HUMANITY

I have been reading Dr. Crane's Essays for some time and on the 4th, our Independence Day, I read his Essay on Humanity, and enjoyed it greatly. May I share that enjoyment with you, my readers:

"What is my boasted Independence? I am dependant upon everybody and everything. I go with the crowd, I am caught with the press of men, I must move with them.

"All my ancestors have left me nothing, not money or goods, but deeper potencies. What I call my character or nature is made up of infinite particles of inherited tendencies from those whose blood runs in my veins. A little seed of laziness from this grandfather, and of prodigality from that. Some remote grandmother, perhaps, has stamped me with a fear of horses or a love of dogs. There may be in me a bit of outlawry from some forefather who was a pirate, and a dash of pity from one who was a saint.

"So everything in me passes on through my children, and flecks my children's children with a spot of strength or weakness. I am sewn in between ancestry and posterity. I am a drop of water in a flowing river. I am a molecule in a mountain. I am a cell in a great tree. The words I think in are not mine. They are Humanity's. Millions made them as a coral reef into which my thoughts creep."

"My gestures, ways, mannerisms, scolded peculiarities, I borrowed them all.

"Religion is not a personal affair, so much as it is a command. You are a Jew, because you were born a Jew; for the same reason you are a Catholic, you are a Presbyterian, you are a Mahometan, you are a Buddhist, you are a Mormon. As we enter life we find these calls already made in the human bee-hive and crawl into them.

"The young lover imagines no one else ever felt his pangs and ecstasies, yet nature is but repeating in him the emotions she has made in myriad others.

"Nothing Human is alien to me," said the philosopher Terrence.

Said Burke, "Society is a partnership, not only between those who are living, but between those who are living and those who are dead—and and those who are to be born."

"What I call my opinion—how much of it is but an echo? Opinions are catching, like measles or small-pox. Our notions of art, letters, politics, morals, we have but secreted them from the mass.

"Original ideas? Where will you find them? All the ideas there are existing now, floating in the human sea. I, an oyster, absorb a few, and call them mine. Even the phrases of The Lords Prayer have been traced to Talmudic sources.

"The dewdrop slips into the shining sea. The river of humanity emerges from the infinite and pours into the infinite again.

"In passing, how we perk ourselves up into strange egotisms! We strut, gesticulate, contend, and talk of me and mine, only to go down at last in the cataract that, unceasing as Niagara, empties into the unknown.

"Let us, therefore, put away the coarse egotisms, and the partisan passions that infest us, and learn to love humanity, to think and feel in terms of humanity."

which is set today amid the perplexities of a changing order, and face to face with a great new task. We remember with love the nurture she gave to our spiritual life in its infancy, the tasks she set for our growing strength, the influence of the devoted hearts she gathers, the steadfast power for good she has exerted.

When we compare her with all other human institutions, we rejoice, for there is none like her. But when we judge her by the mind of her master, we bow in pity and contrition. Oh baptize her afresh in the life giving spirit of Jesus! Grant her a new birth, though it be with the Travail of Repentance and Humiliation. Bestow upon her a more imperious responsiveness to duty, a swifter compassion with suffering, and an utter loyalty to the will of God.

Put upon her lips the Ancient Gospel of her Lord. Help her to proclaim boldly the Coming of the Kingdom of God and the doom of all that resist it. Fill her with the prophet's scorn of tyranny, and with a Christlike tenderness for the heavy laden and down trodden. Give her faith to espouse the cause of the people and in their hands grope after freedom and light to recognize the bleeding hands of the Christ. Bid her cease from seeking her own life, lest she lose it. Make her valiant to give up her life to humanity, that like her crucified Lord, she may mount by the path of the cross to a higher glory.

Plenty of rooting by the few fans that were present, but a lot of rooting left undone by absentee, featured three ball games at Brevard over the week-end. Two games Saturday, one in the morning between the local aggregation and Asheville "All-Stars," which was a one-sided affair for Brevard, and a peppy game in the afternoon between Brevard and Camp Sapphires counsellors and seniors, in which the locals again carried off the laurels, failed to draw a sizeable crowd.

Again Monday, when the Brevard enemies since time immemorial, Hendersonville, whaled Holt's crew 9-5, hardly enough fans were present to make a good showing. However, a large crowd is looked forward to this Saturday when the Western Carolina League "giants"—Beacon—comes here for the decisive game of the season.

Brevard vs. Asheville

With Joe Schachner in the role of moundsman, Brevard won an easy victory in a seven inning affair Saturday morning, playing heads-up ball. Aside from starting off a little wild, Joe had the visitors well in check throughout the game, allowing only five hits for three runs, while the locals garnered eleven hits and took advantage of the loose playing of the "all-star" team to pile up twelve runs.

Brevard vs. Sapphires

Obie Davis and Coach Fry brought their crack counsellor senior outfit to McLean Field Saturday afternoon and kept Brevard on the hump with the exception of the third inning when the locals connected for a string of safeties and a couple of miscues to win 6-2. Tommy Graham on the mound for Brevard allowed only four hits and had all the backing that any pitcher could hope for to make of this game one of the best played on the local diamond this season.

Sapphires' outfit, while playing an extra good game, were gotten together in a last minute rush (after the Asheville "all-star" team who were scheduled to play in the afternoon, took a notion to leave immediately after they had been given their lunch) and were not up to top-notch by reason of the shake-up.

Hendersonville Wins

Joe Schachner again tried his prowess as a hurler in Monday's tilt with Hendersonville, and went fine for the first three innings. Five hits for two runs with four strike-outs made Joe's speedball look pretty good. Hard luck was camping on the trail of Graham who went in at the beginning of the fourth. A homer with one on in his first inning, two hits in the sixth, one in the seventh one in the eighth, and three in the ninth, coupled with two walks in the fateful ninth and two miscues gave the Hendersonville aggregation the big end of a 9-5 score. Brevard garnered seven hits off Smith for the visitors, but failed to get them close together. Obie Davis, of Camp Sapphires, made his initial appearance for Brevard in this game and played an exceptionally good game in center, aside from connecting for two safeties out of five tries.

Beacon Here Saturday

With the Brevard boys taking plenty of action during the week, and with a little change in the batting order, Holt is looking forward to taking Beacon down from the top step of the Western Carolina League. Graham, Kilpatrick and Schachner will all be ready for mound duty, with either Paul Schachner or Skidmore, both of whom have good batting averages for the season, slated to do the receiving.

Car Owners Bought More Firestone Tires During April, May and June than in any like period in History

THERE are reasons for this—Firestone is now building the Greatest Tire Values in history, with the result that Firestone factories are operating 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, to meet public preference.

This is the year everybody is scrutinizing his purchases. This is particularly true in tire buying because of the many confusing and misleading statements made about tires.

To give car owners the facts, Firestone published comparisons showing quality, construction and prices. Then the public came in—made their own comparisons with cross-sections cut from Firestone tires—and from special brand mail order tires and others.

When they saw the facts, they bought more Firestone tires during April, May and June than in any like period in Firestone history.

Drive in today and let us show you these Firestone Extra Values and have your car equipped for Safe, Trouble-Free Summer Motoring. We can save you money and serve you better.
