

Midgett—Gilbert.

Seven o'clock Wednesday, March 6th, was the beginning of an ideal spring day. Ere the first rays of the morning sun had lighted the eastern hills the inhabitants of our usually quiet little city were astir, and soon began to gather at 807, Washington Street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wiggins Gilbert where, at 7:15 their charming daughter, Miss Blanche Whealon Gilbert, became the bride of Mr. Henry S. Midgett.

The parlor was beautifully decorated in ferns, ivy, potted plants and natural flowers. The golden-rod, plum and apple blossoms filled the room with sweet perfume of orchard and hill-side, while the birds in the trees without added sweet anthems of melody to the scene within.

At the appointed hour the curtains were drawn and from numerous tapirs flickered soft lights sparkling by the reflection of an hundred chandeliers. An altar of purity had been erected and decorated near the center of the room; before it a white mat, upon which stood Rev. E. N. Harrison, pastor of the M. E. Church. From the reception hall came the sweet strains of the piano under the artistic touch of Miss Zola McConnico, while the soft, musical voice of Miss Virgie Rodwell rendered "Dawning." As the last note died away the bridal couple crossed the reception hall and entered the parlor to the soft strains of Lohngren's Bridal March, while the minister in that soft, loving tone so natural to the man, solemnly and impressively performed the ceremony, as the sweet notes of "Souvenir" drifted out upon the still morning air.

The bride, beautiful at all times, never looked sweeter than on this occasion, attired in a neat fitting costume of brown cloth and chiffons with hat and gloves to match, while the groom looked his best in a tailored suit of conventional black.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party were driven to the A. C. L. depot where they boarded the West bound train.

The groom is known to us as a Plymouth boy; jolly, good natured, big hearted Henry Midgett, now a trusted employe of the government at Norfolk, Va.

The bride has a large circle of social and business friends, with a voice full of power and music; trained to lead choirs, with beauty of face and character that goes to the making of a social belle. Experienced in banking for years as book-keeper at the Bank of Plymouth, and later as assistant Cashier of Washington County Bank, she became a favorite with our people and will be sadly missed in the church, social and commercial life of our town.

In offering our best wishes and congratulations to this happy couple whose lives since childhood have been lived one for the other as sweethearts, we commend them to the care of new friends in their adopted home.

What's new for Spring? Easter is only two weeks off

Any number of men and young men have asked us that question about the spring clothes. There never has been so much interest before and never so many good styles to be interested in. Because so many men want authentic information, we're publishing these notes.

There's the "erect, shoulders back and chest out" influence of this war that is evident in all the new models. The waist lines are more marked; the buttons spaced closer together; military backs and pockets are the thing.

Above you see four young men's styles from Hart Schaffner & Marx

- 1 At the extreme left is the new button sack with patch pockets. Notice the straight hanging front and the body tracing lines at the waist.
- 2 Next you see a double breasted suit; they're going to be worn more than ever this spring. They'll make a pleasing change for many men. Notice the buttons—two only are buttoned. The lapels are semi-peaked.
- 3 The third suit from the left is one of the liveliest of the new sport styles. There's a seam at the waistline; a military back and slanting slash pockets. Those are small plaits above the waist seam.
- 4 This suit at the right is another sport style—and an especially good one. The pockets have double rows of stitching and buttons and buttonholes.

We'll be glad to show you some of the other new ones; every suit is all wool for long wear. The value you get for your money makes these the lowest priced clothes you can buy.
