The Wedding March.

Wagner's well-known wedding march was played on Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. P. Nomic Simons in the course of her musical recital of Wagner's opera, Lohengrin. The recital was held at the home of Mrs. C. M. Doyle before a large and appreciative audience.

Lohengrin was composed by Richard Wagner in 1847, and its story is based on a Bavarian poem written six centuries earlier. Mrs. Simons brought out the beauty of the score in her usual effective manner, with a brilliant rendition of the more familiar numbers of the opera, the Wedding March, Elsa's Dream, the Swan Song and the Holy Grail music. The increasingly large attendance which has greeted the various musical recitals given by Mrs. Simons during the past year is the best evidence of Brevard's appreciation of her effort to establish an operatic oasis in a musical Sahara.

The final recital of the present series will be held next Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. W. E. Breese, the subject being Wagner's tremendous drama of love and hate, Tristan and Isolde.

"YOHEEYO" CAMP FOR GIRLS OPENS JUNE 21

Miss Laura McAllister Visits Brevard and Makes Arrangements for Opening new Camp School for Girls at the Clarke Place.

"Yoheeyo" will be the name of the summer school for girls to open near Brevard on June 21.

The News recently told of the decision of Miss Laura C. McAllister, head of the physical training department of the State Normal at Greensboro, Miss Edith Haight of the same department and Miss Rhoda Baxter of Springfield, Mass., to open a camp school for girls at Mrs. H. P. Clarke's home. Miss McAllister was in Brevard last week, when she made definite arrangements for occupying the Clarke premises next summer.

The summer school will be divided into two seasons of five weeks each and will close on August 31. Accommodations will be sufficient for 40 or 50 girls.

Literature descriptive of the school, its superb location for an educational institution which will stress physical, mental and moral training, is being prepared for wide distribution.

It was through the efforts of Miss Katherine Erwin, a graduate of the State Normal, that the school promoters were induced to visit Brevard in search of a suitable location for their institution. She took them to various points of interest and as a result of impressions received here also at other places, they decided to locate near Brevard.

Hardship Better Than Poverty. The merchant, dreading the south-west wind wrestling with the learian waves, praises retirement and the rural life of his native town, but soon he retires to his shattered bark, incapable of being taught to endure poverty.—Horace.

BREVARD INSTITUTE NEWS IN LANELPHIAN

The fall issue of the Lanelpian, which is published in the interest of Brevard Institute for the Adelphian and Lanier Literary societies, has made its appearance.

The publication carries personal items about Institute pupils, but for the greater part outlines the spring courses for teachers, the work proposed for the Brevard Institute Summer School, and the part of the part of teachers of steady efforts in improvement and the advancement of the profession.

Some of the extracts from the Lanelpian follow:

Beginning March 6, 1917, and closing May 31, 1917, the Normal Department of Brevard Institute offers twelve weeks of training for teachers. Those who enroll for this course may follow a schedule specially outlined for them, or they may register for their choice of courses offered in the regular session of the school. The first mentioned schedule includes a review of all the common school branches, a study of high school pedagogy with the regular class for the year, and a special course reviewing the chief elements of pedagogy and outlining devices and methods for successful teaching. The elective schedule can be made up from the courses just mentioned in combination with work in the regular academic classes of the Institute or may involve study of the various vocations or arts which are handled by the Institute faculty. This latter group includes agriculture, domestic art, household economics, bookkeeping, typewriting, cabinet making, telegraphy, music, expression, art, etc., and provides opportunity for a teacher to get ready for practically any additional study he may wish to introduce in his school.

The fifth session of the summer school will open on Tuesday, June 12, 1917, and close on Saturday, July 21, 1917. During this time all the departments of Brevard Institute will be in operation if there is sufficient call for them. This will include all normal, high school, and common school subjects taught during the year as well as classes in the domestic, agriculture, wood work, commercial, and expression departments. In addition to this large curriculum, classes in various college subjects and any other branches can usually be organized whenever desired by a sufficient number of students. The faculty for the summer school is not yet complete, but year by year the summer school has drawn teachers of greater experience and scholarship, and it is expected that the 1917 session will be on an even better standing than those of previous years.

PICNIC LUNCHEONS.

Hint About Carrying Food Daintily and Easily.

In homes where automobile lunches or picnic parties are frequent it is a good idea to have on hand several fresh, clean egg boxes with compartments, in which eggs come from the store. Stuffed eggs can then be rolled in paraffin paper and stood upright in each compartment so they will travel without crushing or losing shape. Neither need the halves of the egg be kept together with toothpicks, as is frequently done. Dainty rolled sandwiches also keep their shape in these individual compartments. Leaf cake can be cut in pieces of a size to fit these partitioned boxes by lifting out the divisions and pressing the paste-board edge on the freshly frosted surface of the cake. Replace the partitions in the box and allow the frosting to become firm. Then cut in squares as indicated by the markings. Each piece of cake will be of a size to fit. This eliminates carrying a knife and insures the neat appearance of the cake.

Kitchen Convenience.
Keep a high wooden stool with strong rungs in your kitchen. When you have something to cook on the gas stove which needs continuous stirring, bring it over and sit down, resting your feet on the rungs. When the cooking is done you will get up much refreshed. Use it when you have vegetables to prepare.

What Happiness Is.
Learn what happiness is. Study a little about good taste. If everybody and good taste everybody would have his share of joys. You see I do not say everybody would be happy. That would be a foolish world and a selfish one, but I say everyone would have his share of joys, and having claimed his birthright to his share of joys he surely would be a pig to want them all! The joy of making a poor home happy is greater than that of being content in a fine one—and sometimes easier. We who have little of this world's goods stand a glorious chance at having much of the spirit which stands ever ready to come in and fill up the waste places if only we will open the door.—Exchange.
