colleagues were attacked. He declined to give a full explanation of his position and will not, he said until that time. Mr. Morrison, however, told The Observer correspondent, that although his opposition was primarily based on Jonas' unjust condemnation of the state's election laws, he was bound, as a member of the senate from North Carolina, not only to defend the laws of and conduct of elections in North Carolina, but to go to the defense of those of his colleagues who have suffered from allegations of Mr. Jonas.

Stands By Laws

Morrison was high in his praise of the elections statutes of his state and denied the existence of the election frauds alleged by Congressman Jonas. Mr. Morrison's opposition to Jonas' appointment threw a new light on the delay of the judiciary committee in acting on his nomination. Many here, even Jonas himself, believed the delay to be attributed to a desire to embarrass the appointee, but to let it be known that he would not resign from congress before March 4, and did not wish the confirmation of his appointment before then. No manifested opposition had been received by the committee until today, yet its members on two occasions passed over the Jonas nomination, declaring that they had not reached his name in the list of recent presidential appointments.

No G. O. P. Opposition

No republican opposition to the confirmation of Jonas' nomination was expected as the North Carolina representative had received the commendation of the attorney general and little intimation of adverse democratic sentiments had been made, the favorable opinion of North Carolina senators on republican appointments in the past being recalled then. Senator Simmons had previously announced that he would not oppose the nomination of Jonas or of any republican if the nominee was qualified. Congressman Jonas was non-committal upon learning of Morrison's action, except to say that the senator was within his right to oppose the nomination.

others to discuss with them election conditions in North Carolina, the trouble is not slush money, but manipulation. They don't need to spend money to get what they want. They know how to do manipulating too well.

Wants Clean-Up

"If the legislature of North Carolina wants to serve the democratic party and the state, it will pass legislation that will provide for cleaning up these intolerable election conditions."

Unless such legislation is passed, he indicated, a strong movement will develop to have federal legislation passed that will provide for the supervision of state elections in which national officials, such as the president and members of congress, are named.

Relative to his meeting with the Nye group, Mr. Jonas gave The Observer the following prepared statement:

Meets Nye Committee

"I met Senator Nye and members of his committee yesterday for the first time, when Congressman Pritchard and I, with others, were invited to a conference to discuss election conditions in North Carolina.

"For the first time, apparently, Senator Nye was made to understand that the chief charge in North Carolina, unlike Pennsylvania and other states, is not the purchase of elections with large corruption funds, but the obtaining of office by corrupt manipulation of election laws designed for that purpose.

"Since he has been informed of the general system, productive of election frauds in the state, Senator Nye has manifested sincere interest in a further investigation of the situation.

"There will be further investigation.

"I told members of the committee that election conditions in North Carolina are intolerable to a free people and that I preferred that the remedy be provided by our own people and that I have already urged legislative enactment at this session of the legislature that will guarantee fair elections. I stated that the legislature has already admitted the need of such legislation by passage of the Buncombe county act.

Fertile Soil

"Liberty-loving people prefer death to slavery, either physical or political, and conditions in our state furnish fertile soil for revolution. Unless the remedy is provided by our own leaders, it will come from outside.

"The registration laws and absentee ballot law cannot be defended. Illustrating my statement of conditions, I reported conditions existing at Morganton. One item of evidence disclosed a voter, who although never registered and never resided within the state since becoming 21 years old, has voted an absentee ballot regularly for a number of years and the poll books show he voted three times at the last election.

"One woman who has not lived in the state since woman suffrage was adopted and who has never registered, has regularly voted an absentee ballot, her son reports.

"The absentee ballots have been fraudulently mailed to these and other voters by a democrat at Morganton."

tary manslaughter; to prohibit unauthorized practice of law in North Carolina. County Government—Abolish the office of the register of deeds and transfer functions to clerk of court; to authorize the six northeastern counties of the state to establish and maintain jointly a prison farm; to authorize Chowan, Gates, Perquimans and Pasquotank to establish a district community home for the poor and infirm.

