the present price of cotton, and helping upon a great scale to feed the Nation and the peoples everywhere who are fighting for their liberties and our own." The President's address follows:

"My Fellow Countrymen: The entrance of our own beloved country into the grim and terrible war for democracy and human rights which has shaken the world, creates so many problems of National life and action which call for immediate consideration and settlement that I hope you will permit me to address to you a few words of earnest counsel and appeal with regard to them. "We are rapidly putting our Navy upon an effective war footing, and are about to create and equip a great Army, but these are the simplest parts of the great task to which we have addressed ourselves. There is not a single selfish element, so far as I shall not fall short of it. can see, in the cause we are fighting

"We are fighting for what we believe and wish to be the rights of mankind and for the future peace and security of the world. To do this the country will be especially upon great thing worthily and successfully. we must devote ourselves to the service without regard to profit or material advantage, and with an energy and intelligence that will rise to the level of the enterprise itself. We must realize to the full how great the task is and how many things, how many kinds and elements of capacity and service and self-sacrifice it involves.

Things Nation Must Do. "These, then, are the things we nust do, and do well, besides fighting, the things without which mere fighting would be fruitless:

"We must supply abundant food for ourselves and for our armies and our seamen, not only, but also for a large part of the Nations with whom we have now made common cause, in whose support and by whose sides we shall be fighting.

"We must supply ships by the hundreds out of our ship yards to carry to the other side of the sea, submarines or no submarines, that will every day be needed there, and abundant materials out of our fields and our mines and our factories with which, not only to clothe and equip our own forces on land and sea, but also to clothe and support our people for whom the galarmies with which we are co-operating manufactories there in raw material, coal to keep the fires going in ships at sea and in the frunaces of hundreds of factories across the sea; steel out of which to make arms and ammunition both here and there; rails for worn-out railways back of the fighting fronts locomotives and rolling stock to take the place of those every day going to pieces; mules, horses, cattle and its liberties . for labor and for military service; everything with which the people of England and France and Italy and Russia have usually supplied themselves, but cannot now afford the men. the materials or the machinery to Industrial Patriotism.

'It is evident to every thinking man that our industries on the farms, in the ship yards, in the mines, in the factories, must be made more prolific and more efficient than ever, and that they must be more economically managed and better adated to the particular requirements of our task than they have been; and what I want to say is that the men and the women who devote their thought and their energy to these things will be serving the country and conducting the fight for peace and freedom just as truly and just as effectively as the trenches. The industrial forces of the country, men and women alike, will be a great National, a great international service army. . . . .

The Supeme Test. "I take the liberty, therefore, of addressing this word to the farmers to the country if they would give it of the country and to all who work on the farms: The supreme need of that clergymen will not think the our own nation and the nations with theme of it an unworthy or inapprowhich we are co-operating is an priate subject of comment and homily abundance of supplies, food supply from their pulpits, especially for the present year, is superlative. Without abundant food come- We must all speak, act and alike for the armies and the people now at war, the whole great enterprise upon which we have embarked will break down and fall. The world's food reserves are low. Not only during the present emergency, but for some time after peace shall have come both our own people and a large proportion of the people of Europe must rely upon the harvests in America. Upon the farmers of this country, therefore, in a large measure, rests the fate of the war and the fate of the nations. May the nation not count upon them to omit no step that will increase the production of their land or that will bring about the most effectual co-operation in the sale and distribution of their products? The time is short. It is of the most imperative importance that everything possible be done and done immediately to make sure of large harvests. I call upon young men and old alike, and upon the able-bodied boys of the land to accept and act upon this no labor is lacking in this great matter. Appeal to South. "I particularly appeal to the farmers of the South to plant abundant foodstuffs as well as cotton. They can show their patriotism in no better or more convincing way than by resisting the great temptation of the present price of cotton and helping upon a great scale, to feed the nation and the peoples everywhere who are fighting for their librties and our own. The variety of their crops will be the visible measure of their comprehen-

They will do everything possible to assist farmers in securing an adequate supply of seed, an adequate force of laborers when they are most needed at harvest time and the means of expediting shipments of fertilizers and farm machinery, as well as the crops themselves, when harvested. The course of trade shall be as unhampered as it is possible to make it, and there shall be no unwarranted manipulation of the nation's food supply by those who handle it on its way to the consumer. This is our opportunity to demonstrate the efficiency of a great democracy, and we

To the Railroads. "To the men who run the railways of the country, whether they be managers or operative employees, let me say that the railways are the arteries of the nation's life and that upon them rests the immense responsibility of seeing to it that those arteries suffer no obstruction of any kind, no inefficeincy or slackened power. the merchant, let me suggest the motto: 'Small profits and quick service'; and to the shipbuilder, the thought that the life of the war depends upon him. LESSON FOR APRIL 22

JESUS ANOINTED AT BETHANY.

