THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN

"Love the brotherhood."

I would share with you, my dear friends, some thoughts from my reading on "The Brotherhood of Man."

One of the absorbing duties of every civilized race must be to face the question of "Brotherhood," and to define what we mean by "our neighbor" in the sense of the Lord's parable, Luke 10:20.

"The Brotherhood of Man." It seems a common place, we are accustomed to say, "We believe it." Yes, possibly in our studies, and when we write a book, if we ever do so. But open your front door and walk into the street. Look around. Do you love your neighbor as yourself? Walk through the town, your neighbor's problems, are they yours? Do we care? Let us acquaint ourselves with the various classes of our neighbors, poor and rich, land workers and brain workers, industrial and agricultural, educated and uneducated, professedly godly and openly ungodly? Are their ills and sorrows and needs ours too? And again—and the question I now ask is a fundamental one—Do we make the "second Commandment of God" rest upon the first or not? Or do we make our duty to our neighbors the first commandment, and duty to God a possible second—if indeed it is a commandment at all?

I do thank God that the fact that there are two Great Commandments is coming really to be believed today, and more than that, I believe that the Divine Order of the Two Commandments is being seriously brought home to Christendom—that it is becoming clear to the world that our duty to our fellows has no secure foundation except as we believe in the Living God who has made Himself known to us by Revelation through His Incarnate Son, and through the continued presence of the Holy Ghost.

And against all such belief, against belief in the duty of any kind towards God and towards man, there rises up the great enemy—or perhaps I ought to call it the Great Barrier—Self. The devil has entered self, and has whispered "Behold this is thy God"—Thyself, there is your enemy—and within you. He has been so in the past. He will be so in the future. But we are wiser now than we were, surely. That is our hope, and it makes us turn to God and that is the best augury for days to come.

"Building the Brotherhood is building the Kingdom of God. This where life counts most. To be worthy of being built into the Brotherhood we must be unselfish. This is the test of our value. Not what a man is worth to himself but to others determines whether or not he is worth saving." There are two things at least we must do if we are to build the Brotherhood of Men—We must do unto others as we would that they should do unto us. This is a rule of fairness and justice derived from the natural law common to all mankind. We must love our neighbor as ourself. Thus means, that we must have the same love for our brother's soul that we have for our own salvation.

"Rise up O man of God,
His Kingdom tarries long,
Bring in the day of Brotherhood
And end the night of wrong."

Lift high the Cross of Christ,
Tread where His Feet have trod,
As brothers of the Son of Man,
Rise up O Men of God."

tage by having in its midst such a well-known establishment whose commendable policies and products of quality have gained for them an ever increasing business that can be noticed by the large daily shipments leaving their extensive establishment.

The prosperity of the city is greatly increased by the extent of their trade, which extends for miles around, and in their chosen field of endeavor brings new people to the community. Through the extended trade channels of this active firm many dollars are brought yearly into this section.

From each department the merchants in this section of the country receive their supplies daily. Each man in charge of the department is one who has a complete knowledge of this business from a buying and selling standpoint alike.

PIGGLY WIGGLY STORES

As an out of town party, walking into a store about which we knew very little ahead of time, we were immediately struck by the cordial atmosphere of the place, the friendly interest of the clerks, the very attractive arrangement of all the merchandise, and far from least of Piggly Wiggly good points, the cleanliness of these stores was quite noticeable. It occurred to us that here was surely a good place for country people to make their headquarters and to meet their friends when they went to Asheville, because everybody does sort of like to get in a grocery store of the type of Piggly Wiggly Stores.

We watched the clerks as they kept the shelves stocked, kept the fancy fresh produce piled up in neat displays as they courteously bagged a peck of potatoes for some lady who requested this little extra service of them. We watched the cashier as he quietly but correctly checked over each item that customers had gathered in their shopping baskets as they went around the store, made change for the customers and handed them back their articles in a neat shopping bag all ready to carry home. And we thought—there is system, and now we know why this store has been so successful since they were originated. So, we then made more inquiry about Piggly Wiggly. We found that they seem to have gotten a vision of just what the people want and the way they want it and are offering it to everybody who enters their door. As for merchandise, we saw the best quality of nationally advertised package goods, just as fine fruits and vegetables as were ever displayed anywhere, the best cuts of meat and in fact if you don't want your mouth to water you better stay away from Piggly Wiggly.

And finally, the best part of all is that their prices are what you hope to find them. Every day there are many surprising "specials." And their whole line is priced very low because their buying power is tremendous and they can meet the prices of other stores and that's why Piggly Wiggly ranks as the leading food store of Asheville.