ROSMAN SCHOOL IN ACTIVE PROGRAM

Fine Co-operation with Governor's Live-at-Home Program During Week

(J. F. CORBIN, Agri. Teacher)

In compliance with Governor Gardner's Live-at-Home program and the State Department of Education cooperating the following program was carried out in the Rosman School last week:

Monday, Feb. 16—The importance of daily food for the family. Domestic Science department under the direction of Miss Ketchem, had charge of this program. Each of the girls represented some town in North Carolina and displayed some of the products made or produced in this particular place which was very interesting and instructive. Following the girls, Miss Ketchem explained the importance and the methods of balancing the rations in the home for the family.

Tuesday, Feb. 17—The importance of poultry.

Wednesday—The importance of the hog.

Thursday—Importance of the hog.

Friday—Importance of the home garden.

The Agriculture department of the school had charge of the above subjects in agriculture, and each topic was explained in detail, giving the origin of the animals, history, importance in development of the country, number in United States, in North Carolina and the county at different dates; the amount of feed that should be grown to feed each animal and how many animals of each kind should be kept in each family to furnish sufficient food.

On Friday the Grammar Grades of the school had a big part in the program on the "importance of the home garden." The main theme all the week was the "Importance of Farming to make a living that we might keep more North Carolina money in the state and that the children might have plenty of meat, milk, eggs and vegetables in the home all the time, enabling them to be more healthy, vigorous progressive school children."

Each child in high school filled out blanks showing how many acres of each crop and how many head of stock should be on their particular farm in order that both man and beast might be properly nourished.

One very instructive point presented by the Agricultural Department was the amount and value of agricultural products bought outside the state that could have been grown in the state. The cities in North Carolina in 1925 sent $96,197,977.00 out of the state for agricultural products, all of which could have been grown here. Even the farmers of the state sent out and bought in 1925 $61,980,293.00 worth of corn, wheat,

ENON AND PENROSE FARMERS IN MEETS

Farmers' meeting at Little River, being held each Friday night at 7:30 o'clock, are proving most popular and beneficial. Last Friday night a study was made of tobacco growing, and next Friday's program will embrace the important crop of potatoes.

All farmers are urged to attend these meetings and take part in them. Next Tuesday night another meeting will be held at Enon, and preparation of soil and selection of seed will be studied. Objective adopted by the farmers of Enon is "Increased Yield at Reduced Cost per Bushel" for potatoes.

Prof. Julian Giazener is attending all of these meetings, and directing the courses of study.

Mrs. Volley Clayton

Mrs. Volley Clayton, aged 36, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. R. Galloway at Calvert, last Saturday evening, after an illness of several months.

Mrs. Galloway before her marriage was Miss Bertie McCall, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harve McCall, and had lived near Rosman for many years.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at Mt. Moriah Calvert church by the Rev. J. M. Green and Rev. J. E. Burt. Burial was made in the Mt. Moriah cemetery.

The deceased is survived by her husband, one sister, Mrs. W. R. Galloway, and a brother, Gilbert McCall.

oats, hay, beef, mutton and milk.

Of course after all, the people in this county are to be commended at least a large percent of them are, for producing a lot of fruit and vegetables to live on, though there should be more wheat and oats grown to supplement human and horse feed.

ated in the next month, and that the united church will be known as the Brevard-Davidson River church, and that Sunday Schools will be regularly maintained at both locations, preaching services regularly at Brevard and part time at Davidson River.

THREE SPEAKERS ON LIVE SUBJECTS

Members of the Brevard Kiwanis are anticipating an unusually interesting meeting this Thursday moon, when the clan gathers at the England Home in regular semi-monthly session. A program has been arranged which, it is said, will prove most interesting and beneficial.

Frank D. Clement will speak on the subject: "What's Wrong With the Nation?"

Lewis P. Hamlin will speak on a kindred subject, "What's Wrong With North Carolina?"

Jerry Jerome, bringing the question closer home, will speak on the subject, "What's Wrong With This Community?"

All three speakers are men well versed in public affairs, and the club members are assured of a most interesting program. Fine interest is being shown in the club's work, and a full attendance is expected at Thursday's gathering.
