Tyrone Power Here Thursday - Friday In "Son of Fury"

Portrays Role of Swash-buckling Adventurer In South Seas

If you want to ask Tyrone Power which role he likes best—the swash-buckling adventurist type he portrays in his latest film, "Son of Fury," the story of Benjamin Blake—or the brash, flippant characterization he did so well in "A Yank in the R.A.F.," he'd be stumped.

For Ty likes portraying both types—and enjoys himself thoroughly no matter what sort of picture he is working on. That seems to be the key to this popular dark-haired, handsome star's success—he gets a huge amount of fun out of everything he does.

Ty was reminiscing recently on the set of "Son of Fury," in which he is starred and which plays at the Plymouth Theatre today and tomorrow (Thursday and Friday). "In a way things have changed since I first came to Hollywood five years ago. Then I had some radio and stage experience—but I was pretty much of a green-horn when it came to films.

"But there hasn't been so much of a change as you might imagine. All of the boys who broke in with me—I mean, my secretary, Bill Gallagher, my stand-in, Tom Noonan, and my wardrobe man, Norman Martien are still my pals. We have a lot of fun together and the relationship between us is still the same."

In other ways there have been tremendous changes. When Power was first placed under contract to 20th Century-Fox, he could act but he was comparatively unknown. Today his acting is not only much better but he is one of Hollywood's top ranking stars. But despite his tremendous popularity, he is still the modest, considerate, unassuming fellow—having a lot of fun out of life.

More Fruit In Diet Urged For Health

More fruit in the diet would mean better health for many American families. Families on low income often suffer from lack of vitamin 'C' because they do not buy enough fruit and vegetables. If more families grow their own fruit, they could afford a better diet and better health. Fruit is one of the most pleasant ways of getting minerals and vitamins.

Fruits need sunshine. Strawberries are as rich in vitamin 'C' as citrus fruit. To keep your strawberry bed producing a good crop regularly, remember to plant a few new plants each spring.

C. B. Keller, of Oxford 4, is planting 115,000 pine seedlings on eroded fields and on old stands of pines that have been clean-cut for lumber, reports Granville County Farm Agent C. V. Morgan.

HIGH

Food production is at record high levels, buying power of consumers is the greatest ever, and prices and income are averaging the best in a decade or more.

ed by David Miller, noted for "Billy the Kid."

Many prominent pugilists appear in scenes centering about the ring and training camp. Comedy highlights include the discovery of a woman in their boarding house bathroom by the fighters, and the antics of Kibbee and Miss Gilchrist. Romantic interludes on a park bench add a touch of charm to the blend of humor and excitement.

Larane Day, Barry Burma Road Drama Nelson Starred in

'A Yank on the Burma Road' At Local Theatre Sunday Only

Taking advantage of the newspaper headlines about China's famed Burma Road, the trail for supplies to the Chinese armies, "A Yank on the Burma Road," which plays Sunday only at the Plymouth Theatre, is a neat, compact action drama.

Actually the Burma Road element only provides the background for an action romance story. It serves an admirable purpose, however, giving excellent atmosphere which is sharply realized in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

The performances are all good.

particularly that of the leading man, a newcomer named Barry Nelson. Playing opposite Laraine Day in the role of a New York cab driver, Nelson gives a vigorous and punchy performance which should guarantee his being seen in many more pictures.

Miss Day does her usual excellent job in the role of a renegade flyer's wife who talks her way into a ride on Nelson's caravan in order to join her husband in Chungking, where the husband is held prisoner by the Chinese.

A Neat Climax

Nelson becomes the leader of a fleet of trucks traveling the Burma Road, following his single-handed capture of two killers in New York. Meeting Miss Day in Rangoon, he falls hard. The thrills of their trip come thick and fast, climaxed in a neat ending as has come from Hollywood in a long time.

Stuart Crawford, in the role of the flyer, turns in a fine job in his brief spot. Keye Luke is effective as Nelson's right-hand man and interpreter, and others in the cast include

Goodman Has 74 for Low Gross; Crockett Low Net With 69

Ray Goodman and C. G. Crockett, of Williamston, "the inseparables" of the local golf club, teamed up Sunday to cop top honors in the Red Cross benefit tournament held on the course here.

Goodman shot a 35-39-74 for the low gross score of the day, while Crockett had 39-32-81, less a handicap of 12 strokes, for 69 and the low net score. Bill Gurkin, of Washington had a net 70 for second honors.

There were 14 entries in the tournament. Sen Yung, Phillip Ahn, Knox Manning and Matthew Boulton.

George B. Seitz' direction adds enormously to the picture. Sam Marx was the producer, with story credits going to Gordon Kahn, Hugo Butler and David Lang.

ment, and the total proceeds of the event will be turned over to the Red Cross. Each entrant paid a $1 fee. The winner was awarded a certificate furnished by the national Red Cross organization.

Women members of the club will have a similar tournament this week, except that they will probably play only nine holes. The entry fee is the same and the proceeds will likewise go to the Red Cross. Ellis Maples, club pro, who handled details of the tournament, said that the women would have all this week to play off their matches.