LESSON TEXT-John 12:1-11. GOLDEN TEXT-She hath done what she could.-Mk. 14:8.

This is a lesson of Jesus in the home. It occurred at the beginning of passion week. We have before us the master; the worker, Martha; the worshiper, Mary; the witness, Lazarus; the traitor, Judas, and the people with-An unconscious bit of wisdom fell from the lips of that good housewife who exclaimed, "How much better my neighbors' houses look when I have my windows clean." Too much we are looking through the eyes of selfishness. Out of this lesson let us learn to look through unselfish eyes.

I. Unjust Criticism (vv. 1-6). It is six days before Jesus' last Passover. The accounts of Matthew and Mark suggest it to have been within two days, because they mentioned this feast after telling of the conspiracy of the chief priests and elders with Judas, who came to his determination to sell his Master after the reprimand given him on this occasion.

(1) The Value of Good Deeds, Jesus did not forget, in the supreme hour of his life, the friends whom he loved. To bring them some further spiritual gifts, he had come to their home in Bethany. Doubtless he also Skinner, is a chap who doesn't stay had in mind the desire to nourish the on and on and on just because he faith which had been kindled in the knows the girl isn't strong enough to hearts of all by the resurrection of throw him out." Lazarus, just as he returned to Cana after having performed his first miracle (John 4:54). Jesus was Very God of Very God, yet he was very much of a real man; therefore he enloyed the pleasures of home as much as other men, and the joys of kinship and brotherhood.

of her love Mary expended $51, probably her whole treasure, in the purchase of this alabaster box, and put it aside to use it upon him at the proper time. We do not think that she stopped to calculate the cost of this this place, writes: "About 22 years ago ointment. Love never estimates value. Envy lay acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath I shall confidently expect you to deserve and win the confidence of peoserve and wi read that "the house was filled with member the moment "Pape's Diapepodor."

(3) A Standard of Good Deeds (Mark 14:8); "She did what she could," and we have also the record of good deeds, a memorial to her (Mark 14:9). A large number of people who never give of their own to the poor nor to the kingdom of God are willing to criticize others who do give out of the gratitude of their loving hearts.

II. Gracious Commendation (vv.

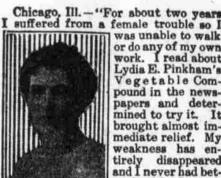

they always had with them (Mark 14:7). This must have been a challenge that evidently they had not attended to the poor as they should. Jesus also tells them frankly that whatever they do for him they must do speedily. Jesus' judgment upon Judas is a rebuke of the disciples; his exposure of the sophistry of the critics and of their subtlety is suggestive. Upon Mary's act he bestowed the highest possible praise. "She hath done what she could." That is all that is asked of anyone (II Cor. 8:12). Such commendation as Jesus bestowed upon Mary he sestowed upon no other, and his wonderful predictions concerning her (Matt. 26:13) have been literally fulfilled. Jesus' judgment upon Mary is also suggestive. He shielded her, "let her alone;" He approved her works as being good, and he interpreted her innermost purpose in the act which she had performed. This outward act was literally the pouring forth of her heart's adoration and worship: Martha was in part taken up with her household service. Lazarus was in part taken up with his enjoyment of the presence of Jesus, but Mary was wholly taken up with Jesus himself. Does the record surprise us: "Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world. this also which she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her?" Judas, under the judgment of Jesus, was stung (Matt. 26:14) and hurries at once to the enemies of Jesus to strike a bargain with them for the betrayal of his Lord though he did not secure from these enemies the equivalent of what she had poured upon him. Christ will by no man's debtor. He takes the poor offerings we lay before him, and crowns them with the richest reward. Mary's gift of ointment received words of commendation of which she never dreamed, and a reward far beyond her fondest hope, and has been the fount of countless deeds rich with love. Many people had gathered, not only for Jesus' sake, but that they might see Lazarus also. He trew people because of what Jesus had lone for him, yet he drew them to lesus. This brought him also under ondemnation, for we must share the
