

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL GLAZENER SPEAKS AT BAPTIST CHURCH TO THE TEACHERS

ing assembly rooms will be used as a dining room whenever needed for such purposes. Collapsible dining tables, requiring but little space when not in use, are also a part of the equipment on this floor and are stored in one of the dark closets ready for use.

The main floor contains about an equal number of rooms, including the church parlor, which is a centrally located room, beautifully furnished with comfortable and attractive furniture, rugs and effective draperies at the several windows, and an inviting fireplace. This room will be used chiefly by the adult women's organizations of the Sunday School. The junior department rooms are also located on this floor, with a large assembly room, opening off of which are eight small rooms, four for boys and four for girls, to take care of the different classes of children ranging in age from 9 to 12. On the main floor is found one entrance to the baptistry and to a partly finished portion of what will eventually be the choir and organ loft of the new church edifice. A small room across the hallway from this is the church office, used particularly by the secretary, and especially wired for electric bells. A church clock, the gift of B. F. Beasley, is a conspicuous ornament and source of usefulness on the wall of the main floor hall.

On the third and top floor is located the assembly room for the intermediate department and the eight smaller class rooms for the boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 16. Several adult class rooms are also on this floor, the Philathea room being an especially attractive room to be furnished in blue and white. The room which is now used by the Homemakers class is a pretty room with a fireplace and other attractions, and will serve also as the pastor's study. Another entrance to the baptistry is found on this floor, also the pipe organ room. The men's Bible class meets in the old church auditorium, where the entire Sunday School assemblies after the various class periods.

The entire interior finish of the structure is of hardwood—floors, woodwork and doors, the latter of which are particularly noticeable in their beauty of finish. The dimensions of the department assembly rooms are 30 feet square, while the small class rooms are 9 by 11 feet in measurement, and the church parlor 18 by 30.

Of the estimated 1200 Baptists in Brevard, it is said that 400 are now enrolled in the local Sunday School, with an average attendance every Sunday of nearly 300. Included in the official staff of the Sunday School, in addition to the superintendent, J. A. Glazener, are 40 teachers and officers. The various department superintendents include: Miss Pauline Sitton, young people; Prof. J. B. Jones, intermediate; Mrs. L. P. Hamlin, junior; Mrs. J. M. Tatum, primary; Mrs. D. F. Moore, beginners. Two of the department superintendents have not as yet been appointed, the adult, and the cradle roll, the latter of which was formerly in charge of Mrs. L. D. Moore before her departure for Florida.

In addition to the well organized and graded Sunday School, the church proper is also in a thriving condition, under the efficient leadership of the pastor, Rev. Wallace H. Hartsell, who is now serving his fifth year as pastor of the Brevard church. During the past 12 months over 125 new members have been added to the church roll, more than half of whom have joined by baptism. There are now 530 members comprising the church membership.

Other noteworthy improvements additional to the new Sunday School building, have been made during Mr. Hartsell's pastorate here, including the erection of a modern two-story brick, steam heated ten thousand dollar parsonage, all of which has been paid for, having concrete driveways at both front and rear entrances; the securing of other property adjoining, on which stands a two-story frame dwelling, the total church property comprising one-half block, centrally located in the town, and surrounded on three sides by hard surfaced streets. An attractive stone wall, costing approximately $700, surrounds the church and parsonage.

Interesting and valuable instructions to teachers were given especial emphasis at the regular meeting of the Transylvania county teachers association held Saturday morning in the Brevard High School auditorium, when remarks on the subject of Supervised Study or Study Helps were made by J. A. Glazener, president of this county association.

Mr. Glazener pointed out five specific rules to be followed in supervised study of students by the teacher, stating that a teacher can render the pupils under his charge the greatest service by teaching them how to study. The speaker further declared that as a baby needs assistance in learning its first steps to walk alone, just so does the average student need supervised direction from the teacher in learning the first principles of how to study. After a few lessons on how to study a certain subject, Mr. Glazener is of the opinion that the pupils will then be able to master the subject without supervision and be able to apply the principles learned.

