Those who failed to attend the meeting of the Food Conservation Commission on Friday morning last in the court room missed a good thing. The speech of Mr. H. M. Jacobs of Roper was full of information and thought. His patriotic appeals; his eulogies on North Carolina and Washington County, delivered in his most pleasing and eloquent manner, met hearty applause. It's a pity there are not more Jacobs' in Washington County.

Now Then, Altogether.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an appeal by the officers of the Plymouth Community Fair Association to the people of this entire township.

A mass meeting of the people of this township was held in the Court room last Friday, and it enthusiastically and unanimously agreed that this township is to have a Community Fair this fall.

Hurrah for the agitators! This project is something that has been talked of for several years, but until last Friday it met with no response from the people in general. At this meeting there seemed to be no person present but who was fired with a desire to make the affair one of such proportions that would give each industry in the township an opportunity to display the best of their products in the most pleasing manner.

The affair is something which should not be looked upon lightly by a person within the limits of Plymouth Township, as it embraces every industry and every individual within its borders. It is not being arranged for the benefit of any one enterprise or any individual, but in its scope it reaches out to everyone capable in any way to contribute to its success—and that means every person in the community.

This Fair must be a success, and to be a success necessitates the united action of all the people, working in harmony with each other toward perfecting displays which will embrace every creation of Plymouth Township.

Another meeting is set for Saturday, September 1st, and it is urged that every person in the township make an especial effort to attend. This includes the ladies, who are essential to the success of any undertaking. The meeting will be held at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon, which will make it possible for the farmers to attend, the majority of them making a holiday of the afternoon on Saturday.

Information on this subject will be given by Mr. C. L. Satterthwaite, President; W. F. Ausbon, Secretary; W. B. Watts, N. B. Stevens, or this office. Be sure to attend the next meeting, and go with a determination to "do your bit" towards making it a success.
