PROGRESSIVE DINNER PARTY

One of the most popular events of Armistice week was the progressive dinner party given by seven of the Graded School teachers. The first course was served by Miss Margaret Blythe at her home on Main Street and consisted of delicious tomato soup and the usual dishes that complete the course. The dining table was profusely decorated in small silk American flags with the names of the guests at each plate. The party then adjourned to the handsome residence of Mrs. C. M. Cooke, where the second course was served by Misses Gardner, Townsend and Sledge. This was the main dinner course and consisted of the following menu:

Roast turkey, cranberry sauce celery, green peas, creamed potatoes, hot biscuits, and butter. The dining room colors were yellow and white with place cards at each plate. The party then motored over to the Melton sisters for the salad course. This included a delicious fruit salad. The decorations here were red, white and blue which gave the room a beautiful and pleasing effect. The last course was served by Miss Margaret Hays at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ranson. This was ice cream and cake, after which coffee was served. The dining room was trimmed in long ribbons of red and blue extending from the wall and forming a cluster at the chandelier directly over the table. At each plate was a bunch of three small American flags, while beautiful place cards adorned each plate. After this course had been served the party was treated to a special performance at the Auditorium Theater, which was given by the young men of the party. Those in the party were: Miss Blythe and Mr. Nichols; Miss Gardner and Mr. Sledge; Miss Townsend and Mr. Erwin; Miss Sledge and Mr. Clement; Miss Vera Melton and Mr. Kizer; Miss Nell Melton and Dr. Summey; Miss Margaret Hays and Mr. Hook and Mr. Frank King.