The meeting was opened with the singing of several Christmas carols, in which the 100 or more teachers in attendance took part. Following this feature devotionals were led by Rev. V. A. Crawford, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who spoke with well-chosen words, advising the teachers present to make use of the wonderful opportunities before them for Christian example and influence over those under their charge in the school room, and closing with the admonition, "Know God and let Him be known."

In addition to two enjoyable duets by Miss Marguerite Robertson and Miss Call, "The Rustic Polonaise" by Christiani, and "The Sleigh Ride" by Clark, the Silver Lee colored quartet rendered several selections to the delight of all present.

Following adjournment of this part of study were discussed in the three different rooms, where special subjects of study were discussed in the three divisional meetings, the primary, intermediate and high school groups.

FAREWELL LUNCHEON TO MR. EARL LOWE

One of the most interesting meetings held in Brevard recently was that of a farewell luncheon given to C. E. Lowe Wednesday noon, at the Walmire Grill. Mr. Lowe, who for several years had the Ford agency here, was leaving Brevard Wednesday afternoon for Concord, where he will make his home in the future.

Mayor Whitmire, representing the city, Alex Kizer, representing the county, Wm. E. Breese, representing the local bar association, S. M. Macfie, Louie Erwin, representing the merchants, H. A. Plummer, from the Chamber of Commerce, and James F. Barrett, representing the press, attended the luncheon and each expressed to Mr. Lowe an expression of appreciation of his residence here, and of the great and good work that he has done for the community while living here, and added in sincere tones the regret of the community at Mr. Lowe leaving here. Many witty talks were made, creating laughter, which it was plainly said was to conceal the sadness in the hearts of those gathered about the festive board. Mr. Lowe, in trying to express his appreciation of the demonstration, showed his intense emotion, and said that it mattered not where he might live in the future, there could never be finer friendships than those enjoyed in Brevard.

At the conclusion of the luncheon and the talks, one speaker arose and said that in order that Mr. Lowe might not become too egotistical because of the demonstration of friendship, stated that a delegation of the ladies of Brevard had instructed this speaker to say that Mr. Lowe's popularity in Brevard had been gained through the splendid influences of his good wife and fine children, and all the women did not want Mr. Lowe leaving town thinking that he alone was responsible for his standing here, but that his wife and children came in for their share of the popularity which Mr. Lowe enjoyed here. This statement seemed to please the departing citizen more than anything that could have been said, and tears came into his eyes in trying to express the way in which he and his family had been treated during their residence here.

SEAL SALE SHOWS BREVARD SPIRIT

In sponsoring the tuberculosis Christmas seal sale, now in progress at the local postoffice booth, as well as in all sections of the county, officials of the sale deserve the support of every one in their praiseworthy efforts to make this annual event a success. The daily sales at the booth are reported very satisfactory, and it is the expectation of the county committee, and the many others who are so loyally supporting the movement with their assistance, that the final count of the proceeds of the sale will exceed that of any previous year.

The only organization so far reported to have over-sold their quota of seals is the Children of the Confederacy, who sold 30 cents over the $5 quota in one day's sale at the booth. The first bond of $5 was sold to Mayor T. W. Whitmire, and it is expected that several other public spirited individuals and corporations of the town will support the movement by buying bonds of similar or larger denomination. T. H. Shipman, of the Brevard Banking company, is another $5 bond purchaser.

There is nothing that a penny can purchase and receive more true value than in the tiny tuberculosis Christmas seal, the annual sale of which is not only observed locally and throughout the state, but is a national event, the funds of which help to protect the health of citizens by lessening the deaths from tuberculosis and promote health by educating the public that tuberculosis is preventable and curable. Every seal bought is a weapon against the dread disease, and also aids in financing the school health program for undernourished children.

SUNSHINE STATE

B. T. Egerton, well known and beloved engineer on the Transylvania branch of the Southern Railway, has written friends in Brevard that he is having a great time on his vacation, which is being spent at Orange Lake, Fla. Mr. Egerton tells in this communication of the wonderful catch of fish which he is making, and in order to substantiate his statement the veteran engineer has sent a picture of himself holding strings of fine fish.
