ALLEN-MILLS

The News has been favored with a clipping from an Olathe, Colo., newspaper telling of the marriage of Miss Pearl Mills, sister of J. K. and Wade Mills of Brevard, where she visited during the past summer. The following article copied from the Olathe paper will be of interest to the bride's friends and relatives in this section, where she was reared:

A beautiful wedding took place Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in Olathe, at the home of Mrs. J. W. Mills, when her charming daughter, Miss Pearl Mills, became the bride of Mr. Louis Benedict Allen, popular resident of Montrose.

Rev. J. H. Cramps, of the Presbyterian church, was the officiating clergyman, and only the immediate relatives of the bride were present. Miss Louise Mills, niece of the bride, played the beautiful wedding march, and another niece, little Ethel Pearl Mills, carried the bride's bouquet. Miss Mills was attractively gowned in a blue serge traveling suit and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Allen left on the afternoon train via Grand Junction for a honeymoon trip to Denver, and on their return will make their home in this city.

The bride, who has been a resident of Olathe for a number of years, is a lady of many personal charms, accomplished and is possessed of a most winning manner, which makes and retains her many friends. She is well known throughout the valley, and her family is prominent in the business and social life of the Hub. She is also very popular at the county seat, and all her friends will be delighted to welcome her as a bride to local social circles.

Mr. Allen, who has resided in Montrose for about ten years, and counts his friends by his list of acquaintances.

Season tickets to lectures by Mrs. P. Noble Simons can be obtained at the first recital at Mrs. Carrier's, for $1.50, single tickets, 50 cents.

NEW OCCUPATIONS FOR COLLEGE GIRLS

Investigation Proves That Fresh Opportunities Are Open to Graduates of Ability and Demand Exceeds the Supply in Branches of Household Arts.

DIETETICS is coming to be recognized as a highly specialized profession. Calls for dietitians come from hospitals, clubs and progressive institutions, public and private. Salaries are not yet fully standardized, and the duties are not always clearly defined. This fact probably explains the relative scarcity of good dietitians. A woman who supplements her academic courses with thorough training in dietetics in one of the well standardized home economics training schools will find herself in demand.

It is pointed out that capable beginners may receive $50 a month and maintenance, and when experience is gained they can command salaries running as high as $150 and maintenance. Just at this time, when so many young women have left the colleges and universities and are preparing for some active work or career, other activities offer similar opportunities to the college woman seeking to apply her labor and knowledge in the most useful way, both for her own benefit and that of the community.

Extension work in rural communities is increasing rapidly, especially under the influence of a new bill which provides federal aid for instruction in agriculture in country districts. Women who have the foundation training in the science of food and in addition a strong teaching instinct will find in these openings a field apart from classroom instruction.

Resourcefulness in adapting the subject of home economics to rural and small village conditions and experience in demonstrating food preparation will make for success. Experience must be secured before a young woman candidate may hope to take charge of an independent district. Salaries range from $1250 to $1500.

Matrons and house mothers may well be considered in the social work group. The positions are less highly specialized and the scientific training and attitude, while important, must be combined with a general social habit. In orphanages and homes for children training in pedagogy or kindred subjects is desirable.

Opportunities as restaurant, tearoom and cafeteria managers are not many for women because the managers are usually the owner and must have capital. Calls for assistance in restaurants and tearooms are irregular, and the salaries paid do not appeal to the college woman who is capable of doing something else. Still a woman with a little capital may here find a vocation.

Proved executive ability, a good understanding of food and strong business sense are essential. Some women have established noonday luncheons in the business sections of large cities with great success.

It will be seen at once that the position of housekeepers in clubs, hotels and private schools calls for technical training in domestic science and administrative ability of high order. The demand for well qualified candidates is frequently somewhat greater than the supply, and the salaries run from $50 to $125 a month and living.

College women are desired, but few have the necessary training. Experience in one's own home and practical sense are a foundation, but no more. The duties in these positions include catering to large numbers, scientific laying and the management of a staff of servants. The salaries are not large, but these positions often prove stepping stones to larger opportunity.

A Burnous Wrap.

A world famous Indian dancer has succeeded in reviving the Arab cloak, which is merely an enormous half circle of cloth or silk caught together in the middle of its straight side, and is wearing it in a number of picturesque ways. Sometimes she slips the loop in the back right over her head and drapes the long circular fronts above one shoulder and beneath the other arm. Then she turns it round and crosses it in the back, letting the richly embroidered border fall straight from neck to heel.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

Chicken Broth.

To make nice chicken broth scrub the chicken in warm water to which a teaspoonful of soda has been added, using a vegetable brush for the scrubbing. Wipe dry and cut in small pieces, cover with cold water and bring slowly to the boiling point, let simmer for five hours, strain and when cool, remove the fat. This will form a thick gelatine when cold and will keep for some time in a cool place. Barley boiled soft may be added to this soup, or rice makes a pleasing variety.

Triplex Soup.

Use equal quantities of beef, lamb or mutton and veal, add a pint of water to each pound of the meat. Cut the meat in small pieces, adding the bones, then cover with cold water and simmer for four hours. Strain and season with salt. Cool to remove the fat before serving.

Tomato Soup.

Cook half an onion cut in thin pieces, half a carrot and two stalks of celery, cut fine in two tablespoonfuls of butter until yellow and softened; add a can of tomatoes, two more stalks of celery, a spice bag and a quart of water. Let simmer 20 minutes, then strain. Reheat and thicken with two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch smoothed in water, cook until well cooked. Season with salt, paprika and green or red peppers cut in strips.

Chicken Custard.

Take a half cupful of strong chicken broth, a half cupful of rich milk, one egg and a yolk of an egg, salt and pepper to taste. Beat the egg, add the seasoning and strain into two small cups. Set the cups into a pan of hot water and bake until firm in a moderate oven. This recipe will be easily doubled to serve four or more. Serve either hot or cold.

Cheese Souffle.
Select fresh soft American cheese, cut in small pieces and measure a cupful. Melt over hot water, add a cupful of heated cream, take from the fire and stir until the cheese is well mixed and smooth. Cover a cupful of bread crumbs with one cupful of milk and let stand for half an hour. Add to the beaten yolks of two eggs and add this to the cheese. Season to taste with salt and paprika, butter the ramekin dishes and fold in the whites of two eggs beaten stiffly. Fill the ramekins and bake for 15 minutes in a medium oven.
