E. E. LEWIS LEAVES

E. E. Lewis, who has been clerking with the Brevard Hardware company for the last few months, left on Sunday to assume management of the supply stores of the Willets Supply company at Willets, in Jackson county. Mrs. Lewis and children will not join Mr. Lewis until after the latter finishes the spring term at Brevard Institute. Mr. Lewis is very familiar with this kind of business, having managed Mr. Silverstein's commissary at Rosman and a supply store at Tryon. He and family have made their home for the past few years in Brevard, where their friends will greatly miss them after their departure.

The Christmas Dinner

The Christmas dinner of ancient tradition has expanded into an almost impossible meal in the course of centuries resulting in the industry of innumerable writers of various generations, who seem to have, through ignorance or design, attached to this ample meal and its attendant good cheer a host of dishes and beverages and customs that really were intended to extend throughout the Christmas season.

It is true that the Christmas dinner in England since the time of King Henry VII. certainly has been an important feature of the season's festivities. It was this elegant prince who, at his Christmas feast, personally brought to table the boar's head and placed it before his son, the young prince. He made a ceremonial observance of this simple feature. He was preceded, as he passed firmly up to the table, by trumpeters.

Whether Henry VII. was the first to establish the custom cannot now be ascertained. But the custom obtained throughout England in certain quarters ever since. For ages the custom has been followed at Oxford university, and those who have dipped into the pleasant pages of Washington Irving's "Old Christmas," will learn how the ceremony was conducted in the early part of the last century, where, at Bracebridge Hall, where Geoffrey Crayon was the guest the boar's head was brought in by the butler, supported on either side by a liveried servant bearing a lighted candle. There were the prescribed "strains of minstrelsy."—New York Times.

JONES GAP ROAD WILL BENEFIT FARMERS AND MERCHANTS

(Greenville News.)

The topselling of the Jones Gap road as far as the North Carolina one to connect with the new road of like construction that is just being completed by Transylvania county will be of much benefit to merchants and the various other institutions of Greenville, according to the Sylvan Valley News, which is published at Brevard. The construction of this road will be the means, in the opinion of the Brevard newspaper, of bringing to this city the trade of practically every farmer along the route of the proposed highway, and, of course, this city will be the receiving point for all the produce raised by these farmers.

WOULD KEEP COUNTY DRY

Editor, News:
As we now have a dry county I do hope that our legislature will let it remain so, and that our depots will never become open bar rooms any more. Many children in our state are suffering for food and clothing on account of intoxicating drink. Men, awake to a full sense of your duty! Remember our longest days are but few; the harvest great and the laborers few, and we will soon be ushered into the judgment before the Great Judge to give an account of our stewardship. There are many church members who will stand behind the door and take their dram. God pity such members. Church members, let your life and lips express the holy gospel you profess. Then comes along the Christmas dance with which to celebrate our Lord's birthday. "Whatsoever you do, do it to the glory of God." I can't see how any one can glorify God by dancing.

MISS HENDERSON BURNED

Miss Etta Henderson, pupil of Brevard Institute last year, who was admired for her unusual beauty, was burned recently while cleaning gloves with gasoline. The gloves became ignited and before they could be removed Miss Henderson's hands were badly burned. It is feared one will have to be amputated.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned were called upon to watch the ebbing life of an affectionate through six anxious weeks. The keenness of our bereavement feels some compensation in reviewing the untiring attention given him and us by neighbors than whom there are no better for none could have excelled them in kindness offered and performed. All that is comprehended in the word "thanks" we feel and bestow upon our friends.
